

Col. King

Lieutenant Colonel King, the Senior Army Instructor for the JROTC program, is the reigning teacher of the year for Fairfield Central High School. This title earned by Colonel King was not handed to him; he earned the award, of great prestige, not only with his superior teaching abilities but also with his ability to keep his class tamed. "I respect Colonel King because of how stern he is while still keeping his compassion and understanding of the student," one said of King. Colonel King controls an intricate system that allows his cadets to govern themselves within a chain of command. Many of King's cadets look upon him as a role model. King looks after all the cadets that want to learn and participate in his class. Colonel King has well deserved the award presented to him because he fits the awards criteria, being a great teacher as well as role model.

Alan Ulch

Right: Col. King and Sgt. Taft share a laugh before class starts.

