

Dances Like Mine. Zach Bownes tries to convince Blake Little to dance with him by showing off his "best moves." Prom night was a time for students to let loose and dust off their dancing shoes.

Make a Wish. In celebration of his 80th birthday, Dr. McCants blows out the candles on his birthday cake. The teachers surprised Dr. McCants with a surprise party on his special day.

This is It. The varsity Eagles football players bust through the run-through sign on the first game of the season. This game was a heart-wrenching game but a good start to the season.

So Long! During the music program, the fourth grade students wave to the audience. The students provided entertainment by playing the recorder, a new skill developed this school year.

At Richard Winn Academy, the school colors get in your blood. It is not disputable that "being blue and gold" is a way of life for RWA students of all ages. This widespread concept has different meanings to each individual student and teacher. To the graduating senior, the past six years of blue, gold, and khakis might define "being blue and gold." To the middle school softball player, "being blue and gold" might mean donning an Eagles jersey every game night. To the tiniest first grader, "being blue and gold" might be linked to carrying the class eagle mascot to each pep rally. To the teacher who has taught here long enough to say "I taught your parents!", the realization that he/she owns more blue and gold clothing than any other color might bring "being blue and gold" to light. Whatever the school colors mean to you, it is easy to see that at Richard Winn, we are like a family. Despite the many similarities among Richard Winn students, through these pages you'll see that each person here finds his/her own way to Be blue n' gold

Ring Chasers. After receiving their medals and the title of State Champions, the Lady Eagles huddle up and celebrate. Winning the 'ship was a moment that each of the girls will never forget.

Taking Care of Business. Coach Capeland instructs his woodworking students throughout their task. Many odd jobs and projects were completed by this group throughout the year.

Divid the Ring. Drew Spires and Lilly Hawkins "slide down the middle" while dancing the Virginia Reel. The annual Square Dance was, like always, a hit with the lower school students.

Back Off. Kimmy Albert defends the ball from an opponent. This season, Kimmy was an important member of the team.

