Beach Bums. Despite the cold weather and crab skies, Anna Grey Walters, Emily Branham, Marion Walker, and Jaycie ... make the most of their time on the beach. The student government ... and representatives enjoyed a beach trip for the yearly SGA convention.

Look What I Found! Peyton Gilbert poses with the South Carolina pillar in the WWII memorial. Despite the cold temperatures, the students who went on this field trip still greatly enjoyed learning about our nation's history in Washington, D.C.

Under the Green Glow. Ally Robinson and Grier Hensley wear their Medieval Times hats with pride. While sitting under the glow of the color that represents the "knight" they will cheer for throughout the show, these girls waited patiently for the festivities to begin.

Ye Old Goof Ball. At the Renaissance Fair, Joseph Goldin dramatically chows down on a turkey leg while Anna Cooke looks on in disapproval. Entering the Renaissance period at the fair is an event the sophomore, juniors, and seniors looked forward to with great anticipation.
