

The Brice Family Genealogy Homepage

WELCOME

My name is Leslie Neeland and I am a senior at Yale University. I just completed a research project on a plantation that my ancestors owned in Fairfield County, SC and I have become interested in tracing my roots. This plantation belonged to Dr. Walter Brice, my great great great grandfather and the paper I wrote is below.

This page is also devoted to Brice family genealogy and I hope to be able to share all my information about the South Carolina Brice families with anyone on the Internet! So many distant relatives have already found me via this page and it is so exciting.

This page is part of my genealogy website collection. Also visit:

- My Genealogy Mainpage
- The Simonton Family Web page

This page is currently under construction, so please email me any and all information you might have about the Brice family in this region. I will be posting much of my information as soon as possible. Check back often and keep digging....

Important names in my Family Tree

If you are curious to see if we have any ancestors in common, check out this incomplete list of my roots. I have a double dose of Brice ancestry.... my maternal grandmother's parents were second cousins!

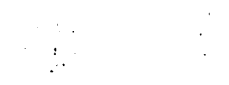

Grandmother's mother's side

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of growth and change, from the first settlers to the present day.

The early years of the United States were marked by the struggle for independence from British rule. The American Revolution was a turning point in the nation's history, leading to the adoption of the Constitution and the establishment of a new government.

The American Revolution was a struggle for freedom and self-government. The colonists fought against British rule and won their independence in 1776.

The Brice Family Tree - The Latest Project

Coming soon, as soon as I can enter all the information I have about the Brice family, I plan on writing a complete history of the Brices. This will be a many year-long project (at least!), so please be patient. I am currently in the process of entering all my information into a genealogy computer program, Legacy, which is compatible with all other genealogy programs such as Family Tree Maker. In the meantime, I am posting the latest update of the information I have entered into the computer right here on my website! Stay tuned for the latest updates.

- The First Installment of the Brice Family Tree is here! This was updated on August 21, 1999. Note to all who view it: many of the names I have on paper have not yet been entered yet. A lot of what I have is thanks to a GEDCOM file sent to me by Dorothy Wakefield Chance. Check out her Grandmother Stories website listed below.
- Click here to view the Brice Family Tree by Generations. This site is connected to the above link, but is a bit clunky. It contains all the names of all the people in my files (1000+) listed by generations. I would suggest checking out the above link first to search for the people you are interested in by surname.

Brice Family Documents

My next project is to post original documents and transcriptions about the Brice family to share with distant relatives over the Internet. Here is a partial listing of what I plan to include in the next few weeks. Hyperlinks will appear as soon as I get each item on the web.

- My Trip Diary: I recently took another trip to Fairfield County in August 2000. Read about my experiences.
- The Ancestors of Thomas Leslie Brice: I am currently transcribing this family history book that was written by the sister of my great grandfather.
- New Hope Cemetery tombstone transcriptions: I have taken pictures of almost every Brice tombstone at New Hope Church in Fairfield County. The transcriptions will follow soon.
- Transcriptions of Various Letters: I spent much of my time in Fairfield County transcribing letters from Brice family members that are held in the South Caroliniana Library. Read these excerpts here.

I've finally managed to get a nice scanner at home, and I've scanned in quite a few photos to share. I have also recently been sent some pictures from Brice cousins with whom I correspond. If you have photos that you would like me to add, send them as e-mail attachments to me and let me know

- Fairfield County Photos: From my trip in March of 1999. See the Walter Brice plantation and New Hope Church.
- Lt. Col. James A. Brice Jr.: From Linda Hull. Thanks!

The Brice Research Paper

 This paper recently was named as an award winner of the Andrew D. White Prize in American history at Yale. I wrote this research paper for a junior seminar that I took at Yale University in the spring of 1999. This class was History 449b, The Era of the American Civil War, and was taught by Professor Peter Hinks. The main topic of the paper is the Brice family's experiences in Fairfield County during the time of Sherman's march. The paper is now complete! See the final version here. My footnotes are not working yet on the web page, but if you would like to see my footnotes separately, click here. The first rough draft of my research paper is also still available. If you want to view it, click here. To see my initial proposal and prospectus for this paper, click here. I have not followed this exactly and my topic has changed a bit over the course of researching this paper, but my prospectus is a good general summary of what the paper entails.

