

Bryan Roberts identified the model of the town clock in the museum attic which had been brought over from the Chamber of Commerce office as being made by his uncle Chalmers Boyd Stover. I remembered Mr. S. who lived in the Stover Hotel across the railroad from the Crawford Livery Stable behind the town clock. Now Joe Wilkes's metal working studio is on the lot. Old photos show the hotel as having also been the DuVal Hotel. I think DuVal was also the sheriff at one time.

Mr. Stover made the wooden model and painted in all the bricks. It was wired with a light and a functioning clock.
