In this changing world, one thing remains constant

At RWA CLASS COUNTS

At RWA class still counts despite the changing values of the world around us. We still place emphasis on respect for authority, for others, and for property. We further believe that proper dress and behavior reflects the pride we feel in ourselves and our school, and this really shows our class when we are compared to other schools. Our class is also demonstrated by the outstanding achievements of our students in academics and athletics.

The attitudes and achievements of RWA students are represented by the cover of this year-book. Like the colors of a rainbow, each individual student makes his own unique contribution, but the over-all impression that is given by our student body is one of real class. And despite what some people may think, CLASS COUNTS!

by Jan Murray

A very important part of Richard Winn Athletics is the values the coaches instill in their players. The JV football team, like all of our teams, repeat the Lord's Prayer before the game at Long Cane.

Remembering to show their appreciation to the individuals and businesses who helped make Las Vegas Night a success, Rose Owens, Jan Murray, Angi Atkerson, and Greg Castles write thank-you notes for the Senior Class.

Rose Owens, Teri Barefield, and Paul Patrick exemplify the RWA emphasis on proper dress as they wait for the beginning of Hamlet at USC.

Allan Turner and Doug Raley work on a research project in the library. Achievement is important to them as it is to other RWA students.

Eagle sportsmanship is apparent as Dean Branham (32) congratulates a Robert E. Lee player who was also named All-Tournament.

Mrs. Amy Nunn made a special necklace for Sally Hinnant's tooth that she lost at school. This is only an example of the special treatment teachers give to students to make them feel important.

The way students respond to other students is a mark of RWA's class. Here Belinda Surratt and Janet Spencer show their concern as Danielle Dunn explains her problem to them during break.

Being a relatively small school where all grades are on one campus, Richard Winn provides a unique opportunity for all students to excel in one way or another. All students are made to feel that they are important and are a part of Student Life at Richard Winn.

EAGLE ENTHUSIASM COUNTS

Our Eagle mascot symbolizes our pride in Richard Winn. We show our pride by the enthusiasm we have for events that are held throughout the school year and the way we represent Richard Winn. Our school spirit was at a peak during Spirit Week. During this week the cheerleaders came up with ideas for the students to show their enthusiasm. They sponsored Dress Up Day, Camouflage Day, Sweat Clothes Day, and the most spirited day, School Colors Day. On this day the students dressed in blue, white, and gold, and attended a large pep rally where the Homecoming Court was introduced escorted by the football players they were sponsoring. Although school spirit was at its high during Spirit Week, enthusiasm can be seen throughout the year by the excellent support our teams receive both at home and on the road. This is one way we show our RWA pride.

by Fran Jolly

JV football manager Joe Renwick takes time out from his duties for a little fun. Too young to play he volunteers his time to help the team.

During the Conference Basketball Tournament at Calhoun Academy, our students and parents show strong and loud support for the Eagles.

JV Football players Cal Caldwell, Jef Raley, and Bubba Surratt good naturedly pose as the Holly Hillbillies during a pep rally.

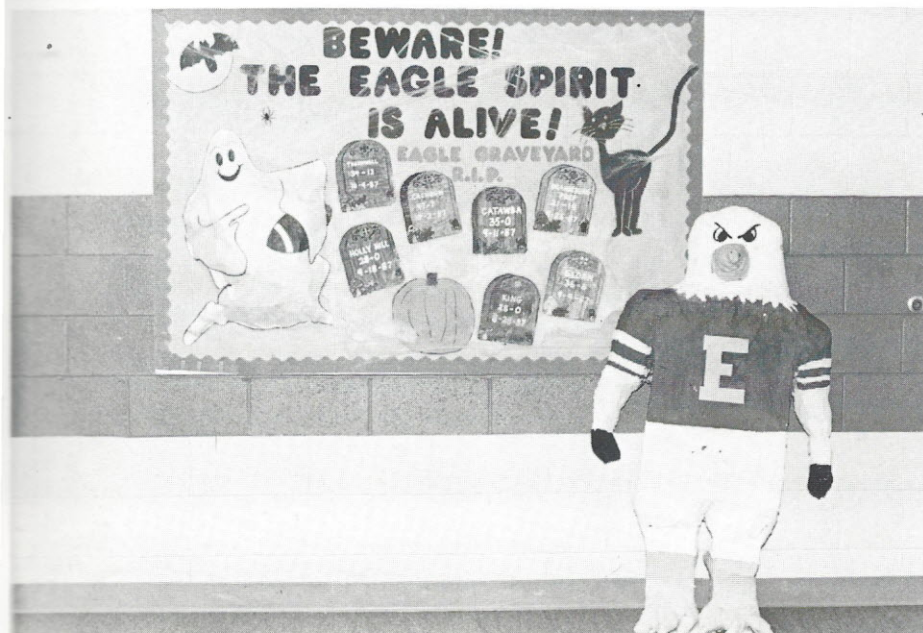

Lead by Brad Brantley the Varsity football team shows its spirit by doing their "big fat lady" cheer.

The JV football cheerleaders keep spirit alive at Long Cane.

Jonathan Burroughs, Bubba McLean, and Jason Robinson really enjoyed Camouflage Day during homecoming week.

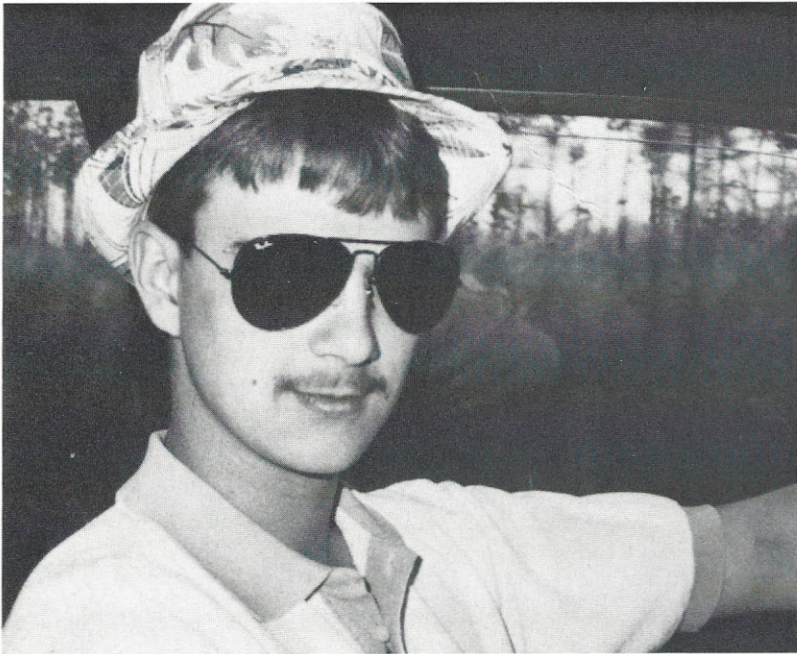

This eye-catching bulletin board, guarded by the Eagle, was created by Mrs. Martha Ladd and the Art Club.

The sixth period P.E. class, made up of Ninth Graders, is all mixed up in their shoe styles. Nike, Reebok, and Converse tennis shoes and high-tops are just a few of the brands that are popular with them.

Lower school students are also fashion conscious. Coca Cola and other sweatshirts are colorful and comfortable and make Jessica Davis, Brinkley Stone, and Sally Hinnant feel like fashion models.

Senior Ashley Wilson dons his Hawaiian print fishing hat and Ray-ban sunglasses to complete his casual look as he leaves campus.

Jan Murray and Leigh Richardson love their Teddy Bear sweatshirts and appreciate their warmth on a windy Autumn day at the Senior yard sale.

The Great Cover-up

The students at Richard Winn were right in step with the latest fashions. Some of the more popular fads included acid-washed denim - jeans, jackets, skirts, shirts, and even shoes. Coca-Cola and Teddy Bear sweatshirts were big with the girls as were mini-skirts.

Colorful accessories accented these stylish clothes. Swatch and Coca-Cola watches, colored high-top tennis shoes, and different styles of boots gave just the right look. Wayfarer and Rainbow sunglasses were "in" as well as sporty hats. However, the most popular head cover remained the baseball cap. To top off their look, most students chose rather conservative hairstyles. The girls liked a shoulder-length cut with soft curls or a short bob. The guys mostly sported the classic "clean-cut" look, although a few daring athletes got Mohawks in the Fall. Also, few spiked styles were seen here and there.

These fashion conscious Eagles thought of school as an event - a chance to show off their great cover-ups!

By Angi Atkerson

Acid-washed denim pocketbooks and mini-skirts put Belinda Surratt, Angi Atkerson, and Elizabeth Elledge right in step with current fashion.

Dawn Cunningham and Kelly Baker, like most RWA students, own at least one denim jacket.

Blair Feaster, Jessica Davis, and Jackie Williams stick a pose in their mini-skirts, colored stockings, boots, high-tops, and Reeboks.

Kerri Vamadore shares a secret with Ellison Estes as they play on the playground on one of the first spring days.

Four year kindergartners work together to construct their outdoor house.

Mrs. Amy Nunn and Peter Pyon make the most of warm weather during first grade recess.

Sara Boyd Arnette loves practicing her gymnastics outside in the warm weather.

,QDB In spring a young man's fancy . . . David Albert has Jennifer Lubic on his mind.

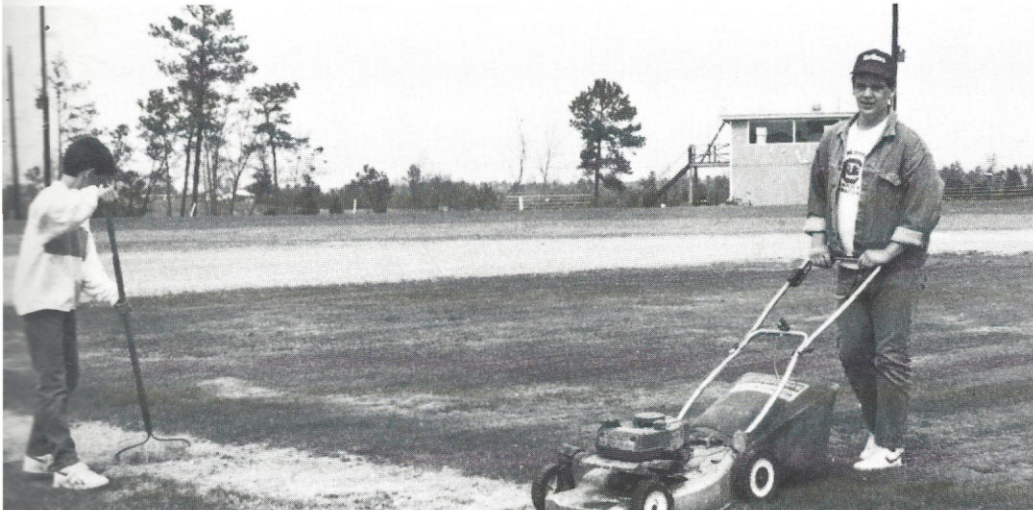

Spring Fling

The warm days of March brought a "Senioritis" epidemic and gave all the underclassmen the itch. Thoughts of lazy summer days could not be crowded out by the reality of term papers, exams, and grade point averages.

