

JROTC

Above: While the JROTC picked up trash on their adopted highway, LaShawna Chapman and Rose Ulch team up to hurry the job along.

Left: Freshman Sabrina Squirewell prepares to go home after a long day.

Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps, JROTC, is a great program to be part of. The program at Fairfield Central JROTC is elite compared to other school's programs. The program itself stands like a brick wall supporting its own-self; the students control the bulk of the JROTC functions by giving individuals leadership positions. This opportunity for leadership is given because of the Chain of Command. The average cadet by the end of his four-year tenure in JROTC acquires such personality traits as valor and cunning wit. This program is very much a learning experience, making the cadet self-sufficient.

Alan Ulch