

AFRILE '84

Lift your voices, join the throng.
Swell in praise our joyful song.
Long live our Academy!
Hold its banner ever high;
May we ever onward march,
Blue and Gold against the sky!
Benedicat nos Deus.
Benedicat nos Deus.

Gaudeamus igitur
Iuvenes dum sumus!
As we leave these ivied halls,
As each golden future calls,
Richard Winn's ideals uphold;
E'er be true to Blue and Gold.
Benedicat nos Deus.
Benedicat nos Deus.

Praise to our Academy!
Follow as it leads us on.
May its star be ever bright,
May its path be ever light!
As we come from day to day,
Let us learn the upward way.
Benedicat nos Deus.
Benedicat nos Deus.

A Special Note for This Edition

Like much of Winnsboro and most of Richard Winn, the 1984 Aerie was somewhat scattered by the March 28 tornado. In spite of our losses, we decided to try to pick up the pieces and complete the yearbook. Having only six weeks to retrieve or replace a year's worth of work, the Aerie staff ardently worked to complete this issue. Due to the pressure of time and loss of materials, this annual may have a few rough edges. However, our staff feels that this edition will stand above all other editions for accurately recording the events that changed our lives.

The 1984 Aerie Is Proudly Dedicated to Mrs. Ellen Nicholson

The Journalism Staff proudly dedicates the 1984 Aerie to Mrs. Ellen Nicholson for her unsurpassed guidance and talent. She has shown sincere devotion throughout the years and is truly an asset to Richard Winn Academy. As a result, the upper and middle school choruses attended the annual SCISA Music Festival again this year and were acknowledged for their superior standing. In closing, Richard Winn thanks you Mrs. Nicholson for caring and for teaching us the benefits of working as a group in order to reach our goals.

Academic Bowl

This year Richard Winn participated in the Academic Bowl, a competitive gathering of the most capable students from grades 8 through 12. John C. Calhoun Academy hosted the competition at its campus in Walterboro, S.C. on March 23, 1984.

Allyson Sanders, representing the eighth grade from RWA, participated in the finals as well as Peter Rambo from our eleventh grade. They performed extremely well, answering questions from five different categories: science, math, history, social studies, and current events. Others who represented our school were Cindy Mozat, ninth grade; and Laura Bost, twelfth grade.

Under the direction and sponsorship of their "coach" Mr. Erick Byrd, our students performed well enough to achieve fifth place among the twenty independent schools that participated.

The Lady Eagles had a very successful season. While comprising a 26-4 record, the Lady Eagles easily captured an undefeated III-AA conference championship. Their only losses were to Wilson Hall and Salem academies. The new addition of the three point line this year gave the Lady Eagles disappointment as Salem won a close game with a highly contested three point shot. After beating Catawba in the conference tournament, the Lady Eagles went to the state tournament where they met again with Salem Academy. After a close battle, Salem was victorious and later won the State championship. The Lady Eagles ended their successful season — ranked seventh overall in the state. The Lady Eagles were coached by Beth Reid, her first year as a varsity basketball coach. Next year's team should prove to be as successful with eleven lettermen returning. The only senior this year was Fran Miller. Congratulations to the 1983-84 Lady Eagles!

Fairfield Twister Kills 6

By JOHN COLLINS
Newberry Bureau

WINNSBORO

At least six people were killed near Winnsboro on Wednesday as a tornado hit several communities in Fairfield County, trapping residents in their homes, overturning vehicles and damaging buildings.

A state of emergency was declared, and the S.C. National Guard was called out, civil defense officials said.

The brunt of the storm fell on a stretch of rundown houses and trailer homes about a mile north of Winnsboro.

City Manager L.C. Greene said some of the victims were occupants of "small, tenant-type houses" that "just collapsed."

Coroner Joe Silvia said the dead included Maude Bell, about 60, and her grandson, L.A. McLean, about 4; Edward Craig, 58 to 60; Jeffrey Woodard, 11; and two unidentified males.

Mrs. Bell and her grandson died when the twister struck her house trailer on S.C. 222 in the Smalltown community north of Winnsboro.

Craig's body was found in his trailer behind a nightclub in the same area.

The details of Woodard's death were uncertain, Silvia said. The victim lived on Secondary Road 20-61. Silvia said the unidentified males included a Maryland truck driver who died when his rig slammed into an embankment on Interstate 77 after wind lifted the truck off a bridge spanning a culvert.