The only things that saved us and kept us in touch with school were planning for the prom, participating in spring sports, and looking forward to graduation and the end of school. We used school only as our contact for our social life.

by Jan Murray

With the spring comes one of George Kings favorite chores- cutting the grass on the baseball field.

After School Life

When the final bell rings at the end of the school day, students go their separate ways. Many Richard Winn students participate in after school activities. One of these activities is athletics, not only football, basketball, baseball, tennis, and golf, but also gymnastics and tap and ballet dancing. In fact, many of the lower school girls have won gymnastics awards. Outdoor sports such as hunting is another favorite pastime for Richard Winn students. Other students can be found at Lake Wateree skiing, even in the winter.

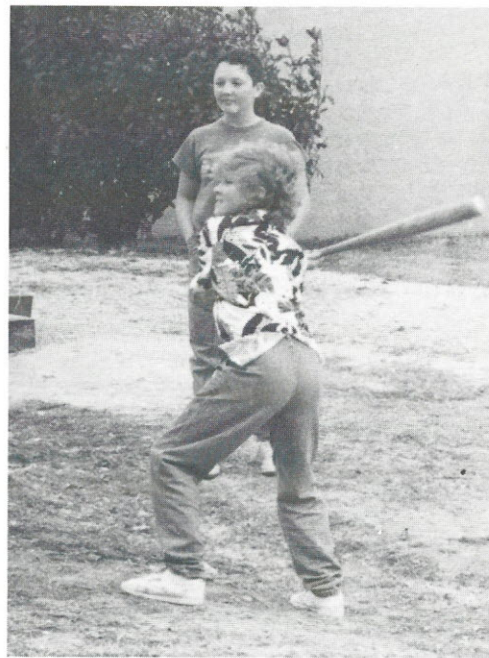

Many upper school students have part-time jobs after school. These include working in local fast food restaurants, grocery stores, downtown stores and offices, cutting grass, and babysitting.

Some students are involved in church youth groups and volunteer work in the community such as the Youth Soil Conservation Board. This group is responsible for planting the trees and bushes around the school as well as other community projects.

All of these activities help the students develop their talents and character all of which are important in becoming a well-rounded student.

by Rose Owens and Jan Murray

Kerri Weed takes her turn at bat in a pick-up game after school as Bill Dove gives some expert advice on how to hold the bat.

Sara Boyd Amette, Gini Startzman, Frances Brown, and Erin Weigle have a quick snack after school as they wait with Katherine Brown to go to dance class.

Gina Robinson and other members of the Youth Conservation Board are involved in community projects such as planting trees at Richard Winn.

Several Richard Winn students, including Teri Barefield, make extra money by working part time at Winnsboro's new McDonald's.

Betsy Kinley enjoys her part time job at the new Fagan's Pizza. She works mostly weekend hours so her job doesn't interfere with her school work.

George King and Brad Crook get their gear loaded on the way to an out-of-town basketball game which will begin their weekend.

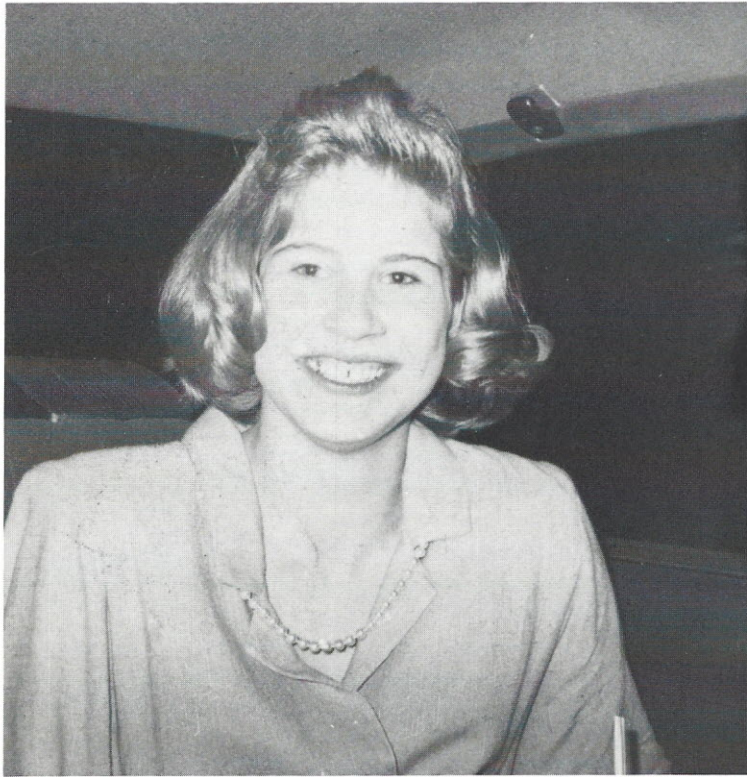

Working for the Weekend

After studying all week at school, the Richard Winn students look forward to the weekend. As Greg Castles puts it, "Weekends are for doing exactly what I want to do."

The high school students usually spend their weekends around Winnsboro or in Columbia with their friends or dates. Some of their favorite hangouts are Melton's Market-EZE and Manhattan. With the opening of McDonald's, RWA students are usually found there grabbing a bite to eat. Some students spend their weekends at the lake skiing while others use their weekends for relaxing and watching tv.

Many of the lower school students spend their time with their families or their friends. No matter how they spend them, most students live for the weekends.

by Jan Murray

All dressed up, Janet Spencer is on her way to Columbia to see the play Hamlet at Longstreet Theater on the USC campus.

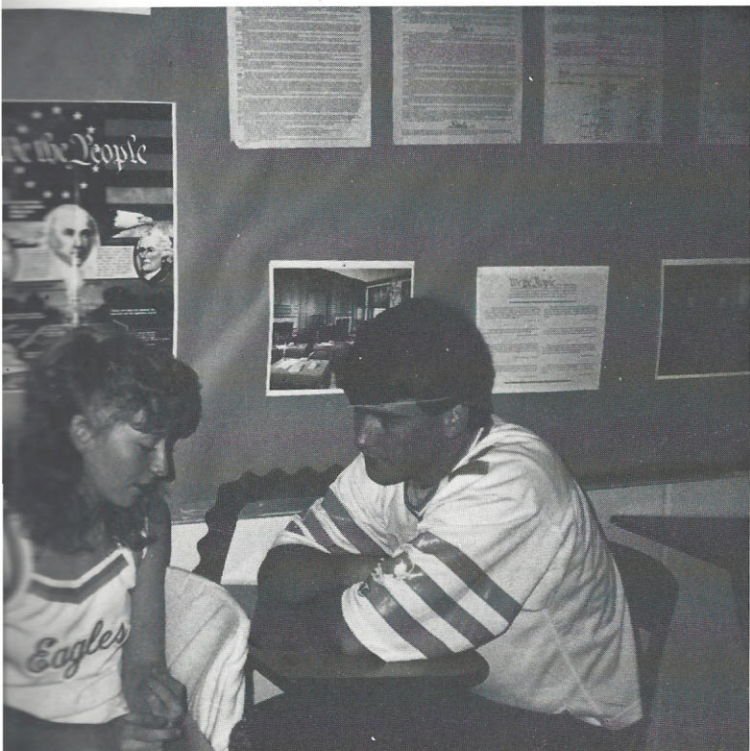

Martha Stevenson, Caroline Wilkins, Bryant Gaddy, and Elaine Mann enjoy cake and ice cream at Caroline's eighth birthday party.

Philip Wilkins and Justin Wilson take a break from swimming at the Fairfield County Country Club to snack on ice cream and cupcakes.

Getting an energy boost after partying all weekend, Hall Sprott, Joe Brown, and Reid Patrick plot their next move.

Anxious to get their weekend started, Ben DuBard and Ken DuBard wait impatiently for their ride which was late on Friday.

Ballgames are an important part of weekends. Teri Barefield and Paul Patrick make plans for after the game.

Parents Key Our Success

What would we do without our parents? When we need them, they are always there, and we owe much of our success to them. They're at all our athletic events, spelling bees, beauty pageants, and recitals rooting for us, celebrating with us when we win, and cheering us up when we lose.

Our parents also get involved with school and individual class projects such as bake sales and other fund raisers. This year the Senior Class Parents sponsored Las Vegas Night to raise money for the Senior Trip.

A number of parents volunteer regularly to work in the concessions at all home ballgames. In addition, several parents have contributed greatly as coaches.

Although we often take our parents' support and help for granted, we do appreciate it. They continually show their class.

Dr. Phil Wilkins enjoyed the snow days in January almost as much as the children. He is seen here with Logan Doty, Julian Doty, Philip Wilkins, Robert Doty, and Caroline Wilkins.

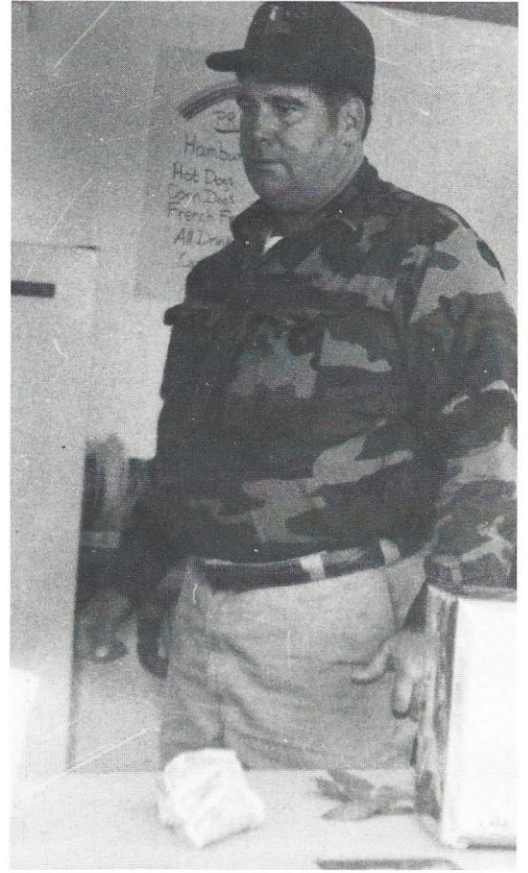

Mrs. Candy Kingsmore shows her excitement and pride after Angel Kingsmore was named All-Tournament in basketball. Mrs. Irene Mattox waits to add her congratulations.

Mrs. Carol Ann Bass works at Las Vegas Night selling "money." This project, sponsored by the Senior Class Parents was very successful and fun for the community.

Lines of cars are a familiar sight after school each day as parents pick up their children. Here Mrs. Ann Pope gives her son, Ed Pope, a smile as she rides up.

Mr. Heyward Burley helps out in the canteen during the football games. He and a number of other Booster Club members volunteer this service at all home games.

Todd Childers and David Scott show their appreciation to Mrs. Peggy Allen who provided a pre-game meal for the football team. It has become a tradition for parents to do this.

Mrs. Mary Gail Douglas gives her son Brad Douglas a victory hug after the basketball team turned in a superb performance in our victory over Malboro Academy in Bennettsville.

Jennifer Lubic, Team Sweetheart, and Allyson Sanders, Homecoming Queen, regain their composure as they begin their ride around the football field in a convertible.

