"I enjoy working with children and I can be with my own children during breaks. The greatest reward is seeing the excitement in the children as they read on their own."
—Robin Hazen

"For as long as I can remember, I wanted to teach young children. After two years of teaching, I've learned that receiving a smile can be more rewarding than an A!"
—Miriam Costenbader

"I wanted to work with children and help to make school enjoyable for them. My reward for teaching has been the love I've received from my students."
— Sharon Bell

"My third grade teacher was my inspiration to teach because she was a firm, but fair teacher who sincerely loved children. My reward is seeing children achieve."
— Melinda Brown