Where I researched about the Brice family:

- The South Caroliniana Library: This library at the University of SC has the papers of the Brice, Waters, and Watson families beginning in the 1800's until almost today. I've only looked at some of the papers, but they are magnificent. They include many personal letters of Walter Brice and his children. I will be returning to look at these papers again.

Brice Family Email List

I have found so many relatives on the internet through this site and others, so I wanted to set up an email list where descendants of Edward Brice MA can exchange research and information. The primary focus of this list will be Fairfield County, SC Brice descendants, but all Brices are welcome to join. Sign up for the list below (you can unsubscribe at any time) and we can all communicate. This could be a great resource to exchange genealogical finds and even plan an upcoming family reunion?!?! Send messages to the whole list by emailing Bricefamily@listbot.com. Enjoy! If you have any questions about the list, please email me.

Descendants of Edward Brice M.A.

First Generation

1. Edward Brice M.A. ^{1,2} was born in 1569 in Airth, Stirlingshire, Scotland and died in 1636 in Ballycarry, Co. Antrim, Ireland ³.

(Note from dwc: For historical context, Edward Brice was born 3 years before the death of John Knox. As the family lived south of Stirling, in Stirlingshire, between Stirling and Edinburgh, Scotland, it is quite likely that much of the chaos created by the Bible read in English and the influence of John Calvin was observed, perhaps experienced, by Brice's father and grandfather.)

From the Brice Family collection authored by J. R. Moffatt as given to Mary Frances Enloe, my grandmother:

"The Rev. Edward Brice, Presbyterian minister of Drimen who was obliged to fly from Scotland for opposing in bitter terms John Spootwood, Bishop of Glasgow, who had been appointed Moderator of the the Synod of Clydesdale. About 1611 he settled in the parish of Templecavan alias Braidesland, preaching there and in the Church of Ballykiel, Island Maque, alternately.

Sept. 3, 1619 he was collated to the Presbytery Kilroot by Robert Echlin, Bishop of Down and Connor, in which living he was installed on the 17th of the same month.

These ceremonies, however, did not comply conformity to the canons of the Episcopal Church. The bishops were merely acknowledged as Presbyters, and in performing the duties of their office omitted such parts of the ceremonies as were objected by the ministers.

August 12, 1636, he was deposed in Belfast by Henry Lesly, Bishop of Down and Connor, for refusing to conform to the canonical forms of Episcopacy. He died the same year, 1636, leaving two sons and two daughters."

James G. Leyburn in The Scotch-Irish: A Social History on p. 118 writes: "The first Presbyterian minister to come was Edward Brice, in 1613: he had left Stirlingshire because he opposed the motion to make Archbishop Spottiswoode permanent moderator of the Synod of Clydeshire." Leyburn cites James Seaton Reid, History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland (London, 1853), 1, 98 as the source of this information,

"To come" to Ulster, Ireland in the Plantation of the lowland Scots to that part of Ireland. Book published by UNC Press, 1962.

email post of May 13, 1998 from Dr. David Hume, Chairman, Ballycarry Community Association (email : ballycarry@nacn.btinternet.com Website: www.nacn.org)

"Edward Brice was minister at Drymen in Stirlingshire and came to Ballycarry (then known as Broadisland) in 1613, which makes him the first Presbyterian minister in Ireland. He died in 1636 after the governing authorities forbade him and other Presbyterian clerics from ministering in the Established Churches. One of his sons was a Member of Parliament in the old Irish House of Commons, while another descendant changed his name to Kingsmill in order to inherit his wife's fortune. Some of the family - three brothers I believe - emigrated to Fairfield County, South Carolina, and I can provide you with further details on this.

In 1993 a plaque was unveiled in Ballycarry to Rev. Brice's honour, commemorating his ministry for the Kirk in this heartland of Ulster Scots. It was unveiled by Rev. John Hay of Drymen, who traveled from Stirlingshire to be with us at our first annual Broadisland Gathering festival.

Edward Brice is one of the founding fathers of our community, and we are very proud that we have the first Presbyterian minister in Ireland in our historical past.

