

B-TEAM BASKETBALL

Where Young Players Become Ballers

Coach Haltiwanger teaches Brian O'Connor and his teammates the basics of a zone defense.

Sixth graders Alyssa Atkerson and Mitchell Gibbons go one-on-one down the court. As two of the older B-Team players, they both served as team leaders on the court.

Noah Edwards takes a difficult outside shot over defender Grier Hensley. The four teams played Saturday mornings during basketball season as well as during the halftime of varsity games.

● The two teams grapple after a loose ball. Every game was an intense but enjoyable competition.

● Hannah Gibbons "heats" up the action as she launches a shot over the Bulls' defense.

● Kimmy Albert brings the ball up the floor while playing the point guard position for the Bulls team.

● Lakers player Noah Edwards protects the ball from Dru Talbert as he races down the court.

