

Blast from the [past]

This was a spectacular year for the fifth grad Patriots' Day event. There were many fun-filled activities planned throughout the entire day. With help from teachers and outside speakers all day long the students learned mainly about South Carolina's history during the Revolutionary War era. Clad in time appropriate clothing, fifth grade girls took etiquette and "homemaking" classes while the boys learned how to hunt and do things of the "manly" sort. The class went to Cornwallis House in the evening to listen to guest speakers and enjoy a lovely reception. An immersion was enjoyed by the students as they learned, behaved, and talked as though they lived during the 1700's.

What was the most interesting thing you learned from Patriots' Day?

How they lived back then and how they walked.
-Alice Ann Montgomery

To me the most interesting thing I learned was how to march and make candles.
-Scotty Timms