Vickie McDonald of the county civil defense office said a tornado struck down near the county detention center on the outskirts of Winnsboro about 6 p.m.

Those left homeless today sought refuge at Nazarene Church, while power crews worked to restore electricity to the hardest hit areas. Teams of rescue workers continued to search the debris for more victims today, but were hampered by blocked secondary roads north of the town. Helicopters were also being used in the search.

A platoon of about 30 National Guardsmen today stood watch over damaged stores and businesses to prevent looting, while agents from the State Law Enforcement Division assisted local police and sheriff's deputies in restoring order.

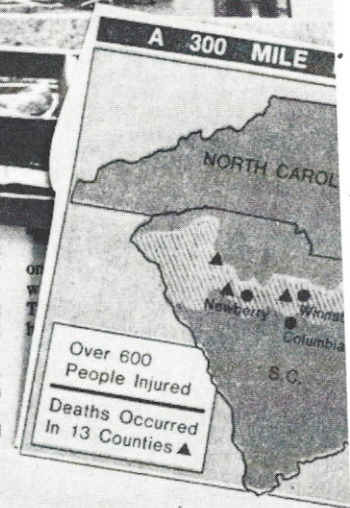

"Some areas are just torn up," said Capt. Earl Wilkes of the Fairfield County Sheriff's Department.

E.L. Ayers, general manager of Fairfield Electric Cooperative said today that about 3,000 to 4,000 customers remained without power this morning, all located in areas north and east of Winnsboro. He said at least nine heavy power lines operated by Santee-Cooper were down and would probably be late tonight sometime tomorrow before electricity could be restored to affected areas.

Wilkes said about 27 prisoners transferred about 5 p.m. to Chester County when power failed at Fairfield County's Detention Center would remain there for the next several days.

The storm struck about 5:30 p.m. yesterday, just after most residents had arrived home from work.

WINNSBORO — Standing in the rubble that a day ago was Richard Wynne Academy, John McNeely described just how lucky he was.

The 18-year-old Erskine College student and a friend, 16-year-old Robert Stidham, last night had huddled in fear alongside the private school and watched as a tornado ripped off its roof and hurled school buses 50 feet.

"I was more frightened," he said. "Black stuff was coming down on my head."

But the area north of Winnsboro, a high wind struck through the area, striking first a small town, Newberry, 50-60 miles along the county's western edge. There, a few trailers, a few homes, a few trees, collapsed.

March 28, 1984

John McNeely and I arrived at Richard Winn early Wednesday evening. I was at the school for the SAT preparatory course, and John had come in hopes of finding the gym open so he could join in on a possible basketball game.

We had parked our cars in front of the school when the thunder and lightning started. I thought it would be just another storm, but when the golf ball size hail started pelting the ground and ricocheting in every direction, we decided that we should protect our cars so we moved them under the walkway in front of the gym. We watched the hail for about five minutes and then we moved to the quadrangle to watch the balls of ice bouncing off the roof. For no reason, we casually walked out to the front of the school to get a better view of the storm. Within a minute, the sky turned an ominous black, and as we looked across the street into the LeGrand's yard, we saw that their trees were bending so much that they were almost touching the ground. From the shelter of the school's front porch we watched, as the hail smashed against the cement and the wind increased to a rumbling roar. Within an instant it seemed that gravity released its grip and everything started flying. Leaves, metal, cardboard, boards, insulation, dirt, and trees were whirling everywhere. John laid down near the front door and I knelt down with my back towards the wind and my hands covering my head. John was screaming about something but I couldn't hear him. Within a few seconds the porch railing that I was holding was ripped out of my hand and out of my sight. Without the protection, it felt like the whole world was hitting me on the back and legs. I yelled to John and told him I couldn't take anymore so I got up and tried to run in one of the corridors. It was very dark in the hall and it looked and sounded like the walls were falling in. I figured it wasn't a safe place so I ran back to what was left of the front porch.

When I found John he cautiously got up and we both turned around to look at the school. Most of the wall behind us had been blown down so we could see that the rest of the high school had been leveled. Behind the high school we could see the shredded gym. What had been a formidable bulk of a building now looked like a hollow skeleton of steel girders. From these vacant bones, aluminum sheets swung and creaked in the eerie wind. Beside the gym we noticed the crumpled school buses that had been rolled over and smashed against the gym and school.

