

When the Bell Rings. Hannah W. and Emy focus on their math worksheets and aim to complete their assignment before the final sounding bell of the school day. Sixth graders found the momentum to complete their course work and textbook this year despite the challenge of having math at the end of the day when they were most often mentally fatigued from a long school day.

Handy Dandy Calculator. Sixth graders learn how to use their calculators efficiently in math this year and appreciate their newly gained knowledge.

Working Together. A group of sixth graders utilize their break time to create a sign for the Homecoming game and pep rally. As tradition has it, banners adorned the hallways throughout the week and lined the fence on the football field the night of the Homecoming game.

Draw Four. Jennifer and Hannah G. play a game of Uno during their class Christmas party. After this year, the tradition of class parties comes to an end.

Break a Leg. "Fake an Injury" is a new theme for Spirit Week. This group of students creates many of their families', friends', and some of their own assistive devices, braces, bandages, and casts to rock this theme. It's a good thing the injuries were real because the girls had an afternoon match against Greenwood.

Pass the Doritos. Bryan gladly accepts the bag of Doritos during a class party in Coach Halt's room. It was Bryan's turn to imitate the famous Super Bowl commercial that his classmate Will reenacted for the talent show a few years ago.

I Need Help! Hannah S. gets assistance on her math class work from Mrs. Martin. This was Mrs. Martin's first year teaching 6th grade math.

Scream and Shout. The sixth graders stand up and yell to compete for the spirit stick. Although the 6th graders enthusiasm was great, and they nearly deafened Mrs. Woodle, they ended up on the short end of the stick losing to the 5th graders.

Music to My Ears. A couple of sixth graders make more than music passing through the halls as they leave Mrs. Howell's music class. These students enjoyed having music again.

You're Too Heavy! After Mrs. Emy gives Gracie a piggyback ride to Coach Halt's science class. Friends and teammates, they always enjoyed the opportunity to unwind before heading back to class.
