

The Great Cover-up

The students at Richard Winn were right in step with the latest fashions. Some of the more popular fads included acid-washed denim - jeans, jackets, skirts, shirts, and even shoes. Coca-Cola and Teddy Bear sweatshirts were big with the girls as were mini-skirts.

Colorful accessories accented these stylish clothes. Swatch and Coca-Cola watches, colored high-top tennis shoes, and different styles of boots gave just the right look. Wayfarer and Rainbow sunglasses were "in" as well as sporty hats. However, the most popular head cover remained the baseball cap. To top off their look, most students chose rather conservative hairstyles. The girls liked a shoulder-length cut with soft curls or a short bob. The guys mostly sported the classic "clean-cut" look, although a few daring athletes got Mohawks in the Fall. Also, few spiked styles were seen here and there.

These fashion conscious Eagles thought of school as an event - a chance to show off their great cover-ups!

By Angi Atkerson

Acid-washed denim pocketbooks and mini-skirts put Belinda Surratt, Angi Atkerson, and Elizabeth Elledge right in step with current fashion.

Dawn Cunningham and Kelly Baker, like most RWA students, own at least one denim jacket.

Blair Feaster, Jessica Davis, and Jackie Williams stick a pose in their mini-skirts, colored stockings, boots, high-tops, and Reeboks.