

The Nationwide Insurance Prom Promise

I can have a positive influence on my life and the lives of my friends. My decisions are my own. And they are responsible ones. That's why I have decided to be safe and sober.

So whether or not I go to the prom, I promise not to use alcohol or other drugs. This is a promise I take seriously. It's one I intend to keep, for my sake and the sake of my friends.

Signed It. Mean It. Keeping It.

NO SKY'S THE LIMIT. Faculty members, students, parents, and friends join together on the football field in order to launch about 1,000 balloons. The balloon launch was the kick-off for the Prom Promise signing.

SIGN IT, KEEP IT! Senior Jason Robinson signs the promise not to drink or use drugs on prom night. Mrs. Vicki Robinson witnessed his signing for qualification purposes. Once again, RWA had 100% participation.

DOOMED. Charlie Hodges, defended by Skeet Clarkson, lowers his head defeatedly as the jury reads the verdict of guilty. The juniors organized a mock trial to emphasize the dangers involved in drinking and driving.

HAND GRAFFITI. Students trace their hands in order to make a continuous chain of hands that stretches along the main hall. The hands, hung by Julie Allen and Debbie McGinnis were another prom promise activity.

A BLOODY GLOVE? During the mock trial, lawyers Elinor and Westy Clarkson discover something mysterious. In Mrs. Clarkson's brief case was a bloody glove; isn't this evidence for the wrong trial?
