

A Week Of Spirit

It is a tradition at school that Homecoming is a week of fun activities and competitions between the classes. The Homecoming game is probably the most attended. The football team is more wound up. It is simply the week to show all of the spirit one has.

Some of the activities, determined by the Student Government Association, were College Day, Pre-Halloween Day, Black and Gold Day, Spirit Fringe Day, and Sock Hop Day.

On Pre-Halloween Day, a clown was seen in the halls, and there were rumors that Brandon Lee from "The Crow" was seen attending classes.

"My college is better than your college" was heard on College Day where USC and Duke were the most visible.

Sock Hop Day was new for the students this year. The students were instructed to dress as people dressed in the '50's, '60's, and '70's. The students really enjoyed this and the participation was enormous.

On Spirit Fringes Day, which was also innovated this year, the students exchanged fringes made of yarn to students in other grades. Instead of it lasting the day that was set aside, the students extended it throughout the week.

Spirit links were sold in the homerooms, and many of the Seniors were afraid that, for the first time, the Sophomores may have beaten them. The Seniors won out though, at least for this year. The spirit links from the separate classes were stretched along the fences at the Homecoming football game.

Just Goofing Off

Mrs. B. Broome and Coach Fowble play it up for the camera.

We Got Spirit

Mrs. Schiferl's homeroom's spirit links stretch across the classroom.

Erica Hennessee, dressed as Brandon Lee from "The Crow," shows off for the camera on Pre-Halloween Day.