After taking in the school, we suddenly remembered that as the tornado hit there had been a car driving down the road. We now saw the car with a huge sheet of the gym's aluminum wrapped around it like bacon around a steak. We ran to the car and ripped the aluminum from its side. Inside the tiny car there were people on the floor of the back seat, one on top of another, upside down, wide-eyed with awe. We saw they were all right and left them to untangle themselves, as we rushed up the street to the Taylors to report what had happened and explore what disaster had occurred.

The Class of 84

JUNIOR MARSHALS — Jimmy Bagley, Melissa Weed, Robert Whitesides, Laura Thomas, Marion Bass, and Cristin Williams.

Rebecca DuBard — Salutatorian
Laura Bost — Valedictorian

Senior Prophecy

John Ruff — After becoming famous as the stuntman in "E.T. Part Two," John returned to Winnsboro where he manages "The Gulfa" and Ruff's Bar And Grill.

Brad Gaddy — After being discovered as Coach Robinson's long-lost son, Brad fled to Oklahoma, where in his spare time, he designs album covers for AC/DC.

Rob Pope — Kicked out of the Citadel for not shining his shoes, Rob Pope is Mr. February 2004 on the Playgirl Calendar.

Russell Wilkes — After publishing his brochure "Creative Ways on How to Get Out of Writing a Term Paper," Russell became a professional member of The Womanless Weddings.

Robin White — Ridgeway, South Carolina is now known as the "Home of the Whoppa" in honor of Robin White, police chief, highway patrolman, and Mayor of Ridgeway.

Bobby Castles — After assassinating Mr. Rogers, Bobby took over the neighborhood and now teaches the little children dirty words.

Dean Taylor — Married a midget softball player and became an abused husband.

Dena Reeves — Soon after receiving her degree in Criminal Justice, specializing in Youth Services, Dena was prosecuted for child abuse. Dena later married one of her much younger clients, which was no surprise — we all know she specialized in robbing the cradle.

Herman Mattox — Our local Elvis imitator croons "Love Me Tender" to little old ladies in the Winnsboro Music Club.

Liz Harden — After being fired as an auctioneer because she talked too fast, Liz became the hostess of her own talk show in which her guests just listen to her talk.

Ritchie Monteith — is seen annually as Bobo The Clown at the State Fair where he gets paid for hurling insults at innocent passers-by.

Robin Lever — Won the Nobel Peace Prize for never causing any trouble.

Laura Bost — Unhappy with her salary as an accountant, Laura Bost turned to a life of crime. She is now a terrorist leader in Zimbabwe.

Betsy Barrineau, now Mrs. Julio Iglesias is a whining opera star with the Metropolitan Opera in New York. She comes back to South Carolina every Monday, however, to collect the weekend news for print in The Winnsboro Enquirer.

Becky DuBard can be seen on local t.v. commercials as Becky Beta and her vast vocabulary trying to sell her version of DuBard's Dictionary. Thus far she has sold only four copies, notably all to DuBards. Could it be that only a DuBard can understand it?

David Herndon, after retiring as President of Manhattan Industries, is now host of his own t.v. show "Fishing with Red."

Eric Steele, voted most valuable bagboy at Winn Dixie, can still be seen wearing his Clemson sweatshirt and RWA football and baseball jerseys. Big Eric.

Gene Price, owner of the How Soon Do Ya Want to Git There Bus Transit, can still be seen driving Coach Gasque's truck running errands.

Fran Miller, after a dazzling career on the Erskine Basketball team, took over John Madden's place on the Miller Beer Commercials. She has now gained the ability to crush a beer can with a single hand.

Wylie Wright, President of the Buckwheat Greeting Card Company, now plays Ernest on the Hancock Buick commercials.

Tina Evans, after seventeen unsuccessful marriages, became a professional clogger at The Dry Gulch Saloon.

Ken Pitmon took over Stutt's Photography and continues the tradition of taking advantage of the sentimentality of parents.

Troy Beckham co-stars on the Knight Rider and is a substitute Drivers-Ed teacher at a local high school.

David Branaham, millionaire owner of the Branaham Empire, has not let success go to his head. He can still be seen pumping gas at the station or styling hair at Ora Lee's Beauty Salon.

Becky Mattox, after practicing while at work in Mattox's Packaging Store, became a world famous wine tester, thanks to her ex-husbands Ernest and Julio Gallo.

Scott Porter, the local game warden, teaches classes on his personal hunting techniques.

Penny Renwick, after a career as the first female statistician for The Pittsburgh Steelers, retired and now enjoys her dancing career as a Solid Gold Dancer.

Tracy Haygood, convicted of selling the top secret information to the Russians, was hanged as a traitor and buried according to her wishes in Siberia.

