

Senior Priorities Are Important

Each group of Seniors experiences the same worries and frustrations. Before actually reaching the twelfth grade, all the fun and excitement outshines the hassles and the deadlines that are really a big part of being a Senior. Hard work in all classes, on college applications, and for the final SAT will definitely pay off in the end, but social events make concentration difficult. After spending countless hours with friends, hitting the books is hard, especially with the end so near. Preparation for college is a necessity, but these Seniors know making the most of this last year is also important.

by Beth Douglass

Carla Lewis smiles at the camera while waiting on her anatomy class to begin.

Jason Haynes looks thrilled to have his picture taken. The flash of the camera must have interrupted his train of thought.