

CLASS HISTORY

For most of us the most treasured possession we shall have when we leave high school will be our memories. The History of the Class of 1964 is filled with many occasions of fun and happiness as well as opportunities to improve and grow even as our school improved and grew.

We were one of the five fortunate classes to enter a bright new high school. We had had varying experiences as sub-freshmen at Blackstock, Greenbriar, Jenkinsville, Mt. Zion, Monticello, Ridgeway, and for a few, other schools. Our freshman year at Winnsboro High was even more exciting than our sub-freshman year had been at the other schools because our teachers as well as the upper classmen were just as inexperienced as we were. It was a wonderful and, at times, confusing experience.

However, long before we became sophomores, the program was well-organized and we were a part of a forward-looking, challenging, and demanding educational institution. Probably our best memories of this period are of the new friendships which were formed with classmates from the different schools. Of course, we shall also remember our first encounter with such foreign subjects as Algebra and Latin.

As sophomores, we expanded our interest in extra curricular activities. Some joined clubs, others took part in the music program, and we all supported the fine athletic teams that were molding a record of good sportsmanship for our school even if they weren't winning many games. Along with the fun of sock-hops, Latin banquets, club conventions and such—we managed to acquire enough learning to be elevated to the exalted status of Juniors.

Our Junior year was filled with achievement, and serious preparation for our most important final year. It is said that our Junior play was a tremendous success, and we believe it. For us "Seventeenth Summer" will always rate along with "Romeo and Juliet" and other famous plays. This year we had such fun entertaining the Seniors with a Southern Plantation themed Junior-Senior Banquet and dance. The Southern Belles and chivalrous Gentleman of the occasion will always be a fond memory.

Our Senior year has been a fitting climax to a memorable and fruitful high school history and by the time this is read it too will be history. Our Senior experiences such as the Senior Play, Junior-Senior Prom, Final Exams, and practice for graduating exercises are upmost in our minds now and no doubt will long be remembered most vividly.

So, with the memories of wonderful history to inspire us, we look forward to the future with ambition and confidence — ambition to be worthy of our heritage — and confidence that, with the training we have received in morals as well as academics, we are prepared to meet any challenge of life.

CLASS PROPHECY

Just twenty years ago our class marched down the aisle to receive our high school diplomas and out into a new and watchful world. Our Master of Ceremonies, Rusty Price, has taken leave of his duties as owner of Monk's Mortuary to find out what each member of the class is doing and what success they have made in their chosen profession. In this year of 1984, we are having our reunion at a place which all of us certainly remember having had many good times, the park. Since the Hut was the scene of many of those good times which we shared during our high school days, it was decided that our first reunion be held there.

Suddenly amid the confusion and chatter comes a distinct voice. It is Judi Spires telling of her accomplishment. She held a position as giggle box for the sound effects of RCA until her box turned over and spilled all her giggles.

Harry Jeter is over by the tennis courts passing out tomatoes from his 5,000-acre truck farm. He has been named the "Trucker of the year" in Fairfield County.

Jake Stone, better known as "Lebanon Lip", is the youngest man to win the world's heavy-weight boxing championship and has recently been matched with a new challenger, "Oliver the Ox."

Billy Patrick, now known as the foremost designer of hand-made alligator bags and accessories, is seen speaking to this old friend and classmate, Dr. Robin Wilkes, who is now a famed plastic surgeon, specializing in "Face" repairs.

Down by the Duck Pond, we see Skipper Sims who is now a TV star who can be seen Saturday night on that popular show "Shock Theatre" which is featuring the biggest shock of them all, Boykin Smith and his erie side-kick, James Jeffcoat.

Dr. James Boyter, who is searching for the cure of that dreaded disease, Boyter Goiter, is seen talking to Miss Mary Burley, who is editor of that reknown newspaper, THE MONTICELLO MIRACLE. Mary just completed a superb article on the foremost literary figure of our day, James Warmoth, who just published that Nobel Prize-winning book, YOU CAN TAKE IT WITH YOU IF YOU TRY.

Robert L. Dove couldn't make it to our reunion this year, but everyone knows that he is fulfilling his duties as chief gourmet at Greasy's Delicatessen in New York.

We hear that Judy Sims and Becky Sanders are co-owners of the Borden's Ice Cream Company; and that Dubbie, after attaining his M.A. Degree at Furman, is now in Africa trying to put to some use what he learned.