Scott Jiggs Jeffers — 20 years later it was discovered that he had fallen overboard on the cruise.

Elisa Hare does the 12:00 news for the local t.v. station. Naturally she never arrives until 12:15 and is always chewing gum!

Last Will and Testament

We, the Senior Class of 1984, being of sound minds and bodies, do declare this to be our Last Will and Testament and do hereby bequeath these, our worldly goods, to the fortunate individuals so designated below.

BETSY BARRINEAU: To Mr. Gasque, Betsy leaves Tommy and Ray so that, for six more years he will have a Barneau to pick on. To Ann Teal, Beth Taylor, and Abby Cathcart, a double cheeseburger, onion rings, and an orange drink to be split evenly among themselves and a free ride to Thornwell, redeemable during basketball season. To the rising seniors, Betsy leaves tips on whining in hopes that these tips will help them with the teachers as much as they did her.

ANN GOOD: To Tony Beckham, 20 pairs of parachute pants in hopes that they will slow him down when he drives his car. To Joel Crosby, the ability to cut school without getting caught, and to pass George Taylor's class. To Mr. Gasque and Mr. Robinson, a radar detector in hopes that they will not get stopped on the way to basketball games next year.

ROBIN WHITE: To Sharon Smith, a book entitled 150 Ways to Keep Off Restriction. To Leslie Jones and Stephen Clyburn, Robin leaves her car for use at their discretion. To Mr. George Taylor, the book 101 Ways to Teach Psychology Without Keeping the Class Bored. To Mrs. Nicholson and Coach Gasque, Robin leaves a 60 minute tape of continuous talking and laughing so that whenever they get bored and have no one to fuss at, they can turn on the tape.

MARY ANN CALDWELL: To Michelle Benson, Betsy and Jody, the ability to do without her in the sardine-packed carpool. To Coach Gasque and Coach Robinson, Mary Ann leaves Betsy and Jody and the ability to put up with them for two more years. To Cheryl and Mac, the ability to decide on somewhere to go on a Saturday night and not get caught in a hail storm on the way. To next year's Varsity Basketball Cheerleading Captain, the ability to have all the cheerleaders present for at least one game.

TRACY HAYGOOD: To Mrs. Ferguson, the hope that she will never have another student like Ritchie Monteith. To Camak Blair, the ability to make it through 9 more years of Richard Winn without having a nervous breakdown and to be on time every day without receiving as many tardies as she did.

BOBBY CASTLES: To Gertrude Wilkes, Bobby leaves the nickle on the floor. To Paul Holmes, Bobby leaves Page and her favorite words, "you got any money?"

LAJRA BOST: To Mr. Gasque, one student who is willing to do anything he needs to have done. To Mr. Robinson and Miss Reid, one large tote bag to carry all their stats. To Allyson Sanders, Cindy Mazat, Peter Rambo, and Robert Moore, the hope that they will attend the Quiz Bowl next year and have as much fun as they did this year. To Mrs. Pope, an economics class full of registered voters.

DAVID HERNDON and RUSSELL WILKES: To Coach Gasque, their collection of hunting and fishing knowledge in hopes that one day he will profit from their vast outdoor experiences. To Eddie Mattox, the Senior football players leave the ability to handle the car smuggling ring without their leadership.

BECKY MATTOX: To Coach Robinson, a bottle of "Instant Hair" which can be used above the forehead or preferably above the upper lip. To Sharon Smith, a half pound of Corn Diggers and a map in hopes that she will some day find Union Academy within four hours. To Julie Weed, a year's supply of bubble gum so she can eat, not chew, but eat it while cruising town, and another set of hands so she can write Jeff as many letters as he writes her. To "Nat-Lie" Gardner, "I be's leavin' you in my will a yeah's supply of wata-melons and fro-sheen!"

GENE PRICE: To Mrs. Nicholson, two blocks of wood so that she will be able to drive the bus to Bob Jones next year. To Coach Robinson, a new joke book because the one he's using now is obviously as old as he is. To Coach Gasque, the ability to find another full-time slave and the ability to get to the ballgames on time after leaving 30 minutes late.

LIZ HARDEN: To Mac and Cheryl, the key to her house to check in and see if her parents are still alive, and one paper bag. To Jena Barnett, my angel of mercy, thank you for opening my eyes to Richard Winn and all it can offer. To Scott Barefield, a can of red spray paint and the hope that he will find a nickname for someone else.