Senior Brad Brantley was sponsored by Allyson Sanders, also a Senior.

Senior Mack Johnson was sponsored by Jennifer Lubic a Sophomore.

Homecoming Brings Spirit to a Peak

Although spirit was high every week during football season, it reached its peak during Homecoming week. The excitement was due in part to wondering who would be elected Homecoming Queen and Team Sweetheart.

However, most of the enthusiasm was generated by the hard-working cheerleaders who on each day of the week called for a special dress to show our unity and support of the Eagles. For instance, one day was "camouflage" day which turned out to be very popular with all students.

The Junior Varsity cheerleaders led a spirited pep rally to bring the week's activities to a climax.

The athletic program at Richard Winn Academy is really unique. It provides an opportunity for students to participate in sports activities - opportunities they may not have at larger schools. In addition, at RWA athletes are encouraged to go out for more than one sport. The all-important experience of being a part of a team is not denied our students.

Eagles Reap Individual Honors

Before the season, many people doubted the Eagles' ability, but dedication, enthusiasm, and togetherness earned them a record of 8-2. All-Conference players David Goudelock, Brad Brantley, Todd Childers, Paul Gardner, Mack Johnson, Paul Patrick, David Scott, and Rion Burley all played a major role in the team's success. The team was lead by Ernie Hughes who was named Conference Coach of the year.

The Eagles dominated their first four opponents: King, Sloan, Catawba, and Holly Hill. Not only did they win, but held each opposing team to under 7 points.

For the next game, the Eagles travelled to Orangeburg where they challenged the Orangeburg Prep Indians and slid by them 21-19. This no doubt may be termed the most exciting game of the season. The Eagles went on to beat Calhoun and Thornwell by scores of 47-7 and 34-14 respectively.

Their winning streak was broken when the Eagles were halted by the Stallions from Williamsburg. The game was scoreless until early in the fourth quarter. Because of the many mistakes made by RWA, Williamsburg edged by with a 6-0 victory.

The homecoming game was another nice victory with a score of 25-15 over the Cavaliers of Robert E. Lee from Bishopville. The Eagles ended the 1987 football season with a 15-14 loss to Jefferson Davis. Unfortunately the Eagles didn't qualify for the play-offs due to a complicated point system.

JV's Build Skills

Even though the JV Eagles ended up with a 1 and 4 record, this was still considered to be a very successful year. The coaches were proud of the progress that was made and the effort put forth by the team from week to week as they took on what always seemed to be larger teams. Much improvement was observed during the season as the players gained valuable experience and confidence. All the games were close and exciting. It was felt that, with a couple of breaks, the JV Eagle's record could have easily been just the opposite.

Eagles Strive for Consistency

The Varsity Eagles got off to an impressive start with a win over Wardlaw Academy. In this game, the Eagles faced men bigger than they and this would only be the first of their taller opponents. However, the height disadvantage did not deter the Eagles. Solid inside play by Dean Branham and Scott Douglas helped set up the outside game for their leading scorer, Freddie Glenn. In addition, Bo Williams and Brian Bonds made their presence known after returning injuries. Brad Douglas directed the offense from the guard position.

A win over Sloan in Columbia began a three game winning streak for the Eagles which was broken by a one point loss to Catawba. The rest of the year proved to be a learning experience for the Eagles who look forward to eight out of ten players returning next year.

Girls Go to State

After a very successful season, Coach Deborah Russell's varsity girls' basketball team lost in the first round of the State playoffs to Laurence Manning. Our team had finished the season tied with Calhoun, but a loss in the finals of the conference tournament put us on the road to start the playoffs. LMA proved too much for our young team which graduates only one player, guard Retta Melton.

Despite this loss, the girls had every reason to be proud. Several of them gained individual honors at the close of the season. The team's leading scorer, Elizabeth Elledge was named All-Conference and All-Tournament. She was chosen to play in the State All-Star post season game. Senior Retta Melton was named All-Conference for her consistent play all season. Sophomore center Angel Kingsmore was also chosen All-Tournament. Joining Elizabeth Elledge to represent Richard Winn on the State All-Star team was Junior guard Gina Robinson.

Other players who saw plenty of action this year were Sophomore Rebekah Douglas, Freshman Ann Marie Burley, and Freshman Millie Mincey. Junior Janet Spencer and Sophomore Beth Douglass received valuable experience which will pay off in the future. Coach Russell was proud of the team's accomplishments this year and believes they will again be a contender next year.

This year the JV's had a 9-9 record and were the conference tournament runners-up. The competitiveness of the players and constant fan support account for their success. This is a group of young men with loads of class.

JV Girls Take Second

The Junior Varsity Girls went into the conference tournament ranked third in the conference. They defeated Robert E. Lee in the first game and then lost to Calhoun in the championship game. The team finished a strong second for the year in the conference.

For some of the girls it was their first year playing basketball. The team ranged in grade from sixth up to the ninth. Most of the girls had valuable playing time that helped them gain the experience they will need in future seasons.

The two leading scorers for the season were Ashlee Spires and Keleigh Hughes. Also contributing to the team were Michele Davis, Emily Black, Jacqueline Case, Hannah Rambo, and Nicki Humphries. Defense also played an important role in the JV Girls' record of 10-7. The team was coached by Deborah Russell who stressed the fundamentals of ball-handling and team play. Coach Russell was very proud of the effort and the improvements shown by her team.

The Student Council has become an active organization not only in the school but also in the South Carolina Independent School Association. Our group was represented at the SCISSA general meeting and the fall convention. Also as a part of SCISSA, the Student Council participated in "Student Exchange Week" with Washington Avenue Christian School. This program allowed several students from each school to attend classes at their partner schools.

At RWA the Student Council sponsored "Safety Town" for grades K-3 on November 17. "Safety Town" is a program presented by the Missing Persons Information Center. The program tells children what to do in the event they are separated from their parents at busy places. The council also sold carnations and balloons for Valentine's Day and started the Student of the Month program. They attended the Spring SCISSA convention at Myrtle Beach where several of our students ran for a state office.

The Student Council worked hard toward the goal of being the school's most successful student government ever.

We Enjoy Making Music All Day Long

The Music Department was quite busy this school year. On September 17, the high school chorus participated in the Fairfield County celebration of the bicentennial of the Constitution on the court house steps. The following week they performed at the State House in Columbia for SCISSA.

At Christmas all of the lower school, the Middle School Chorus, the Bell Choir, and the High School Chorus presented programs for the school and community.

The Second Graders were invited to sing for the Rotary Club at Thanksgiving, and the Fourth and Fifth Graders performed for the Fairfield County Arts Council.

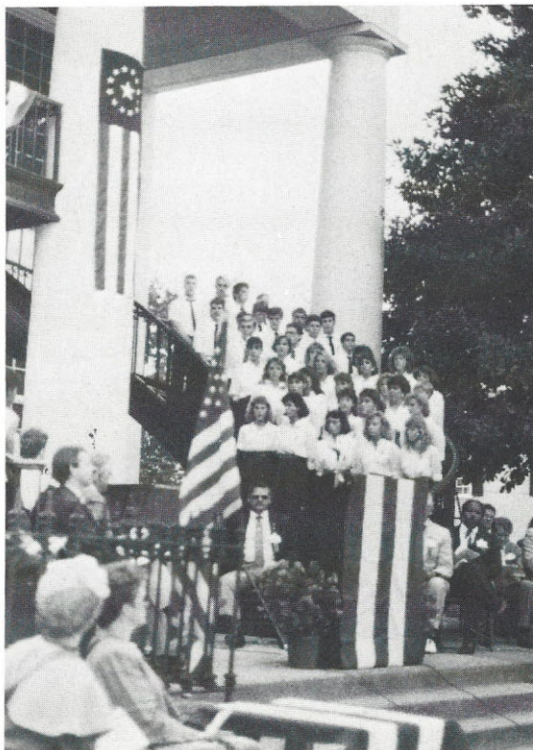

The highlight of the year for the High School Chorus was their annual concert tour in the spring.

Books Aren't Everything

Although they stress academics, the Junior and Senior Beta Clubs are service oriented. They have been involved in helping teachers, tutoring other students, and helping with the Regional Spelling Bee. In addition, Betas sent greetings to overseas servicemen at Christmas and Valentine's.

To recognize achievement, the Beta Clubs held the annual Academic Awards banquet in September where students with the highest average in specific classes were honored. New club members were inducted at this time as well as during a special induction service in February.

The French Club Officers are Carla Lewis, Vice-President; Ann Marie Burley, Treasurer; Emily Black, Secretary; Beth Douglass, President.

In the Spring the French Club went on a trip to New Orleans which is referred to as the Paris of the U.S. Its French influence is brought out in the cuisine, names of places, and various other aspects.

The students visited the Quartier Francaise and ate in French restaurants where they used the French they had learned to order from the menus. Also, the students cruised on a riverboat down the Mississippi observing the French heritage and customs in Louisiana.

Individuals

Count

Mrs. Jane Hawkins teaches four year old kindergarten. She thinks RWA shows class by the way parents support their students.

Mrs. Martha Martin teaches kindergarten and senses that students and parents pulling together add class to RWA.

Mrs. Pam Rambo teaches kindergarten and is convinced that proper dress at all occasions reflects the class of Richard Winn.

Mrs. Betty Harden, who teaches first grade, feels that recognition of student achievement adds class to our school.

Mrs. Martha Ladd teaches math and spelling to third, fourth, and fifth graders. She has always felt that the student body and faculty are unique and close knit and contribute to the superior learning environment.

Mrs. Amy Nunn teaches first grade, and she feels that by the close-knit family atmosphere of RWA shows class.

Mrs. Dennie Hamilton teaches Language Arts to third, fourth, and fifth graders. She agrees RWA shows class in the way parents support their students.

All Skills Stressed

Mrs. Mary Jane Wright teaches math and computer science. She thinks that friendliness among the students at RWA promotes class.

Lower school teachers know the importance of spending time with their students. Getting to know them and guiding their social growth is as important as teaching academic subjects. These teachers stress manners, respect for each other and school property, and getting along with others. They help develop the whole child.

Students Visit Washington, D.C.

The study of our nation's history took on greater meaning to middle school students this year when they went on a 3-day trip to Washington, D.C. in April. They visited numerous points of interest, participated in a wreath laying service at the tomb of The Unknown Soldier, and did rubbings of names of relatives at the Vietnam Memorial.

by Beth Douglass

Miss Hellen Rexrode teaches social studies and science to 3rd, 4th, and 5th graders whose high expectations she believes show class.

Mrs. Joy Taylor teaches math and computer science. She thinks that friendliness among the students at Richard Winn promotes class.

Miss Deborah Russell teaches science and physical education to 6th, 7th, and 9th graders. She feels that the support from the parents of athletes adds class to Richard Winn.

Mrs. Lea Weed teaches English and history to 6th and 7th graders. She believes that the way the students show they care about themselves and their education reflects a sense of class at RWA.

