

Class Will

I, Bobby Lail, will my good nature to Ray Perry.

I, Maenell Johnson, will my ability to read my shorthand lessons out of the back of my book to anyone silly enough to take shorthand.

I, Margie Smith, will my princess ring to Barbara White.

I, Bobby Wilson, don't will anything, I'm just glad that I got out.

I, Lanelle Peake, will my ability to study to Sandra Miles.

I, Jerry Branham, will my basketball ability to David Gerald.

I, Agnes Humphries, leave whatever I have, if I have anything, to whoever needs whatever I have and can do anything with whatever this thing is.

I, Gladys Branham, leave my salesmanship ability to Heyward Mattox.

I, Aaron Hollis, will my ability to do bookkeeping to Larry Smith.

I, Carole Peake, will my ability to write "love-letters" to Rhetta Jean Finley.

I, Anna Moore, wish I had something to leave, but circumstances as they are, I need all that I have and more too.

I, Annette McGuirt, do will my inherited nickname, "Red," to Grace Perry.

I, Polly Reynolds, leave my typewriter to Carolyn Branham.

I, Jeanette Mattox, leave my tall, slender figure to Vera Humphries.

Last, but not least, I, Boyd Moseley, just plain leave.
