

This year, an intrepid group of Richard Winn students embarked on a European adventure. The party of nine spent their Spring Break experiencing the diverse cultures of Paris and Barcelona. Theirs is slightly different than ours... According to junior Zelick Levy, the major differences include various forms of transportation (tiny cars and the "metro"), an array of delicious dishes, and especially different lifestyles. He also mentioned the desserts - several times... Overall, the trip was an enriching, cultural experience for the entire group, both for the students and chaperones. All of whom will surely travel again.
