THREE MUSKETEERS. Allison Coleman, Katie Brown, and Sallie Watford chill out near a campfire kitchen site at the Jamestown Settlement. These girls really appreciated modern appliances after seeing what the early settlers had to use to cook.

ROW, ROW, ROW YOUR BOAT. Ryan Douglass relaxes in an old boat that was carved out of the trunk of a tree while at the Native American settlement at Jamestown. The whole class learned a great deal about the life in the early settlements.

MOTLEY CREW. K.E. Carter has an interesting conversation with a man dressed as Revolutionary War surgeon at the Yorktown Battleground site. K.E. bravely volunteered to be the injured war victim in the make-believe surgical demonstration.

FUTURE LIFE OF CRIME? Casey Smith and Britany Tanner pose for a picture while in the stocks at Colonial Williamsburg. The sixth graders were able to see devices such as the stocks first hand and learn of the difficult punishments the people of this colonial period endured.
