

Yadda, Yadda, Yadda. Peyton diligently listens to Mrs. Taylor on the first day of school. From book and seating assignments to an overview of class expectations, the new school year was mapped out.

Lover's Leap. Kimmy enjoys the games during the pep rally for Senior Night. Playing games during pep rallies helped raise the level of excitement and enthusiasm of the student body.

A New Beginning. Mrs. Taylor shows Cassie the new book that the class will be using throughout the new year. The seventh graders had a major adjustment from the comfort of the lower school to the unknown of upper school life.

Way Back When. Maddie selects a dress reflective of the early 1800's to help represent her history project character Molly Pitcher. The class read clues about their characters' persona for the lower school student body to name the historical figure.

What a Pain. The seventh graders show their school spirit on Injury Day. During Spirit Week, the seventh grade class expressed their creativity.

Engineers at Heart. Lauren and Caleb work on building their robots for the Robotics Club. The members of the club had to complete "missions" with each robot built.

Fear the Brow. Dru shows his team spirit on Character Day. His impersonation of Anthony Davis displayed his talent of thinking outside of the box during Spirit Week.

Contemplation. James carefully plans his next move against his opponent. The games enrichment participants learned more about games of strategy like chess and checkers.

Happy Hunger Games. Sally and Lydia dress up as Prim and Katniss Everdeen. They, along with the rest of the class, read the trilogy for Ms. Owens.

Worth a Thousand Words. Dru sketches during Ms. Owens' class. This class was a wonderful opportunity for the students that love sketching, and painting.