TROY BECKHAM: To Steve Reed, the ability to total the drivers ed car and injure the stud of the football team. To Tony, a million and one excuses to get out of class. To Mrs. Nicholson, a free season pass to the State Hospital.

WYLIE WRIGHT: To Sandi, Wylie leaves his most treasured (and most joked about) possession — "The Dart." To Coach Robinson, a conductor's wand so he can lead the class in singing "Happy Birthday." To Scott Barefield, Wylie and Russell leave with their congratulations to him on being the "School Stud." To Robert Stidham, Wylie and Bobby leave the ability to run one more hundred yard dash at midnight on the football field.

KEN PITMON: To George Taylor, a seasonal pass to Walden Pond so that he can get in touch with himself at any time. To Mrs. Nicholson, Ken leaves Kerry in hopes that the tenor section will be "Superior" next year. To Mrs. Boulware, the ability to keep her cool in a debate with Coach Gasque concerning who's property the stapler is.

ROBIN LEVER: To Tony Beckham, the ability to make it through school another year without getting into trouble, or at least, not getting caught.

ROB POPE: To Ed and Allan, an extra pair of thumbs in case theirs fall off thumbing a ride to school every morning. To Coach Gasque and the '84 football team, best wishes and support for a successful season.

To George Taylor, Robin Lever and Fran Miller leave the book 101 New Ways to Teach Journalism, film, a toll-free number to call Taylor Publishing Company, and a class willing to jump at every command.

FRAN MILLER: To Cheryl Stevenson, 1 pair of steel-toed hightop basketball shoes for future basketball practices. To next year's basketball team, lots of luck for the upcoming season. To Donna, Fran leaves the name "Milla" in hopes that she can continue the tradition.

BECKY DuBARD: To Melissa Weed and next year's Varsity Football Cheerleaders, a can of Country Time Powdered Lemonade, a can opener, and a free pass to the Elliot White Springs Memorial Hospital, good only twenty minutes before competition time. To Mr. Robinson, a flock of birds, whose company he so richly deserves, and a discussion on Theology at Wendy's. To Miss Reid, an L. L. Bean Catalog and the patience to deal with Mr. Robinson. To Betsy Caldwell, a little message, and to Rod Wilkes a mangled manual typewriter, a new yellow MacGregor shirt, and a new brown truck.

JANICE CARTER: To Tony Beckham, the ability to go to the Jr. Sr. with a date and get home early with his date.

To Karen Collins, one more year of Biology and Tony Beckham. To Shannon Case, the ability to put up with Lori calling her "toothpick" and "twig." To Lori, the ability to cut down Randy every chance she gets. To Cristin, the ability to survive one more year with Coach Robinson and Coach Gasque. To Steve Reed, Janice leaves the ability to go to chorus two more years without Fran and herself.

PATSY PALMER: To Mr. Robinson, Patsy leaves a crown and a scepter so that he can reign with all the authority his heart desires. To Coach Porter, a blue light and a police badge so he can keep the roads safe from speeders. To Mr. Gasque, Patsy leaves an unbreakable fishing rod. To Mrs. DuBard, she leaves a box of Kleenex and a new video of Helen Keller. To Robert Stidham, a set of tickets to next year's shrimp boil. To Joey Smith, a pack of cigarettes at the Manhattan parking lot. To Mrs. Turner, Patsy and Ken leave a big smile.

DENA REEVES: To Coach Robinson, Dena leaves the world's largest sunlamp in order for him to obtain "The Myrtle Beach Look" even if it rains. To Robert Stidham, bottoms up on your "end of the world" — you never were sure which end was up. Thanks for all the memories and the great times. To Stephen Clyburn and Jason Wilson, a big hug and lots of love. To Jena Barnett, the advice to not judge new girls in plaid pants because sometimes there is a pleasant prep in them.

PENNY RENWICK: To future statisticians, Laura and Penny leave a well-sharpened pencil, a calculator with Duracell batteries, earplugs, a rule book, a dime to call the stats in, a good sense of humor, maximum strength Tylenol, and above all, Patience. To Annie McLeod, the next RWA Sports Information Director, Penny leaves the ability to put up with the football players' lies about how many tackles they had, a brain that will calculate offensive and defensive stats in one minute, the ability to organize an athletic banquet in one day, and any information necessary to answer any question at any time of day.

