

Verna Reynolds, Gloria Jean Douglas, and Beverly Powers run a beauty shoppe, and Brenda Stevenson models their new hair styles. Brenda has a French Twist today and we can all remember when it was the rage at Winnsboro High School.

Sandra Evans and Joyce Crawford have their own supper club which is called the "Hunter Club." Mary Jo Turner is the official hostess.

Bobby Fuller is running the Fuller Bull Company which raises prize bulls. Jerome Mincey has invented a rodent repellent which is selling like hot cakes.

Julia Margaret Harden and Brenda Weed who are nurses at Columbia Hospital have recently been to New York where they heard the "Branham Brothers," a singing group composed of Faye and Don Branham, accompanied on the guitar by Margaret Crumpton. Their renditions of folk songs are nationally known. While they were in New York, they happened to see Patricia Rutland and Martha Stevenson, who also work at Columbia Hospital.

We cannot exclude from the circle of famous '62 graduates, Kenneth Davenport, who wrote a book on a subject near and dear to Mr. Gale's heart, THE DECLINE AND FALL OF THE HORSE LAUGH!

Spencer Hewitt and Donald Walker, who are married to graduates of Winnsboro High School, now run a go-cart company, which is very popular with the local natives.

Larry Waters has been a valuable aid to the U. S. Rubber Company, having invented several new contraptions for producing a new fiber, and Butch Collins is employed by the town of Winnsboro; he is in charge of a fleet of mosquito-spraying trucks.

Kay Bass and Alvin Raley are partners in a dancing school which specializes in the new dances - the Jelly Roll, the Honey Pot, and the Itch. John Henry Lewis, the famous chiropractor, takes care of their injured students in his office, which is next door to their studio.

President Nixon has appointed Buddy Turkett and Jerry Viles to be the first men to go to Venus. Now that we've already reached the moon and have regular flights, Robbie Walker is a moon flight stewardess and two moon pilots are Ben Bass and Edward Blair.

Bucky Ellison and Jamie Frazier, Marine drill instructors, couldn't make it to the reunion because they are both facing court martial for drilling troops in the marsh at Parris Island.

Alona Beckham, Helen Collins, and Dot Floyd are raising kangaroos on their farm in Australia, and Ted Nichols is exporting boomerangs that don't come back.

Billy Clowney, Jerry Stevenson, and Bobby Johnson are working on a banana boat to South America. Walter Rutland happens to be chaplain on this vessel.

Dale Holmes is taking the part of the hero in the still very popular Ben Casey T.V. series. There are others in our class whose names are in the spotlights on Broadway - Danny Ballentine, starring in the lead role of MACBETH and Elaine Dove is his accomplice in this classic drama.

Ruth Boone, Libby D. Thigpen, Pat D. Swygert, Mary Frances Mattox, and Jane Pearson are housewives who have formed a kindergarten. With the help of Barbara Jean Smith, Jeannie Ramsey, and Gale Haygood, they are forming a special play school upon request of those Seniors who didn't want to leave high school.

Diane Stokes, a famous lady architect, recently designed the brand new Winnsboro High School Auditorium, which is fine, but not quite big enough.

Theron Wilson is driving a Scenic Tour Bus which specializes in musical tours. The music is furnished by Theron's bass solos.

All of the refreshment for this reunion came from the Wilson Bakery in Winnsboro, owned and operated by Belvia and Eliza Wilson.

Although we hate to leave this reunion of friends and classmates, we must return to our respective jobs. Sam has to get back to his insurance business, and I must return to my job in South Africa as a member of the Peace Corps. There have been many changes made since our Class of 1962 was together, and the future holds many more. As life goes on, changes are made, and we can't help wondering how we will appear ten years from now - that is, in 1982.
