

Music

From R&B and Jazz to Gospel, the Fairfield Central High School Chorus has shown many that not only are they talented, but they have class. Chorus students, through their skills, show that it takes hard work and practice to succeed. Throughout the 1999-2000 school year, the chorus has many events planned, which are known to be a success. Chorus member Willie Young said, "It takes hard work and lots of time." Instructor Gerard Peoples has shown students that practice makes perfect. When the chorus performs for the school, students cheer and clap because they are astonished at the excellent performance. Senior Kellee Robertson said, "I love when we have assemblies because I know that the chorus is going to do good." Without Chorus, students wouldn't be able to show off such great talents!

Along with performing half time shows at the football games, the Griffin Marching Band participates in local parades and competitions, and performs for the faculty and student body at Fairfield Central High and other schools in the district. To plan for their yearly band trip, the Griffin band participates in fundraisers such as selling calendars and fruit, performing at concerts, and sponsoring Band Alumni Night. They are the heart of Fairfield Central High. It is the spirit of the Griffin band that gets students hyped during Pep Rallies, football games, and other social events.

T. Pauling, A. Brown

Right: Drummer Cedric Bush and George Henry stands out as the band performs at an assembly.

