Dear Mrs. Killian;

Thank you very much for your nice letter, it really makes me feel good. You returned a whole lot too much but I'll tell you what I am going to do with it — buy dinner for someone who might not have much dinner without it and who does not have any "checks in her pocketbook" to cash the next day, somehow I feel like you will be glad to know I plan to spend it that way, I know this person personally.

When I think about that night, I laugh about as much as I did at the time, I can imagine how you felt when you thought of having spent money you thought you did not particularly need, and about the tip, but "I herein solemnly promise to keep your secret" Stop and see me sometime when you are passing through.

Sincerely

Daisy Gladden

P.S. I still think though that you ought to let your family share the fun.

she's just had a tough time.