(Dr. Hume mentions two other Brice descendants with whom he is acquainted, Dr. Charles Brice of South Carolina, and Miss Janet Brice Hardin of Florida. He will write more after his return from a trip to Clover, South Carolina, where there is an annual Ulster-Scots festival (June 12 - 14, 1998)

From "The History of the Brice Family_ as collected by George Wilson Brice, in 1944, Charlotte, NC. (a grandson of Dr. Walter Brice, Sarah Amanda Brice's uncle in Fairfield Co., SC)

"The earliest authentic history of this branch of the Brice family begins with the Rev. Edward Brice, M. A. , who was born in 1569 and was what was known as a nonconformist, leading a stormy career as a preacher at a time when those who could not agree with the established order were subject to being cast out of the Church and otherwise punished. He was apparently the first of the Brice family to emigrate from Scotland to Northern Ireland and the indications are that the general emigration of the Scotch-Irish, which occurred about 1690 , was due to economic conditions as well as to religious persecution. It should be borne in mind that the history of Scotland and Ireland in this early period was filled with strife and turmoil and it is quite difficult to trace one of these families back to their home in Scotland.

They had lived in the North of Scotland near the river Clyde and their adventurous spirit took them to the comparatively unsettled region of Northern Ireland, now spoken of as "Ulster." . . .

History records that Rev. Edward Brice was obliged to flee from Scotland for opposing John Spotswood, Bishop of Glasgow. This was about 1611, or something like forty years after the death of John Knox, and Rev. Edward Brice, the former Presbyterian minister of Drimen, Scotland, settled in the parish of Templecavan, Ireland; preaching there and also in the Church of Ballykiel, on the Island Mague.

On Sept. 3, 1619, he was collated to the Presbytery Kilroot by the Bishop of Down, but these ceremonies did not conform to the canons of the Episcopal Church and on August 12, 1636, he was deposed in Belfast by Henry Lesly, who had become Bishop of Down. This was because of refusal to conform to the canonical forms of Episcopacy. He died in the same year, aged 67, leaving two sons and two daughters.

He was buried at Ballycarry, Ireland, and what must be the real Brice Coat-of-Arms is carved on the tombstone. it bears the motto "Do Well, Doubt Not."

from Charles A. Hanna The Scotch Irish_ Vol 1, p 562

"It was now determined to make all clergymen conform to the new canons and conduct worship according to the strictest episcopal forms. At a visitation held by Leslie, in 1636, he required his clergy to sign these canons. many consented with reluctance, and afterwards failed to carry out what they had promised. But Brice of Broadisland or Ballycarry, Colvert of Oldstone, Cunningham of Holywood, Hamilton of Ballywater, and Ridge of Antrim, refused to sign, although urged by the bishop in private. Leslie then determined, by advice of Bramhill, to depose these faithful ministers. To carry out his decision, he held a meeting of his clergy on the 10th August, 1636, in the Episcopal church at Belfast, and after a long discussion he passed sentence of perpetual silence, within his diocese, of the accused ministers."

Hanna, Vol 1, 578: "The following were the first Calvinistic ministers established in Ulster: Edward Brice (from Stirlingshire,) Broadisland, Antrim, 1613; Robert Cunningham, Holywood, Down 1615; John Ridge (from England), Antrim, Antrim 1619; ___ Hubbard (from England) Carrickfergus, Antrim, 1621; Robert Blair (from Glasgow), Bangor, Down, 1623; James Hamilton (from Ayr), Ballywalter, Down, 1625; Josias Welsh (from Ayr), Templepatrick, Antrim 1626; Andrew Stewart, Donegore, Antrim, 1627; George Dunbar (from Ayr), Larne, Down, 1628; Henry Colwort (from England) Oldstone, Down, 1629; John Livingston (from Torphchen) Killinchy, Down 1630; John McClelland, Newton-Ards, Down 1630; John Semple, Enniskillen in Magheriboy and Tyrkennedy."

[Josias Welsh was the grandson of John Knox)

Hanna, continued on p 562: "Blair, Livingston, Hamilton, and several others had now determined to emigrate with their friends and families to New England . . . (an unsuccessful attempt due to severe weather encountered on the journey)

All of this group of ministers are mentioned in The Adair Manuscript_ which is quoted intact in Hanna, Vol. II, p350 "...And now, having lost this one man, the Lord was pleased to give to the church in these parts three able and gracious men, first, Mr. Henry Colwort, who came over with Mr. Hubbard, formerly mentioned, and was entertained by the godly and worthy Lady Duntreath, of Broadisland, as an helper to an old worthy minister there, Mr. Edward Brice...."

email letter, 6-13-1998 from Ronnie McKinley [mckinley@netcomuk.co.uk] as follows:

"The Rev. Brice is buried in the Church of Ireland graveyard at Ballycarry Co. Antrim (NI). The tomb has a wall plaque giving details on the Rev. Brice. This location is only a few miles from where I live, at Islandmagee Co. Antrim Northern Ireland.

