

Friends Count For the Class of 1990

Friendships make up a large part of the Senior class. Not only do they get along well, but they also possess individual friendships that mean a lot to them. They can always count on a special classmate to help see them through a trauma such as losing "Mr. Right" or helpig clean that prized deer. Special buddies from the Class of 1990 get together on the weekends to watch a movie, visit colleges, or ride through the big town of Winnboro. Whether there are two Seniors driving to Columbia, or an entire multitude talking in the halls before class, the Seniors enjoy their close friendship.

Bo Williams does not seem to believe the creative story he has just been told by Ben DuBard in their sixth period creative writing class.

Seeing just how long they can remain in the halls after the tardy bell, Brandon Marthers, John Spencer, and Hank Harrison wait for that dreaded call to enter the classroom.
