

The 2:23 bell signals the end of another school day, but for most students, the day is hardly over. Sports practices and away games involve our athletes, but studying, homework, and tests keep everyone busy. Some students, with a little juggling, manage both homework and an after school job. If that isn't enough, there's always some class project, especially during Spirit Week and Homecoming. Juniors can be found throughout the school year raising money for the prom, while the seniors organize the Beauty Pageant and count the days until graduation. Although the student body is small in quantity, they make up for it in quality. The busy school year, together with high caliber students, makes for a student life that's "NOT JUST GOLD PLATED."
