

PLAYING DRESS UP. Hannah Phillips and Sam Arnette volunteer to model the colonial clothes the Williamsburg tour guide hands them. The guide gave a very detailed and interesting talk about the different types of clothes worn during this period long ago.

WHAT NEXT? These sixth graders use the chance to rest while the Williamsburg guide gives them information about the various trials that took place in that very courtroom. Many of them returned there the next night to witness a play called "Cry Witch".

DISCOVERING

HISTORIC

VIRGINIA

TAKING A GOOD LOOK. Justin Swearingen, Berry Mattox, and Cory Shirley seem to be intrigued with the information the Jamestown guide is telling them about the ship. Replicas of the 3 ships that brought Jamestown settlers ashore were docked in the harbor. The students were able to explore and learn about the hardships the early settlers endured as they journeyed across the Atlantic.
