Dear Mrs. Stephenson,

I hope that this finds you and the other members of the genealogy section well and thriving. It is such an important service that you all provide.

Earlier this week one of General John Bratton's descendents told me that he had misplaced the material you sent me a year or so ago about the General. I had passed it on the Bratton family. He was particularly interested in obtaining a copy of the article or talk given by Bratton's son, the Episcopal Bishop of Mississippi, about his remembrances of life in Fairfield County when he was young. There were some great anecdotes about what happened in their house during reconstruction. Would you please repeat what you did for me last year as best you can recall. The piece by the Bishop is the main thing, but anything else that seems especially interesting would be most welcome. I realize that it will not be easy to make a good copy of the Bishop's work and appreciate very much your efforts.

Enclosed is a small token of my continuing esteem for your group's labors.

With best regards.

Sincerely,

James E. Briggs Jr.