ELISA HARE: To Ross, the ability to project the letters E A G L E S unmistakably, anywhere, anytime, and the ability to arrive promptly at every school function. To Whitesides, Elisa leaves the ability to be a model "chestnut" and get from Chester to Winnsboro in ten minutes or less. To Julia Bradford, the ability to keep the Chester boys straight, and to Joanna Johnson, a set of drumsticks in hopes that she puts them to good use.

RUSSELL WILKES: To Rod, Russell leaves one darling, precious little nuisance named Randy.

PERRY ANNE PATRICK: To Paul, the ability to maintain life and sanity while Rob drives to school. To Rob, one maid working 24 hours a day to clean up after Paul. To Marion and Brett, the ability to obtain 18 absences at the Vocational School and to be late every day and never get a tardy. To Robert Stidham, a free trip to Erskine and the ability to get home on time.

To the Chester people, Dena and Elisa leave a tank of gas, a spare tire, 25 tardies for each person per year, and a book entitled 101 Excuses Why You Were Late.

To Frances Ann Hendrix, Scott leaves all his love and the keys to her car.

To Karen Collins, Valencia leaves her ability to get to school at 8:35 and somehow get to class without a tardy slip.

To Jennifer Weed, Valencia leaves the ability to teach Julie to put the top on the toothpaste.

To Julie Weed, Valencia leaves a book of diets that allows you to eat Road Runner hamburgers and cake, and last but not least:

Robin White and Valencia Dinkins leave to Julie Weed a book of 150 Ways to Keep a Navy Man Satisfied.

To Frances Ann, Jiggs leaves the number to the psychiatric ward in Columbia so that she can discuss all her "Porter Problems" while I'm gone.

To Robert Moore, Jiggs leaves the ability to have a chinese dinner at Imperial Gardens without falling face-first in the salad and the power to save his money while under the influence of a diluted drink.

To Joanna, Jiggs leaves his Algebra II book with all the answers under the desk.

To Mrs. Turner, Jiggs leaves . . . alone!

To "ten gallon," Jiggs leaves a sack full of practice jerseys so that he won't have to go to the wash at camp.

To Brooks, Jiggs leaves the ability to make it through another year of Mrs. Turner.

To Robert Moore, Tina and Jiggs leave the ability to make it to the restroom while doing the "turkey walk."

To Wittowski, Jiggs leaves Coach Gasque and a senior year of RWA football.

To Mac Johnson, Russell leaves the ability to remember the snapcount, play, and blocking assignment for all the other linemen.

To Rod, Russell leaves Randy.

To George Taylor, Wylie, Bobby, Eric, and Russell leave a new Master lock for his gate in hopes he will keep out any "prowlers."

To Gina, Tina and Ellen leave a free pass to the "flicks."

To Robert Moore, Tina and Ellen leave a can of paint for the walls at Imperial Gardens and a class of accounting so that in the future he will be able to account for his money.

To Julie Weed, Tina and Ellen leave the ability to pull off the "super-sneak" with a jelly-filled doughnut.

To Julie, Ellen leaves a full tank of gas to cruise Main Street on the night of a full moon.

To Jim Douglas, Tina leaves her hot rod.

To Jim, Ellen leaves the ability to survive five long, hard years and all her love.

To Brent Kelly, Tina leaves all her love and "Java" to sleep with when she's gone.

To Mr. Robinson, Tina leaves a case of golf balls so that he can play instead of searching the course for lost balls.

To the on-coming seniors, Tina and Ellen leave their ability to have a senior-cut day with more than four people.

To Mr. Taylor, Tina and Ellen leave with a smile on their faces and happiness in their hearts.

To Brad Sanders, Tina leaves a case of Icy Hot!!!

To Joanna Johnson, Tina and Ellen leave an interview with WIS-10.

In Memory of Robert Wayne Harrison

The R.W.A. Football Program wishes to remember Robbie for his dedication and support (1981-82).

“Our Flower”

Up on a hill in heaven
Beside the streets of gold,
There blooms a lovely flower
With a story to be told.
It tells the story of someone
All the world should have known,
For all the kindness and happiness
In his life he has sown.
It tells of a man named Robbie,
A person filled with life,
Who loved, who lived, and laughed
And cared for those in strife.
His life should be a monument
For all the world to see.
Not only for the person he was,
But also for what he let others be.
He had a special quality
That few in life possess.
His motto was “I’ll try it
And I’ll always do my best.”
He did his best until the end
When God took his life away.
But in the hearts of all who knew him,
Robbie will always stay.
So if you’re ever in heaven
And see our flower on the hill,
Tell Robbie that we love and miss him
And we always will