Brice or Bryce as he is called in Scottish records, was born about 1569 at Airth, in Stirlingshire. He is said to have been a younger son of Bruce, the laird of Airth and the names Brice and Bruce seem interchangeable. Brice entered Edinburgh College about 1589 and among other professors, studied under Charles Ferme.

In 1595 he entered the Church, becoming minister of the next parish to that in which he was born, Botlikeennar, which is said to have this peculiarity, that 'not a stone is to be found in the whole of it on the size of a peppercorn' - Here he officiated for nearly 7 years. It was while minister here that, in 1607, he signaled himself by his vigorous opposition to the introduction of a disguised Prelacy in the shape of the appointment of the Archbishop of Glasgow as constant Moderator of Synod. Finally, he was deposed by Spotwood and the Presbytery of Glasgow on 29th December, 1613, on a serious charge. He then fled to Ireland, and commenced his ministry in Boadisland or 'Baidenisland' as it is called in the old records, preaching alternatively, it is said, at Templecorran and Ballykeel in Island Magee. Pennies are still in existence bearing the name of his eldest son Robert, who amassed a considerable fortune at Castle Chester, then a place of some importance as a mail packet station.

From: The Brice Family by L.S. Brice, John de la Howe School, McCormick, SC, 1956

The life of Edward Brice is probably best described by Rev. Samuel D. Alexander in his book History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland which was condensed from the standard work of Reid and Killen.

In writing of the large number of newcomers to northern Ireland, the author says, "Among these better emigrants were several ministers from England and Scotland, who may be regarded as the founders of the Presbyterian church in Ireland.

The first of these, in point of time, was Edward Brice, for many years minister of Drymen, in Stirlingshire; but having steadily opposed the proposition to make Archbishop Spotswood permanent moderator of the Synod of Clydesdale, he was soon obliged to leave his church and country, and settled near his old friend and neighbor William Edmonstone in the district of Broadisland, in the the county of Antrim. He was admitted by Bishop Echlin, of Down, himself a Scotchman, and afterwards raised to the nominal rank of a prebendary, but without relinquishing his prior settlement or his former mode of preaching, which is described by Livingston as dwelling chiefly on "the life of Christ in the heart and the light of His Word and Spirit on the mind."

"Upon the visitation of Bishop Leslie at Lisburn in July, 1636, according to the command of the convocation, he called upon his clergy to subscribe to the canons. Five of the ministers refused, viz: Brice of Broadisland, Ridge of Antrim, Cunningham of Holywood, Colvert of Oldstone, and Hamilton of Ballywalter. the Bishop, not wishing to lose these faithful men, held a private conference with them, hoping to induce them to conform to the canons, but failing in this, at the suggestion of Bishop Bramhall, he summoned his clergy at Belfast on the 10th of August, and opened the visitation by preaching from the ominous text "but he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen and a publican." (Matthew XVIII - 17)

"Leslie having concluded his discourse, the five non-conforming ministers were called forward; and the Bishop, complaining that he had been misrepresented in a former private conference with them, proposed to debate the matter publicly the next day, which was at once accepted, and Hamilton was appointed to conduct it in their name.

It was accordingly begun before a large assembly of nobility and gentry and clergy of the diocese. It was conducted in the form of syllogistic reasoning, in which Hamilton displayed great readiness and acuteness, and the Bishop more moderation than could have been expected from his sermon; but, as it too often happens in public debates, the controversy merged into the discussion of some of the less important points of difference. The discussion was interrupted by Bramhall on account of the liberty allowed the minister, and Leslie adjourned it until the next day; but at the suggestion of the Bishop of Derry, it was not resumed, but at the time appointed, the brethren refusing to subscribe to the canons, received their sentences of deposition.

