Coming off an undefeated previous season, the 1991 junior varsity Eagles had "big shoes" to fill. Despite the loss of key players to the varsity squad, this year's team did a respectable job and ended the season with a record of 3 wins and 3 losses. Coached by Sam Copeland and assisted by Bill Melton, Billy Carter, and Richard Hodges, this group of young men gained much valuable experience and will be a "powerhouse" to be reckoned with in future seasons.

All of the fifteen member squad contributed — whether on the practice field or in a clutch game situation. Due to the team's small number, most of the boys played both ways — offense and defense — with little or no rest until the final horn sounded. Much credit and recognition should be given to this group for a "job well done" in representing RWA.
