

Close Games. Tough Players.

The varsity baseball team persevered through a rigorously scheduled season. Practices and games were frequently rescheduled due to rain. "The season was long, but we had a good year. We had seven seniors and I think we will be missed next year," says Joseph Talbert. Many games were played frustratingly close only to come to a loss, but good friendship among players kept spirits up. "We had a lot of fun this season and made a lot of memories. It was a great way to finish high school," says senior centerfielder, Thomas Wilkes. The varsity Eagles made it to the play-offs and played against Colleton Prep in the first round. They split the double header and went on to win a deciding game the next day. "The game was intense, especially in the extra innings. We were clutch," says G. Coleman. On Friday and Saturday, the Eagles played another double header against Carolina Academy. They won after a close game on Friday, but lost in the seventh on Saturday.