These severe proceedings hastened the intended voyage to New England, and in the midst of their preparations Brice of Broadisland, one of the deposed ministers, departed this life. The number proposing to sail was one hundred and forty.

These seven Englishmen and Scotchmen were the pioneers of evangelical religion in the north of Ireland, and began those labors which resulted in a general awakening and conversion and the ultimate foundation of the Presbyterian Church in Ulster."

1. The first part of the text discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities within the organization.

This is essential for ensuring transparency and accountability, as well as for providing a clear audit trail for all stakeholders involved.

2. The second part of the text focuses on the role of technology in streamlining operations and improving efficiency.

By leveraging modern software solutions, organizations can automate repetitive tasks, reduce errors, and free up valuable resources for more strategic initiatives.

3. The third part of the text addresses the need for strong leadership and effective communication to drive organizational success.

Leaders must inspire and motivate their teams, while also ensuring that everyone is aligned with the organization's vision and goals.

4. The fourth part of the text discusses the importance of continuous learning and development for the workforce.

Investing in training and professional development programs can help employees stay up-to-date on industry trends and acquire new skills.

5. The fifth part of the text explores the role of innovation in driving growth and competitive advantage.

Encouraging a culture of innovation allows organizations to explore new ideas, experiment with different approaches, and ultimately bring new products or services to market.

6. The sixth part of the text discusses the importance of risk management and contingency planning.

Identifying potential risks and developing strategies to mitigate them can help organizations avoid costly setbacks and ensure their long-term sustainability.

7. The seventh part of the text addresses the need for strong financial management and budgeting.

By carefully tracking expenses and revenues, organizations can ensure they are operating within their means and maximizing their financial performance.

8. The eighth part of the text discusses the importance of customer satisfaction and loyalty.

Providing exceptional customer service and consistently meeting or exceeding expectations can lead to increased repeat business and positive word-of-mouth referrals.

9. The ninth part of the text addresses the need for strong legal and regulatory compliance.

Staying up-to-date on relevant laws and regulations is essential for avoiding legal penalties and maintaining the organization's reputation.

10. The tenth part of the text discusses the importance of sustainability and corporate social responsibility.

By adopting environmentally friendly practices and supporting social causes, organizations can enhance their brand image and contribute to a better world.

11. The eleventh part of the text addresses the need for strong data management and analytics.

Collecting, analyzing, and acting on data can provide valuable insights into customer behavior, market trends, and operational performance.

12. The twelfth part of the text discusses the importance of building a strong corporate culture.

A positive and inclusive culture can attract top talent, increase employee engagement, and ultimately drive organizational success.

DRYMEN.

[The church of Drymen was dedicated to St. Columba or St. Kessog. It was a mensal church of the Archbishop of Glasgow. St. Vildrin's Well, on the lands of Finnich-Drummond in the parish, was much resorted to by pilgrims. Close by it, at Knockanheglish (Cnoc na h-eaglais=the hill of the church), there was a chapel. Within the bounds stood two other chapels--St. Mary's at Chapel Laroeh near Gartmore, which belonged to the Priory of Inchmahome, and St. Kessog's, on the lands of Finnich-Tennent. Drymen Church was rebuilt in 1771.]

He marr., and had issue -- Robert, ancestor of Bruces of Kilroot, died Dublin 22 Nov. 1670; and three others. -- {Reid's Ireland, 98; Balfour's Hist. Works; ii, 22; Burke's Landed Gentry; Tombst.; Dict. Nat. Biog.)

From Scottish Surnames & Families written by Donald Whyte, 1996, published by Barnes and Noble books, 1997, pp34,35:

The story of the Bruces runs like a bright gold thread through the rich tapestry of Scottish history. They appear to have been of Flemish extraction, and settled at Brus (now Brix), hence the surname, near Cherbourg, in Normandy, about the time that Matilda of Flanders married William the Conqueror, an event which explains why so many Flemish noblemen took part in the Conquest in 1066. their progenitor in Normandy was Adam, and it may have been his son Robert who fought at Hastings. His descendant, Robert de Brus, was probably a companion at the English court of Prince David, who, soon after succeeding to the throne in Scotland, granted him extensive lands in Annandale. They already possessed estates in England, and there may have been a distant relationship with Maud or Matilda, who became Queen of Scots in 1124. His great grandson, Robert de Brus, brought the family closer to the royal line through his marriage to Isabel, daughter of David, Earl of Huntingdon, younger brother of King Malcolm IV and King William. Indeed this was how their son Robert, became a competitor for the crown in 1286. It was his grandson, Robert, Earl of Carrick, who was crowned King of Scots in 1306. His brilliant victory over King Edward II of England at Bannockburn in 1314, led to the famous Declaration of Arbroath in 1320, and to the independence of Scotland. His daughter Marjory married Walter Stewart, and they were the ancestors of the Stewart Kings.

