ew coordinator and translator explained the concept of the show.

It's about a battle between two experts," said. "In this episode, Dru, as the artist, created a portrait. His painting and one photo portraits will be shown to a photo expert, who will try to discern which is the painting."

The show will be aired in Japan in approximately one month. The "winner" of the contest is a secret until then.

"It's been great to get to know the crew and learn about the Japanese culture," said Blair. "A couple of the people spoke English very well. They have a very good sense of humor." Blair said the group also stayed in lodging accommodations at the art school, especially enjoyed eating American food. Their favorite?

They really liked "Tangy Carolina Q chips," said Blair. "We gave them some to take home."
