

Summer Days

The summer of 2008 was a jam-packed three months of pure fun. Many students went on missions trips with their church. Others went to the beach to enjoy the sun while some students went to visit family in other states. Many high school students earned money by having a summer job. Many recent graduates relished their last summer as high school students before starting college. Sisters Rachel and Katherine Matthews had an opportunity to travel abroad. They, along with the rest of their family, took a trip to Germany for a few weeks. "Germany was amazing! Being there with my family was the best experience of my life," said Rachel. Other students stayed closer to home and attended summer camps. Grace Wilkins reflected upon her camp experience. "It was fun and a learning experience. I got to hang out with Mrs. Black, Candace, and Jessica," she remarked of Jostens Yearbook Camp. While each person's summer experience was a unique blend of family, friends, trips, and sun, they all had something in common. Everyone was on a search for the best summer ever.

1. The Aimwell Presbyterian youth group take a break after a hard day of painting houses.
2. Morgan attacks Reagan with a shovel while building a sand castle at Myrtle Beach.
3. Candace, Jessica, and Grace pose in their shades at yearbook camp in Hilton Head.
4. Ivy, Brock, and Rebekah, along with some friends, hang out at Student Life.
5. Ansley, Grayden, and Emma cheer loudly at Cheer Camp.
6. Rachel, Katherine, and Mrs. Matthews pause a moment in Hiedlburg, Germany.
7. The Varsity football team ends a summer practice with their traditional chant.