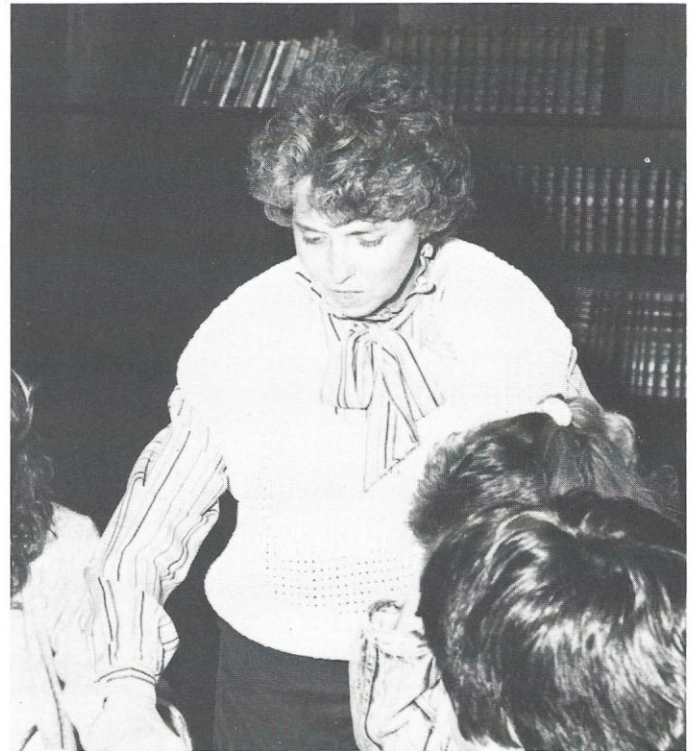

Humanities in Spotlight

The English Department began a new enrichment program this year to stress the humanities. In this program students learned more about the arts by going to several live performances. In the spring a number of the humanities students went on a trip to Washington, D.C. where they visited the National Art Museum and the National Cathedral as well as other points of interest.

by Elliott Nicholson and Beth Douglass

Mrs. Ellen Nicholson teaches music, directs choruses, and teaches a class of literature. She is impressed with the way students work hard to accomplish their goals.

Mrs. Selwyn Turner, who teaches English, feels that a true desire to learn adds class to Richard Winn.

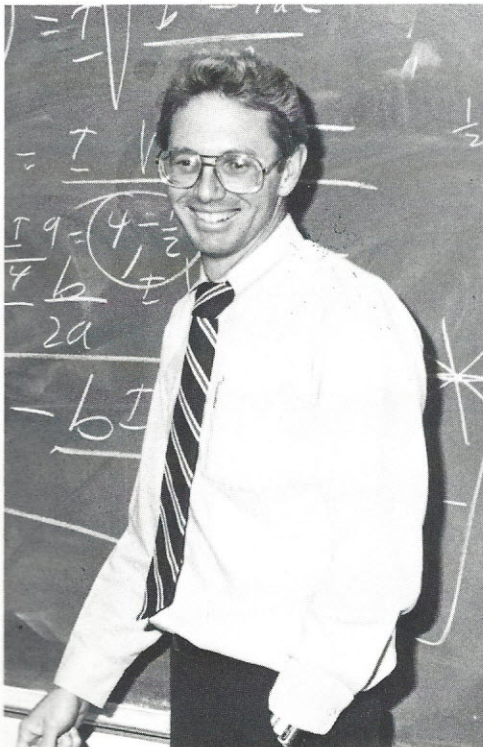

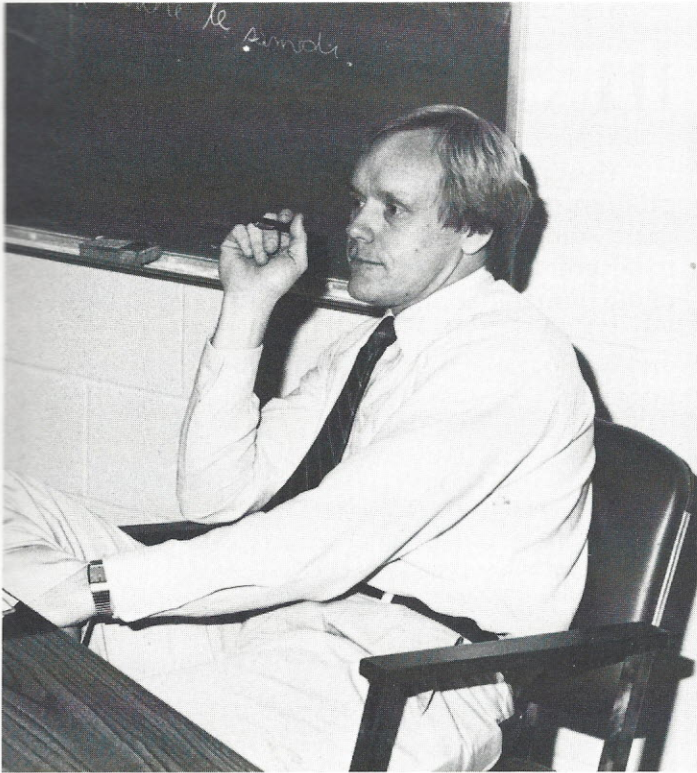

Mrs. Caro Lynn Murray teaches English, World History, and Writing and Speech. She thinks that Richard Winn students show class by the way they conduct themselves on school trips and at athletic contests.

Mrs. Vicki Robinson, who teaches French and English, senses that pride is a mark of class at RWA.

Mrs. Mary Lou Norton Billingsly, who teaches high school sciences is impressed by sincere feelings students all have for each other.

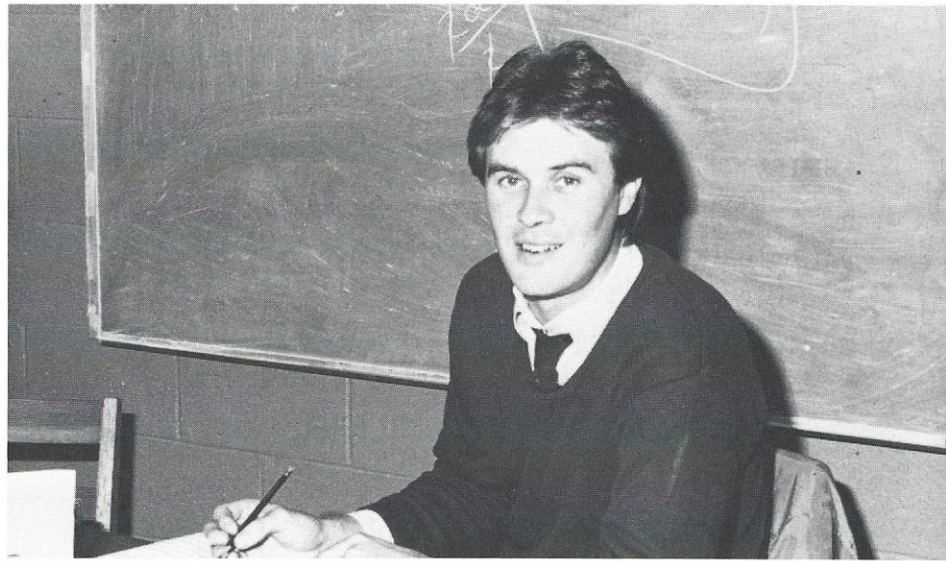

Assistant Headmaster Mike Robinson stays busy teaching social studies and coaching basketball and golf in addition to his other duties.

Mr. John McSwain, who teaches math and science, feels that the honesty of the students is a plus to RWA's image.

Mr. Randy Stogner teaches Algebra I, II, III, and Geometry. He believes that the appearance of school facilities shows the class of RWA.

Mr. David Porter teaches Driver's Ed., Economics/Government, and Business Math in addition to coaching football. He thinks that the achievements of students exemplify class.

Taylor Says RWA Stands Out

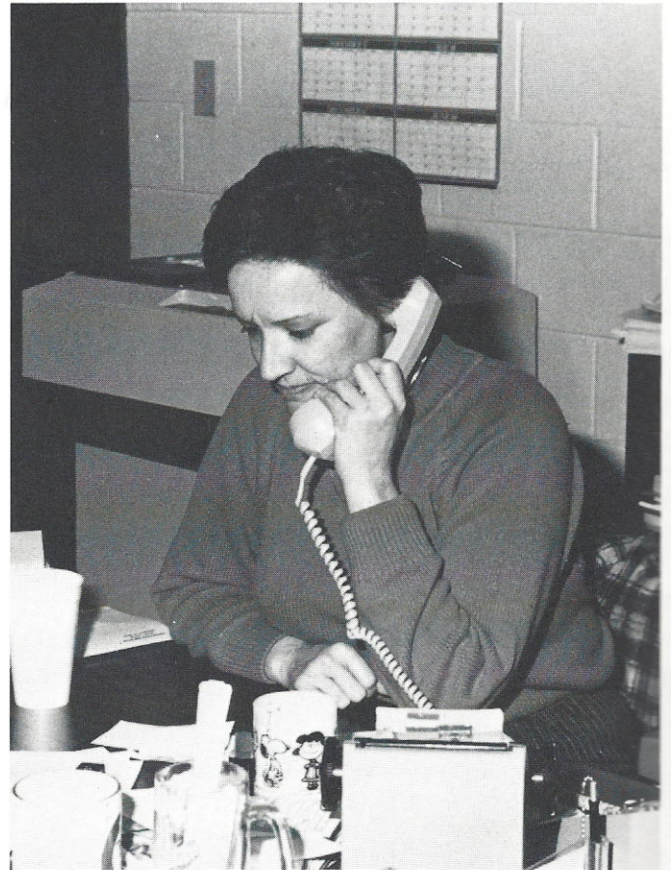

Mr. F. Carroll Taylor has served Richard Winn Academy as Headmaster for ten years.

Mr. F. Carroll Taylor is very proud of Richard Winn Academy. Although all private schools are striving for the same goals of preparing students for college, he feels that a better facility, more pride, and a conscientious staff set us apart.

Mr. Taylor further believes that the young people who have come through Richard Winn and have continued their education to become respectable citizens make all the effort worth it. Another aspect that he believes adds class to RWA is the impression our students give to others when we participate in sports events, chorus trips, bees, etc.

by Elliott Nicholson

Ms. Bobbi Stevenson teaches typing and is school secretary. She thinks that the self-discipline of the students adds class to Richard Winn.

As they entered school this year, these 4-year-old Kindergartners gave no thought to the fact that they will graduate from high school in the year 2001. Christmas Means Sharing Five Year Kindergartners made Christmas really special by sharing their love and excitement with others. They worked hard to learn songs to sing for parents and friends as Mrs. Ellen Nicholson and their teachers worked with them.

Mrs. Rambo's class also made the holiday memorable for a South American child to whom they sent a box of special items they contributed.

FIRST GRADERS WRITE OWN CONSTITUTION

These first graders wrote their own constitution while celebrating the anniversary of the American Constitution. They enjoyed sharing their contribution by placing a copy outside their classroom for everyone to see.

These youngsters thought that good citizenship included taking care of school property, being nice to one another, and playing safely.

