

Discovering D.C.

SAY CHEESE. Seventh graders slow down just long enough to pose for a picture at Arlington National Cemetery. The changing of the guard and wreath ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is always an impressive and solemn ceremony.

CARD SHARKS? Mrs. Lea Weed takes her turn at shuffling the deck of cards as Beth Ramsey looks on. The long train ride to Washington gave the students and chaperones plenty of time to show off their card tricks and playing skills.

A QUINTET OF GIRLS AND A MAN. Although their faces show smiles, their feet and bodies are tired from another exhausting non-stop day of touring. Our nation's capitol offered so many things to see and do that everyone stayed on the go constantly trying futilely to take it all in.

BUDDIES, PALS, FRIENDS, AMIGOS ... Brice Porter and Beth Ramsey strike a cute pose for the camera. During this trip, classmates got the wonderful opportunity to share fun and educational experiences away from the classroom.

A CAPITOL MOMENT. Blake Cook pauses for a Kodak moment in front of our nation's Capitol. Who knows, maybe this is an omen that someday Blake will return to D.C. as a politician. Go for it, Blake!