The direct royal line died out, but branches of the family settled in Fife and Clackmannan. Edward Bruce of Easter Kennet, was given the Lordship of Kinloss in 1600/01. From him descended the Earls of Elgin and Kincardine. Of the Carnock line of this family was the Hon. Alexander Bruce, who was exiled in Holland with Charles I. In 1662 he conducted experiments with Christian Huygens at The Hague and at sea, on short pendulum clocks, with a degree of success. The same year he succeeded as 3rd Earl of Kincardine. Charles, 9th Earl of Kincardine, succeeded to the Earldom of Elgin in 1747, after the death of his kinsman, Charles 4th Earl of Elgin and 2nd of Ailesbury. the present 11th Earl of Elgin and 15th earl of Kincardine, Andrew Bruce, is clan chief. He served in World War II with the Scots Guards, and was Grand Master Mason of Scotland, 1961-65.

The Bruce family has many branches. One of the most important was that of Airth, in Stirlingshire, descended from the Bruces of Clackmannan, Sir Edward Bruce having married Agnes, heiress of Airth, Stirlingshire, before 1417, gained that estate. They also owned Stenhouse, in the same county. In 1628, Sir William Bruce of Stenhouse was cr. a baronet of Nova Scotia. His descendant, the present and 12th Bt. is Sir Michael Bruce, who served in the US Marines, 1943-46, and lives at Newport Beach, California. Another branch of the Airth family descended from the Rev. Edward Bruce, who went to Ireland about 1609, and whose family obtained the estates of Kilroot, Co. Antrim, and Scoutbush, Carrickfergus, James Bruce, 1730-94, of Kinnaid, the explorer of the Nile, was also descended from the Airth line.

From The Pedigree: "Reverend Edward Brice the [of Drimen 1602] first Presbyterian minister in Ireland. Ordained in Broade Island in the Year 1613. [d. 1636]. Edward Brice Esq descended, according to the statement of Sir Alexander Erskine Lord Lyon King Arms of Scotland, from the family of Bruce of Airth in that Kingdom: he was in (1655?) as appears by the Council Office Books in the State-paper Office in Dublin Castle: he presented to the Congregation of Broad Island six Silver Communion Cups, in use there to this day 1827."

Sir William Bruce, ?1627-1710, of Balcaskie, cr. a baronet (NS) in 1668, purchased the barony of Kinross in 1671 became King's surveyor and Master of Works. He designed the fine mansion of Kinross, completed in 1690. Sir William restored part of Holyroodhouse, and was the architect of Moncrieffe House and the center part of Hopetoun House. To him belongs the credit for the radical change from baronial to classical architecture in Scotland. (published 1996]

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem.

This step is often the most difficult because it requires a clear understanding of the problem and its causes. It is important to identify the problem as early as possible in the process to avoid further complications.

2. The second step is to analyze the problem and determine its causes.

This step involves a thorough investigation of the problem to identify its root causes. It is important to consider all possible causes and to use a variety of techniques to identify the most likely causes.

3. The third step is to develop a plan of action.

This step involves developing a clear and concise plan of action that addresses the problem.

The plan should include specific steps to be taken and a timeline for completion.

4. The fourth step is to implement the plan.

This step involves putting the plan into action and monitoring progress.

It is important to communicate the plan to all relevant parties and to ensure that everyone is clear on their roles and responsibilities.

5. The fifth step is to evaluate the results of the plan.

This step involves assessing the effectiveness of the plan and identifying any areas for improvement. It is important to gather feedback from all relevant parties and to use this feedback to make adjustments to the plan.

6. The sixth step is to document the results of the plan.

This step involves creating a record of the plan and its results for future reference.