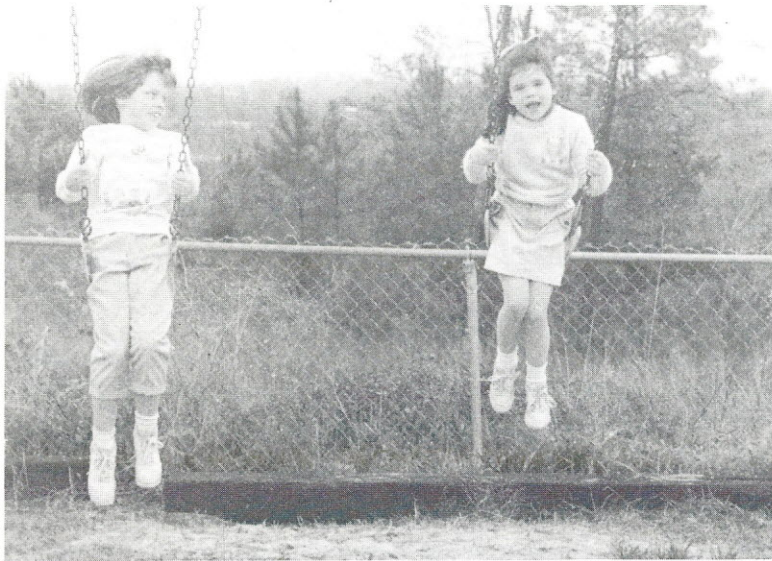

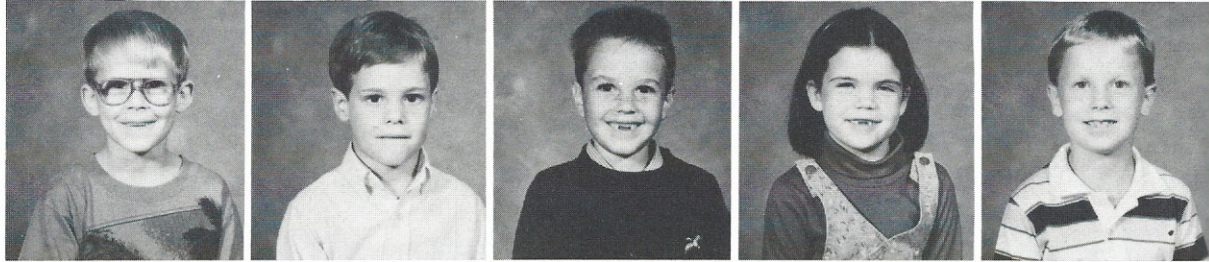

After they finished writing it, the First Graders signed their names to make their constitution official.

The third grade has participated in many things in and out of school this year. In December the third grade went to see the movie Tom Sawyer. They also participated in Mrs. Martha Ladd's art class where they made paper plate pumpkins, clay ornaments, and witch mobiles for Halloween and paper turkeys for Thanksgiving. Before Christmas the third graders made Christmas tree ornaments, Santa Claus calendars, and Christmas snow shows which are paper weights made out of baby food jars with a snow scene inside. All of these activities kept the third graders busy during the 1987-1988 school year.

Fourth Graders Give Opinions

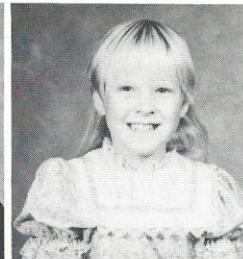

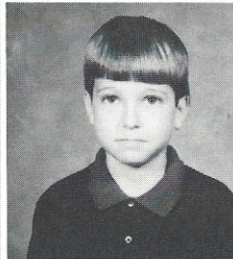

The fourth grade has some good points and some bad points according to several fourth graders polled. Surprisingly, most of them had a quick answer to what they liked the best about the fourth grade except Jake Stone who replied "Nothing!" Daniel Timms liked having three teachers and said that fourth grade wasn't as hard as the third grade was. Eric White enjoyed studying planets under Ms. Hellen Rexrode. Gini Startzman said that she enjoyed participation in the drawing and coloring contests and going to see the movie Tom Sawyer in Columbia.

When asked what they disliked about the fourth grade, McCullough Caldwell and Daniel Timms both thought they had too much homework. Eric White, Jake Stone, and Daniel Timms all agreed that they didn't like staying in during recess as punishment for talking. Gini Startzman had no dislikes about the fourth grade. She said "Everything is great! I love the fourth grade."

The Fifth Grade got right down to work at the beginning of the school year. They read several books including The Magic Coin and The Wright Brother's at Kitty Hawk. They even found time in their busy schedule to go to Columbia on a field trip to see the movie Tom Sawyer.

Their teachers - Mrs. Martha Ladd (math and spelling), Ms. Hel-

Tom Sawyer Makes Hit

The sixth grade enjoyed reading The Adventures of Tom Sawyer in Mrs. Lea Weed's class. After reading this adventurous tale, they visited a movie theater in Columbia to see this famous story performed on the screen. This was a real learning experience for them. Not only did they have fun reading the book, but also making a day of excitement in Columbia. After the movie, the sixth grade ate pizza or hamburgers before returning to school.

Seventh Graders Make History

The Seventh Grade American History teacher, Mrs. Lea Weed, constantly found ways to make the course more interesting for her students. She involved the students in projects, brought in speakers, and took the class on field trips.

Early in the year, history came alive when the students made mobiles depicting scenes from the Revolutionary War period. Later, after a study of local government, Sheriff Bubba Montgomery came to speak to the class. The class also went on a trip to the Fairfield County Museum. The ultimate field trip was taken in April when the class and some parents spent three days in Washington, D.C.

A highlight of the year came when the class became a part of Project Business. In this special program sponsored by the business community, Ms. Ann Griffin of Mack Trucks, taught the class about the American economic system. The classes were held once a week for six weeks and ended with a field trip to the truck plant.

Freshman Aids Needy Family

Freshman Kathy Leitner had a unique experience last summer. As a part of Confrontation Point Ministries, she joined other youth in a special project to add a room to a needy family's cabin in the Tennessee mountains.

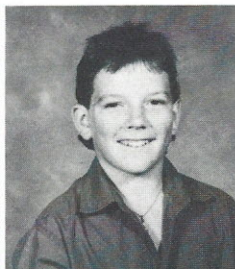

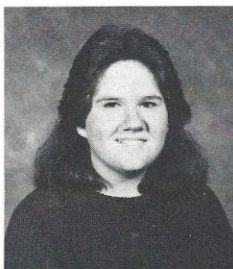

In July the group of young people camped for six days where they were divided into groups that took turns cooking, cleaning up the campsite, and planning worship services. When they were not working, the teenagers went swimming, hiking, and even repelling off a natural rock bridge. Kathy hopes to participate again in a similar project. Not only did she feel that she had done something worthwhile to help others, but she really enjoyed the close friendships made last summer.

The tenth grade World History class chose a special project at Christmas to show their concern for less fortunate people in other parts of the world. Through the Friends of the Americas Program, they packed a box designated for a teenage girl to be sent to South America.

The package will be delivered to the chosen girl by an American citizen who represents the organization. The recipient may be a disaster victim or one of the many homeless who are in need of aid.

Necessities such as clothes, candles, and food were included in the package. The Sophomores especially enjoyed selecting the luxury items to pack - hair ribbons, a stuffed animal, and a Christmas card signed by each class member.

Junior Year Is Busy One

We Juniors had our hands full this year with academics and numerous extra-curricular activities. In addition to trying to raise enough money to sponsor a super prom, we were active participants in sports, clubs, and Student Council projects.

If that wasn't enough, the teachers kept pouring work on us as if there would be no tomorrow. Mr. John McSwain's high expectations of his chemistry and Algebra III students put pressure on us and made us old before our time. Writing the term paper for U.S. History was no breeze either. Mrs. Murray couldn't understand why we didn't have time to read five long novels along with all of our other work. Mr. Stogner never let up on the homework or the pop tests. Mrs. Billingsly required all of those journal reports month after month after month.

It was pretty evident to us that these teachers sometimes got their priorities mixed up!

Juniors Profit with Games

In the fall, the class participated in Family Day at Drawdy Park. They provided a football toss in which prizes were awarded to the lucky winners. Later that day a dart throw was added to the fun. Between customers the Juniors tried to show their expertise in throwing the football. This game was a big hit, and the Juniors made a nice profit on this project.

At homecoming the Juniors were again busy. They sponsored the traditional dance after the football game. Seniors Todd Childers and Scott Peak helped out by providing the sound system and acting as DJ's.

During the winter months the class continued to add money to the treasury with several other projects. A candy-filled pumpkin at Halloween and a box of candy at Valentine were raffled as well as a stereo at Christmas.

All of these projects helped make "The Time of Our Life" a reality at the Prom where Formula 7 entertained.

Class of 1988: A Winning Team

Lori Atkerson believes that where she lays her head isn't as important as just being with her friends at the beach.

The Seniors of Richard Winn Academy are winners! Almost everyone has set goals for the future, and we all are determined to meet them; but, more importantly, we have developed winning friendships that will last a lifetime.

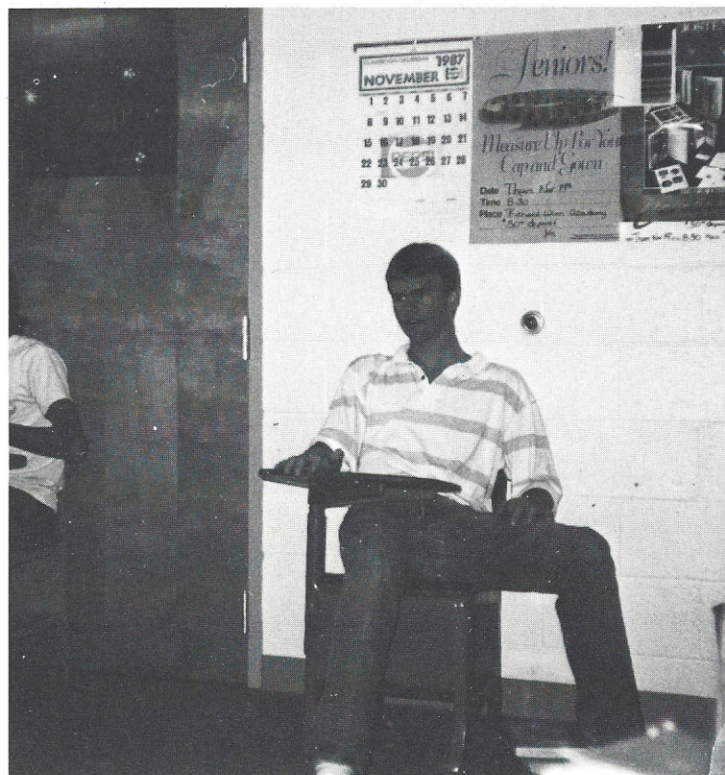

Most of us have seen Richard Winn rise to the great institution that it is today. We all shared tears when we saw it fall in the 1984 tornado. We all thought, "I was there just four hours ago." Sharing the sad times and the fun times at Camp La Vida and the Old Armory made us closer. I guess in a way the tornado was good for us because that's when we became the close family of friends we are today.

We have some great memories of our years here- our dreams, our schemes, our plans, and our secrets. We have definitely made our mark on Richard Winn. No matter how smart, how athletic, or how rebellious we all may be, we are very glad to be the class with character, and we will cherish our memories. Our achieving may not all be trophies and awards, but our own individual qualities and friendships make us winners.

by Lori Atkerson

Getting to leave school for lunch is a Senior privilege that Mack Johnson makes the most of. As long as they keep their grades up, the Seniors have thirty minutes to make a quick trip for fast food.

