HOME ECONOMICS

Gainful Home Economics is designed to train students as homemakers--wage earners. Through classroom instruction and projects, skills and techniques are developed and students become acquainted with occupational opportunities in the area of Home Economics. Field trips permit the students to observe employees in these related areas as well as to be instructed by the employers on their policies.

Using a sewing machine is only a small part of making a garment. Patterns must be adjusted and cut out; not to mention the constant pinning, pressing, and trying on.
