ously in the evening, and Lorrick said there was an argument between Stone and Sampson, according to eyewitnesses.

The relationship between Sampson and Stone is unclear, but Lorrick said they were acquainted.

Lorrick said Sampson has a detailed criminal history and was released from prison in August 2013.

"We've had incidents in the past where he's been involved with domestic violence from what I understand and he has a long criminal record," Lorrick noted.

The public can call the Winnsboro Department of Public Safety at 803-635-4511 with any additional information.

Anyone with information about Sampson's whereabouts should call Crimestoppers at 1-888-CRIME-SC, or WINNSBORO — More people showed up to First Church's Fourth of July celebration on Friday.

The free event provided drinks, popcorn, snow cones, cotton candy. Kids enjoyed giant inflatable bouncy houses.

Prior to the fireworks show, military personnel and armed forces veterans were recognized.

"We appreciate you and thank you," First Baptist Church pastor Mark Chapman said. "We thank you so much and we also want to thank you to the families because of the great sacrifice they gave."