Joe Bierer realizes that he has gone over his safe debt load, and he wonders what he is going to give up to meet his budget. Calculating a safe debt load is one of the principles that Seniors learn in Economics, a class all Seniors are required to take.

Angi Atkerson, Leigh Richardson, Teri Barefield, Rose Owens, and Jenni Bass look over items at the Senior yard sale.

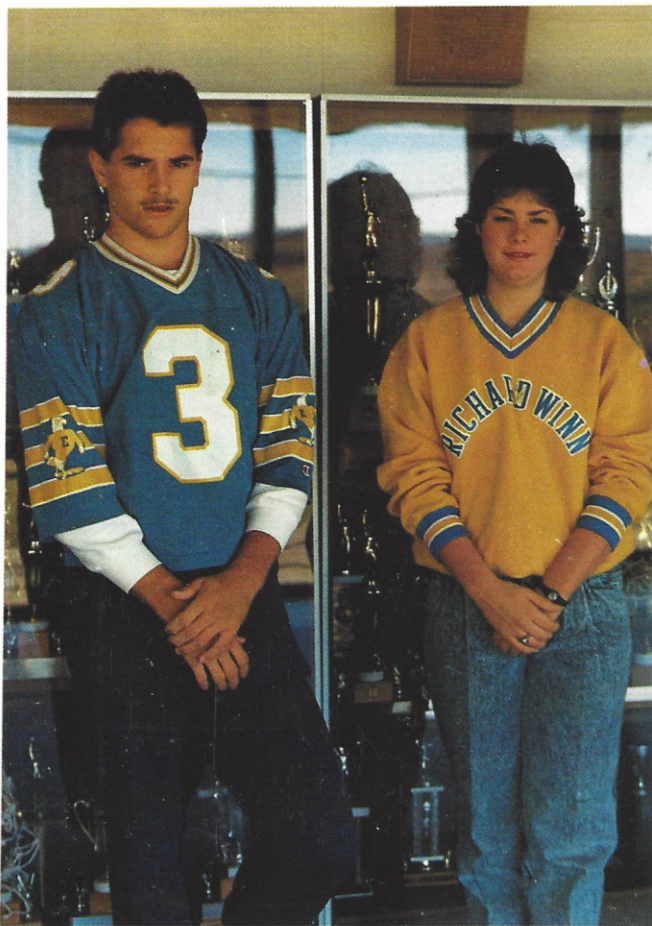

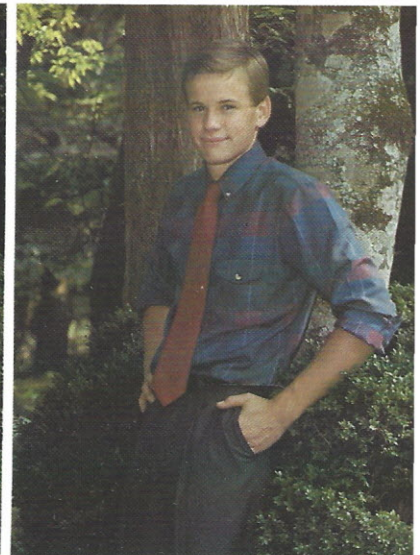

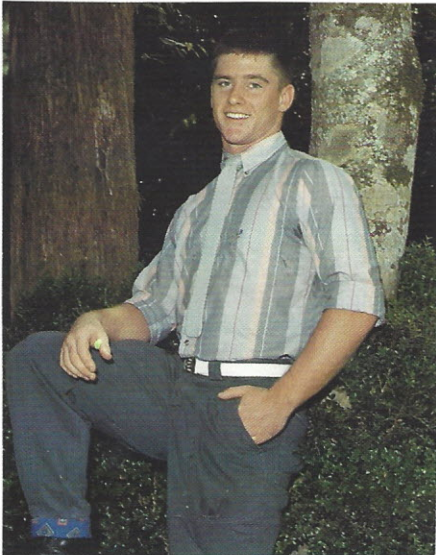

Recuperating from a football injury, Paul Gardner is cheered by a "Country Bear," a gift from some of his friends. Like most teenage girls, Angi Atkerson finds that there is something special about having a teddy bear for a friend.

One Last Game To Remember

My friends and I were all excited about the last football game of our Senior year at Richard Winn. We thought we'd have one last big win that we would never forget. However, winning or losing became the least of our worries.

During the second quarter of the game at Jefferson Davis, we were winning seven to nothing when suddenly I heard unusual yelling on the football field. Someone shouted "Paul is hurt!" For a minute no one said a word. We were all in shock. Then people started running out on the field and motioning for the ambulance. My heart dropped to my knees as I remembered how excited Paul Gardner and the other football players had been about the game. In about ten minutes he was in the ambulance. Still not a word had been spoken in the crowd. I could see the worry on the faces of the other football players. Later that night we found out that Paul Gardner had a compound fracture in his left leg and would go to surgery as soon as possible. The other players told us that Paul had joked "I'm glad they're filming this; I wouldn't want to do this again." He didn't need to worry because we would never forget that night.

Participating in two sports each Paul Gardner and Retta Melton are MOST ATHLETIC in the class. Both are team leaders and outstanding players.

Seniors Earn Recognition

David Goude-lock, Todd Childers, Paul Gardner, Mack Johnson, Brad Brantley, David Scott, and Paul Patrick were named All-Conference football players. Goude-lock, Childers, Gardner, and Scott were selected to participate in the State All-Star game held at Orangeburg Prep. Their head coach Ernie Hughes was named Conference Coach of the Year.

Brandon Propst was chosen a cadet for the Police Academy and spent a week learning about law enforcement last summer.

Holding the highest academic rankings in the class, Leigh Richardson, Rose Owens, Teri Barefield, Pam Smith, Allyson Sanders, and Jan Murray served as Junior Marshals at 1987 graduation.

Brad Brantley, Allyson Sanders, Teri Barefield (alternate), and Eric Robinson represented Richard Winn at Boys' State and Girls' State. This program stresses citizenship and leadership.

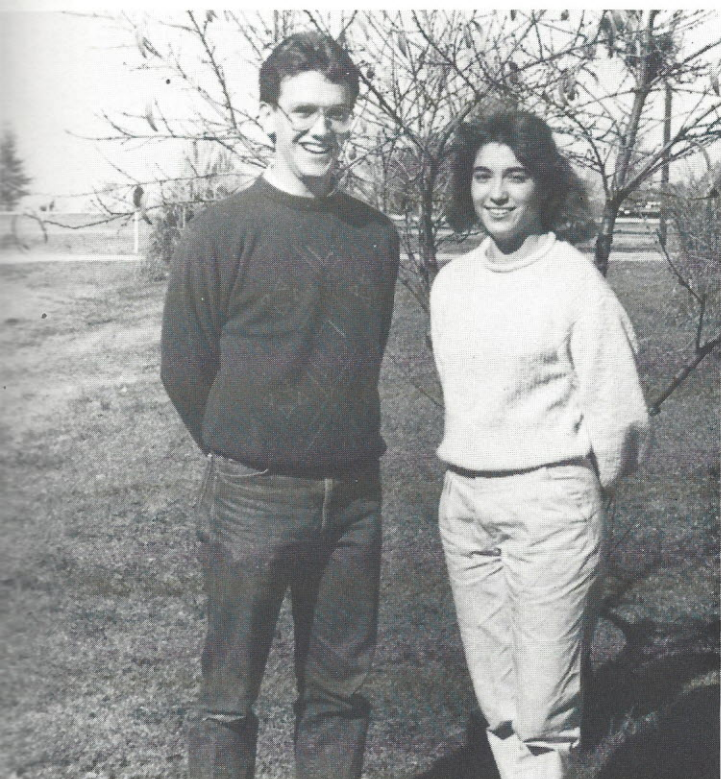

Jan Murray and Teri Barefield received individual honors. Essay contest winner Jan represented Fairfield, Chester, and Kershaw counties at the Rural Youth Tour of Washington, D.C. She was also first runner-up in the State WIRE Essay Contest. Teri was elected to receive the DAR Award and participated in their Scholarship Essay Contest. Teri was also an All-Conference Softball Player.

College Scholars

College Scholars must have high academic averages and good SAT scores which qualify them for scholarships given by the respective colleges. Pictured above are (front) Pam Smith, Leigh Richardson, Rose Owens, Jan Murray, (back) Scott Peak, Allyson Sanders, Brad Brantley, and Greg Castles. They were named scholars to various colleges including Columbia College, Erskine College, The Citadel, Furman University, Presbyterian College, and Limestone College.

Eric Robinson and Fran Jolly went to Youth Conservation Convention and Farm Bureau Leadership Conference at Clemson last summer.

Setting high goals and working to make them come true are qualities which make Scott Peak and Allyson Sanders the MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED.

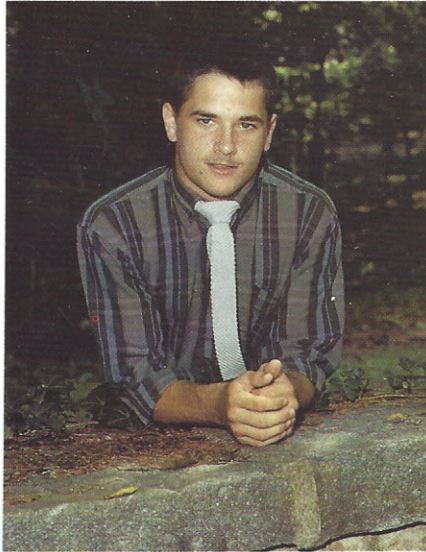

Always finding humor in any situation, Angi Atkerson and Brandon Propst are Seniors with the WITTIEST personalities.

Senior Hits The Airwaves

Ashley Wilson has been working for the local radio station, WINF, since April 1987. The idea of being a disc jockey had never occurred to him until station owner Harvey Driggers called Richard Winn looking for someone to work part time. After about two months at the station, Ashley was given his own program playing country music hits for five hours a day.

Ashley really enjoys his job and even admits that country music is "beginning to grow on me." During his time on the air he sits in a room covered with posters of country music stars. In front of him is a table full of switches and knobs for playing records which are coded for easy selection. In addition to providing music for a 22-mile radius of Winnsboro, Ashley reads over twenty commercials a day. This senior seems to be a natural for this unique job and plans to study mass communications in college. So, one day in the not-too-distant future, that familiar voice heard on the top FM station may be none other than Richard Winn's own Ashley Wilson. by Allen Mattox Color coded record jackets make selection quick and easy for Ashley Wilson as he plays country music on WINF. His smooth, deep voice make him DJ material.

