

Social Studies

When many students hear the words “Social Studies”, they think of boring lectures and reading assignments. Others wonder “Will I ever need this in life?” The obvious answer is, Yes! At Fairfield Central High School, the Social Studies Department offers a wide variety of courses from history and government to economics and Teacher Cadets.

The Social Studies courses at Fairfield Central High School are designed to not only teach students about the past, but also to prepare them for the future. Ms. Sarah Chiles, the department chair, says “History is very important. Even if you don’t realize it now, you need a good understanding of history now and in the future!”

Many historians are quick to point out that history repeats itself. Those who ignore history are doomed to repeat it. With a broad background in social studies, the students of Fairfield Central High School are well prepared for the future.

Bonnie Carr

Right: Mrs. Spires grades papers before class begins.

