

The Juniors found a gold mine in smoked turkeys this year. As a major fund-raising project, the juniors sold gourmet smoked turkeys for Thanksgiving and Christmas. This was one of many projects designed to raise money for the prom which was held in April. Other successful endeavors included an alumni basketball game, garage sales, raffles, and bake sales.

Raising money for the prom was only the beginning of putting on an impressive dance to honor the seniors. Planning the prom began in early fall when a group of fourteen class members went to Charlotte to a band showcase to choose a band for the April event. Everyone was impressed by the group, Rare Experience, who involved the audience in their music. The class was also pleased that by having the prom on a Thursday night, they could save one-third of the price of the band.

After the first of the year, planning for the prom itself began in earnest. Committees were set up for choosing the theme, decorations, and refreshments. Everyone participated in some way and learned the value of teamwork and effort. When prom night finally came, thirty-six juniors felt pleased and proud of a job well done.

Despite an abundance of turkey jokes, Rhett Melton and Leigh Richardson laughed all the way to the bank after the very successful sale by the juniors.

Being a good sport, David Goudelock wonders what cheerleaders Teri Barefield and Gina Robinson are planning this time.

Paul Patrick, Retta Melton, and Lester Robinson take time out to socialize after lunch.