A Day in Boy's Life

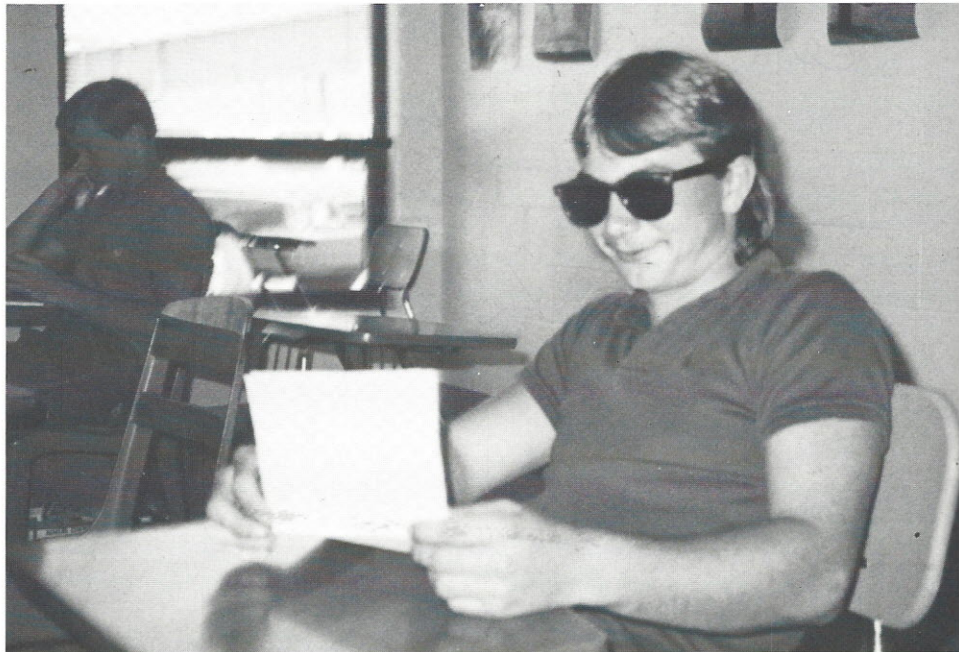

Allen Mattox was surprised that he had to wear a yellow chicken hat when he was chosen to be an extra in the movie Boy's Life. He was chosen to be in the movie after his mother filled out a card with his description and provided picture for the people selecting the movie's extras.

A few weeks after applying, the wardrobe manager called Allen to come to her office to try on clothes. Later Allen was sent to Drakes Duck-In Restaurant in Columbia where a scene from the movie was being filmed. In this scene, Allen had to sit at a table in the background and goof off with the waitresses. Along with the chicken hat that had a beak and a red fur ball on top, Allen also wore faded blue jeans, old tennis shoes, and a worn-out shirt. Allen said that it was exciting, but he felt a little dumb in the chicken hat.

Greg Castles and David Scott assist Todd Childers in doing an outline for extra credit in Economics before homeroom.

Movie star, Allen Mattox, "chills out" while he reviews his script for the movie Boy's Life in which he appeared in two scenes.

Pain Is Gain for Goudelock

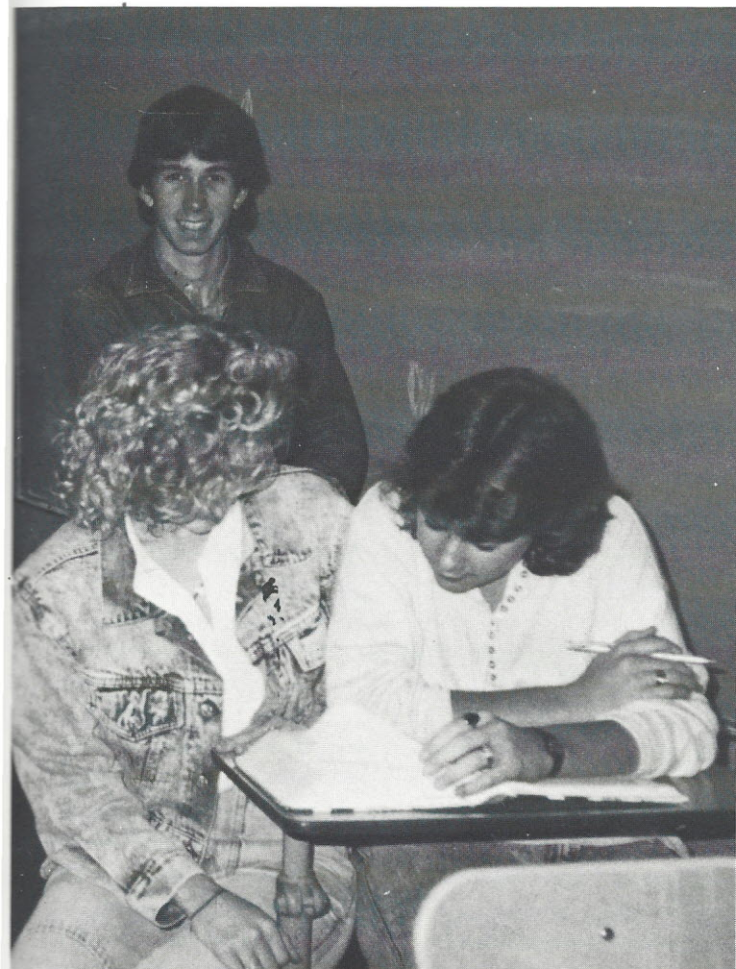

Does bodybuilding really work? Ask David Goudelock. Four years ago people wouldn't have believed that David would be a great football player. However, he has been named All-Conference twice and All-State. He has accomplished this through weight lifting.

David started lifting weights in the ninth grade. Three years ago he could bench press only 100 pounds; now, he presses 240, which is almost twice his weight. He has grown two inches taller and has gained twenty-five pounds. His exercise routine requires no special diet, and David does not take vitamins, but he has taken amino acids. Not only does David lift weights to better himself in football, but to improve his appearance. This physical accomplishment has carried over into his personal life and has given him self-confidence.

Today, David continues to lift weights three days a week for an hour and a half because he plans to continue football in college. However, he recommends weight lifting to everyone because he sees the benefits it has given him athletically and personally.

by Teri Barefield

Weight lifting has really paid off for David Goudelock who has developed his body and talents to become an All-Conference and All-State football player.

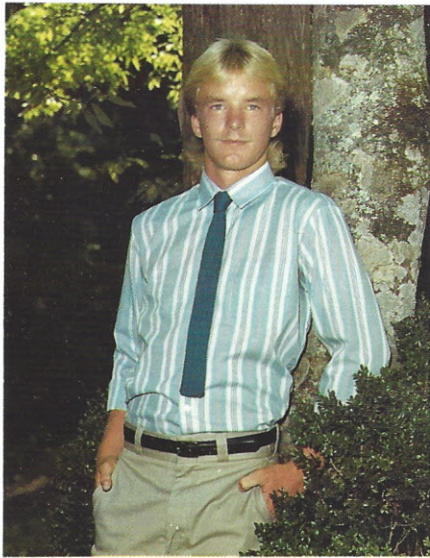

Lester Robinson, Tara Gunn, and Retta Melton, expecting a pop test, review a scene from Macbeth.

Officers Lead Active Class

Officers of The Class of 1988 are Jan Murray (Secretary), Rhett Melton (President), Teri Barefield (Treasurer), Retta Melton (Vice-President), and Pam Smith (Secretary). They organized fund-raising projects and kept all records for the class. In addition, the officers worked with their sponsor Mrs. Murray in planning the Senior cruise which consisted of four nights and five days in the Caribbean.

Melton Saddles Up

Rhett Melton, a senior, has chosen horses as his hobby. He competes locally in various races and shows. The type of racing Rhett mostly does is barrel-racing. He has competed in the S.C. State Fair where he placed second and fourth.

This is the third year that Rhett has been involved in barrel-racing competition, which is a rodeo sport where a horse is ridden around a clover-leaf pattern, and the winner is determined by the one who has the fastest time. Penalties, such as knocking over a barrel, can cause a deduction of five seconds from the official time.

Barrel-racing takes time, dedication, and money. Rhett spends time every day feeding and exercising his four-year-old quarter-horse, Sassy. In order to pay for some of the expenses involved, Rhett gives riding lessons to children after school.

In addition to barrel-racing, Rhett is interested in other activities that involve horses. Some of these activities include participating in various horse shows, and helping Ellen Acres provide horses for different movies.

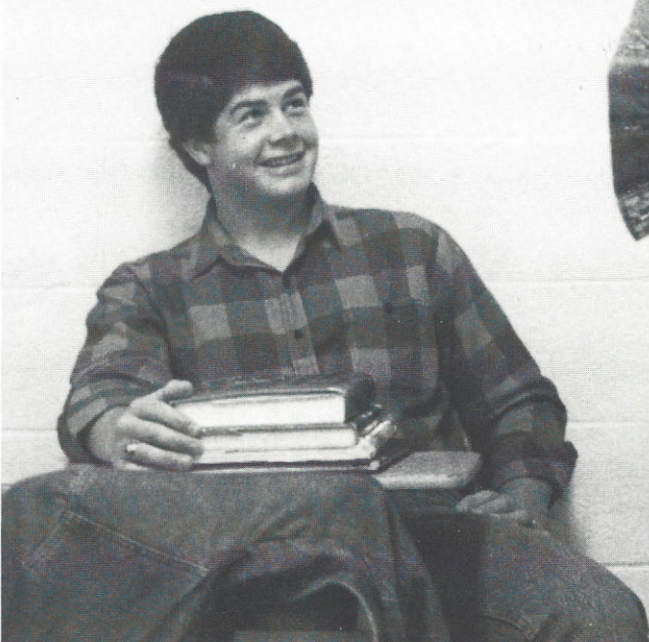

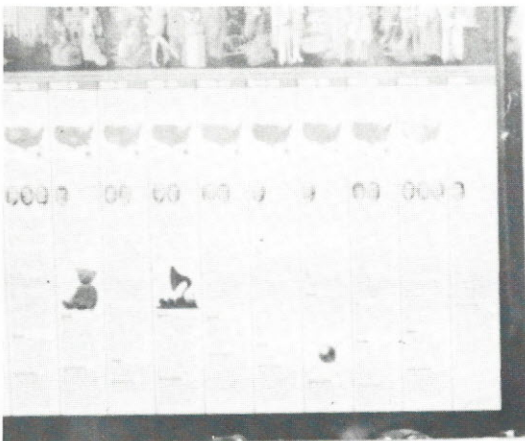

Rhett receives his information about horse shows and races primarily by mail. He says it is not much trouble to prepare for these events if you take good care of your horse and familiarize it with the different racing techniques.

