"Early to bed, early to rise ...

... as long as I get 8 hours of sleep I'll be just fine." — Lacey Feaster

... Trim is hungry and that's no surprise." — Trim Cope

... must mean I'm dead. Do I still get a prize?" — Rebecca Timmerman

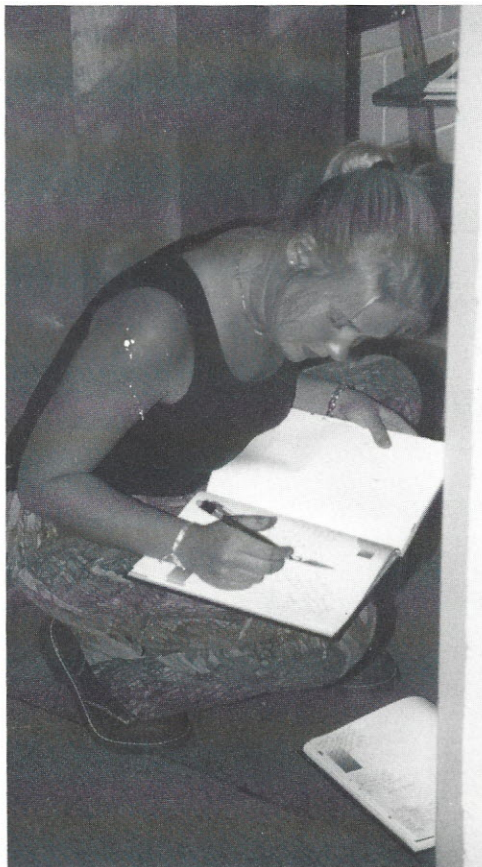

... gives me more time to drive." — Graham Simms

... makes for a lot of time that I could be sleeping. Voluntary 'early to rise' is not a habit that I often practice." — Kerri Varnadore

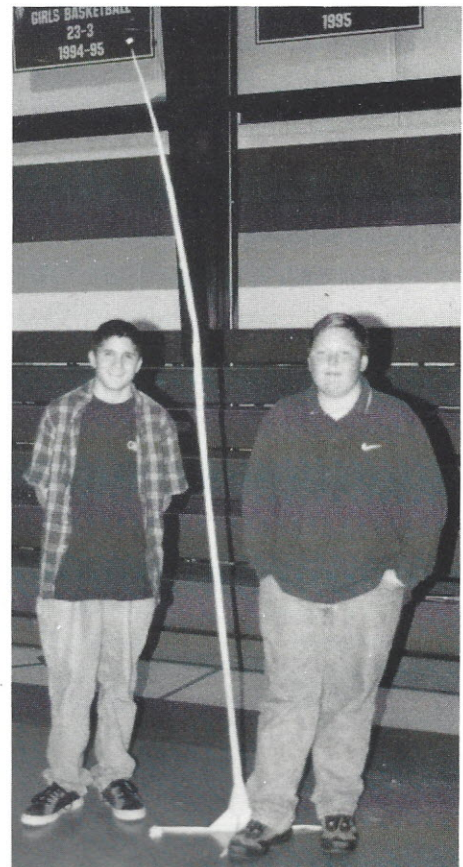

... leaves no time for Mr. Welsford's homework." — Matt Gilreath

... doesn't give me enough time to talk on the phone, and that is something I despise." — Kristen Keroson

... It will never happen! Surprise, Surprise!" — Jenni Caldwell

FINALLY ... THEY'RE HERE! Lacey Feaster takes time out to sign a friend's yearbook. A class period was given to the students when the much awaited yearbooks arrived so that friends could exchange signatures.

STANDING TALL. Participating in a physics competition, Michael Lippert and Graham Simms proudly stand beside their second place tower. This was part of a school wide tower-building contest that the Advanced Physics Club sponsored.
