

Both the middle school boys and middle school girls worked extremely hard this year. In each case, these athletes progressed in their skills on the court. They dribbled, ran, and shot their way to several wins during their seasons. The middle school boys team was all about teamwork. Whether a player was on the court or on the bench, each supported one another as if they were all playing as one. The middle school girls team was about hustle. These girls sprinted down the court on every opportunity, and as hard as they could, too. For both teams, this season was a memorable one. They worked together, played together, and won and lost together. The skills these student athletes learned on the court will definitely assist the players in their everyday life.