Rhett does not plan to pursue a career in racing. He says, "It is just a hobby that I enjoy a lot."

by Angi Atkerson and Fran Jolly

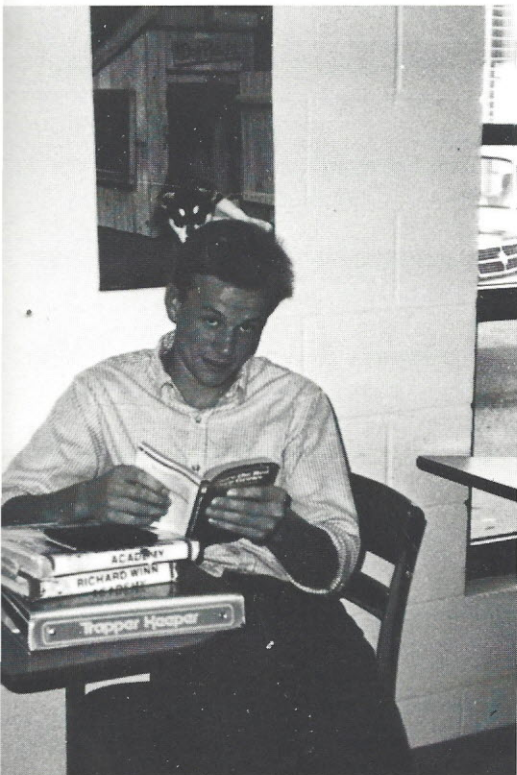

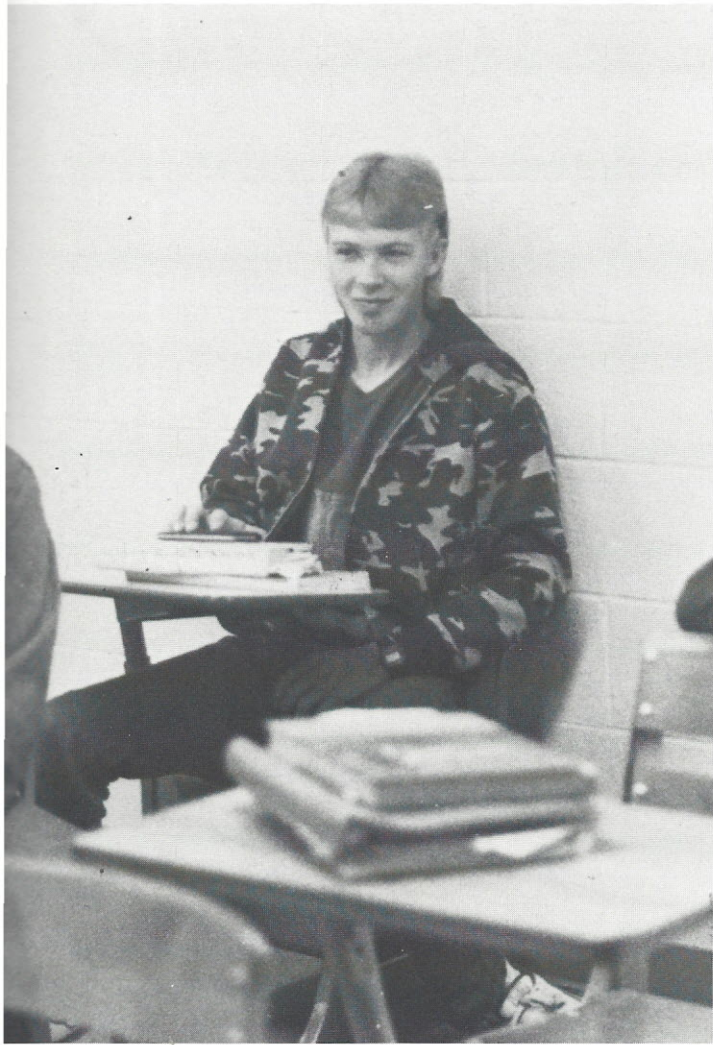

Famous barrel-racer, Rhett Melton, goes for a more comfortable ride after posting second and fourth place finishes in the State Fair's races.

Waiting for Western Civilization class to begin, Ashley Wilson amuses Lawrence Hodge with his antics.

An avid deer-hunter, Sammie Castles has a good deal of camouflage in his wardrobe. He is really more comfortable in the woods than in the classroom.

Lori Atkerson remembers the good times she had at the beach every time she wears her favorite sweatshirt.

When he is not lifting weights, Greg Castles avoids boredom by reading during his free period.

Departing With Class

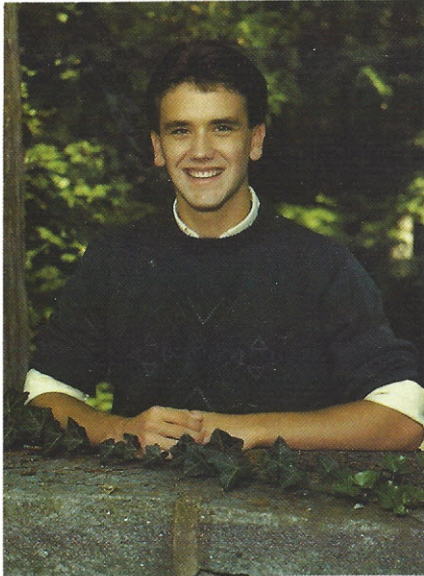

The Class of 1988 had a busy year trying to get enough credits to graduate, raising money for their Senior trip, preparing for the SAT, and applying to colleges. Although they were working hard to prepare for the future, they also had time to participate in school and community events. They also helped raise money for the school and remembered those less fortunate at Thanksgiving and Christmas. They surely showed their class.

“Wait don’t close this book; you’re not finished yet”. Without the help of the following businesses, this yearbook would not have been possible. The Aerie costs thousands of dollars to produce each year. If these establishments had not bought ads, this yearbook could have cost up to $50. However, due to their aid, the Aerie only costs $18.

The yearbook staff expresses their appreciation to all of the businesses who advertised and made this book possible. We hope you will, in turn, support them.

Cynthia Mazat, Lee Dixon, Richard Branham and other members of the Class of 1987 celebrate immediately after graduation.

With their bus decorated and their bags loaded, these graduates are ready to get on their way to the Bahamas to do some real celebrating!

Philip Rambo gives brother Jonathan Rambo an excited hug knowing that his turn to graduate is only one year off.

Enjoying one of the best proms ever, Juniors, Seniors, and guests dance to the music of A Rare Experience! Mr. Taylor added to the fun by giving these participants a school holiday the next day.

Robin Clinton, Perry Mattox, Danielle Dunn, Angi Atkerson, Lee Cunningham, Eddie Maddox, and Gina Kelly made to most of the Spring Chorus Tour by swimming in the motel pool and hanging around with their friends.

Male Chorus members entertain during the Miss RWA Beauty Pageant. A special treat for the audience was an appearance by "Dolly."

Fran Jolly Wins Miss RWA

A Junior, Fran Jolly, was selected Miss RWA 1987 after twenty-seven girls competed in formal and casual wear. Abby Cathcart, last year's winner, crowned Fran who was presented with roses by Mr. F. Carroll Taylor.

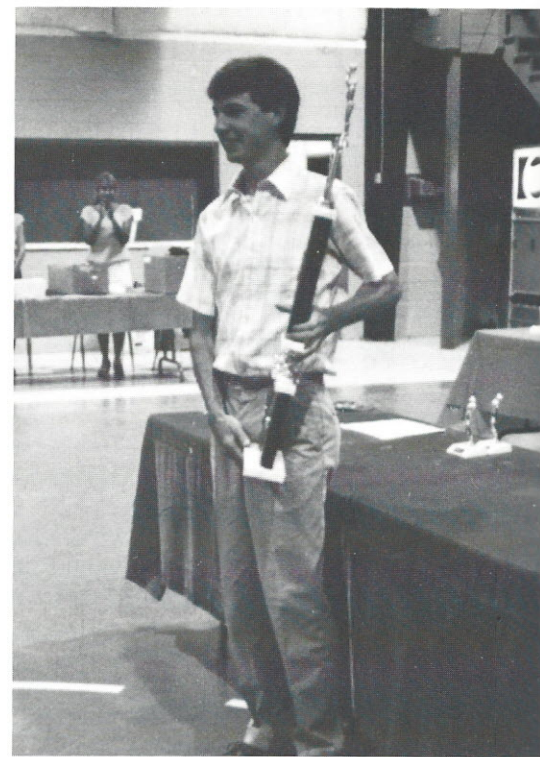

Pam Craft, chosen Miss Sub-Freshman, and Elliott Nicholson, chosen Miss Freshman, beam at the audience after accepting their roses.

Gina Robinson, Allyson Sanders, and Hannah Phillips were selected Miss Sophomore, Miss Junior, and Miss Senior, respectively. They wait expectantly for Miss RWA to be named.

At the Athletic Banquet, sponsored in May by the Booster Club, Senior Bob Barnett won the coveted Stewart Harmon Award.

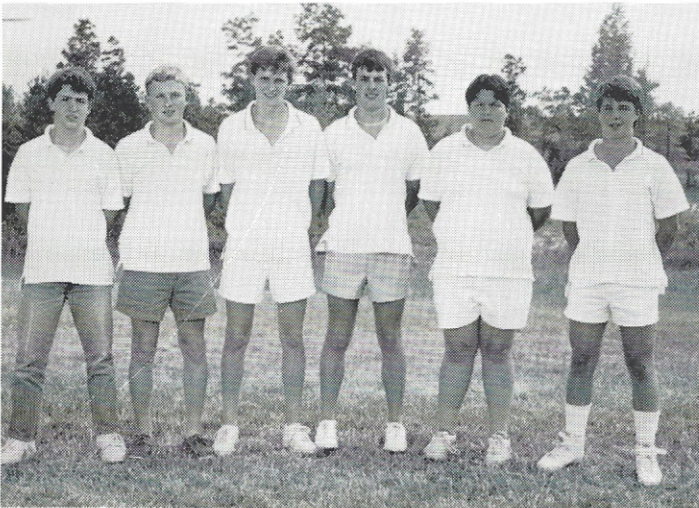

The Eagle Award for Boys' Basketball was proudly accepted by Senior Will Black.

Class Favorites

The 1988 Aerie Staff took a poll with the Class of '88 to find out about their favorite pastimes, favorite people, and even their advice to the underclassmen. In this poll I found that the Seniors love to watch TV, especially the soaps and the comedy shows, and that most of them spend our weekends with their friends.

Also many Seniors enjoy eating junkfood, especially pizza and french fries. The favorite movie by far is Dirty Dancing, which probably was chosen because of the girls' fantasy boyfriend, Patrick Swayze, and the favorite singing group is the Eagles.

The advice for the underclassmen is to study, study, study and to make the most of the years at Richard Winn - they won't last long.

Recording a Memorable Year

The job of recording this school year began last summer when Leigh Richardson, sponsor Mrs. Caro Lynn Murray, and I went to yearbook workshop at Wofford College. There we began planning, drawing layouts, writing copy, and working on our theme for this year's book. We chose Class Counts as our theme because we think that Richard Winn is made up of people who continually show their class by keeping their standards high when the popular thing to do is not to care so much. We believe that class still counts in today's world and that it does make a difference.

We wanted to produce a classy yearbook because our students deserve the best. For this reason we have made several changes to up-grade our book. We added more copy (stories), used more explicit captions (picture identifications), added an index, and produced almost all of our own pictures. Much of this was made possible by using a new computer that Leigh and I learned to use at yearbook workshop and then taught other staff members.

Producing this book has cost many hours of hard work, and I thank the staff for sacrificing their weekends when it was necessary. We hope this yearbook is pleasing to you our readers for that will make the hard work worthwhile.

Editor-in-Chief

Aerie Business Managers Leigh Richardson and Fran Jolly are responsible for keeping financial records and laying out the ad section.

Beth Douglass and Elliott Nicholson work together on the class and faculty sections.

Kay Gustafson and Aimee Price, the Junior Editors, create the Sports and Organizations sections.

Proofreading computer print-outs of pages is only one of Jan Murray's responsibilities as Editor-in-Chief.
