

Discovering Virginia

SALUTING WITH PRIDE. John Mark Mills and Shane Hacker feel the patriotic spirit while touring the Yorktown Battlefield. It was here that the sixth graders got an idea of the living conditions the Patriot soldiers endured in order to carry on their fight for freedom.

HAIR IT IS. Sixth graders students explore an interesting wig shop in Colonial Williamsburg. The students and chaperones found it very intriguing to learn of the different types and styles of wig hair worn by the different classes of colonists.

FUN AND GAMES. These students take a break from the tour of the Indian settlement to enjoy a fun-filled game of a hoop tossing. Historians discovered that perhaps the Native American children also found this game entertaining long ago.

SLEEPING BEAUTY. Jessica Hollis is caught napping as she catches a few winks of sleep on the long train ride from Virginia back to Camden. The non-stop, rapid paced trip left many a student and chaperone exhausted and in need of a nap whenever the opportunity presented itself.

READY FOR BATTLE. Brittany Wilkes and Jill Wagers suit up in colonial armor and prepare for battle. These girls had fun trying on the armor but were sure thankful they did not have to wear cast iron clothing all the time.