7. The seventh step is to review the process.

This step involves reflecting on the entire process and identifying any lessons learned. It is important to share these lessons with others to help them avoid similar problems in the future.

James S. Brice came to Fairfield County, South Carolina direct from County Antrim, Ireland, between 1780 and 1790. He purchased land and built a home about two miles from Little River. This home was near what is known as "The Old Rock Spring" and like all homes of that day, was of logs. He later erected a large two-story house on a prominent hill near the cross-roads (near what was afterwards a post office known as Albion) which was burned during the War between the States.

He had been a tailor in the "old country", and when he reached America, was quite poor--was often heard to say that he possessed nothing, but his "needle, thimble, and goose." He quickly accumulated several large tracts of land, owned slaves, and became one of the wealthy planters of that section. He owned ten thousand acres of land before dividing with his children.

James Brice was known as "Peg Leg Jim" on account of his having lost a leg from the effects of typhoid fever. It is related that the nearest physician and surgeon...a Dr. Bratton (father of Brig. Gen. Bratton of Confederate fame) lived some twenty one miles away. he was sent for, came and amputated Mr. Brice's leg. Anesthetics, of course, were unknown at that time. After taking a drink of brandy, Mr. Brice got upon the operating table, and sat up, watching the operation with a great display of nerve.

He lived to old age, was twice married, the second wife dying several years before his death. He is buried in the same grave with his first wife, and his second wife lies "along side" all in the cemetery of New Hope, ARP Church, Fairfield County, SC.

In I Had a Real Good Time, the recollections of James Moffatt Brice (1862 - 1926) the family ancestry as far as Mr. Brice knew it was discussed:

"How far back in the past was it that my ancestor crossed the English Channel and located in Scotland? How many thousands of years did it take for that primeval horde from which he descended to travel from the great parent state, located perhaps somewhere in the Hindu Kush, to the western part of Europe?

Did my wild and heathen ancestor in Scotland learn of Julius Caesar's visit to Great Britain? Caesar says that the interior tribes lived on milk and meat and that they did not sow and reap. James Bryce, the English statesman, says that the Brices belonged to the Picts of Scotland. The Picts lived in the lowlands, the plains, of Scotland and had cattle and sheep and lived in established homes. The Scots lived in the northern and western Highlands. The word Scot means wanderer or vagabond. They were bands of wild, rude, half-naked barbarians and referred contemptuously to the Picts as "wheat-eaters."

We know that we are Celts. History knows much of the virtues, the vices, the strong points and the weaknesses of the Celtic race and we are descended from that branch of the Celtic family that apparently exhibits more of the virtues and fewer of the defects than any other branch. We refer, of course, to the people of Scotland.

My great-grandfather was "Stick-legged" Jamie Brice. He left County Antrim near the year 1800 and came to South Carolina, where he married Miss Agnes Wilson. Mr. Brice was a tailor by trade. He prospered in the New World. And, like all Old World people, he was hungry for land. Investing judiciously, he soon acquired a large, landed estate.

Mr. Brice developed a trouble in one of his legs. Whether it was "white-swelling" or tubercular is not known. Anyway, he determined to have his leg taken off. So, one summer day, he was taken to the shade of a tree out in the yard. Chloroform had not yet been discovered, but very likely copious draughts of whiskey were used and the leg was sawed off. A carpenter's saw was the instrument applied. My Aunt Amanda [my ggrandmother] has told me that in her early girlhood, long after his death, she saw up in the garret the old wooden leg that he used after this operation.

The old man, we expect, was unhappy in his Old age. He married again after the death of his first wife. There was a large family of sons and daughters - among them, Robert Brice, my grandfather. Jamie was accustomed to going from the home of one child to another till he made the "grand round." Whatsoever home he was at, he would express dissatisfaction, what things were in better shape at the homes of all the others and that they were all making better progress. We presume his idea was to stimulate to supreme the one he was with for the moment, so as to create a generous rivalry and thus secure a general family uplift.

The old man seems to have fondly loved liquor. Returning from town one Saturday afternoon, he got no further than the big gate. He could get no further. The horse and the partially empty jug were nearby. His son, Sam Brice, came along and took him home and then the next day reported the whole proceeding to the church session.

This church was the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, so-called Seceders of "psalm-singing" Presbyterians. It was something fierce! They "had it in" for Odd-Fellows, and in fact, all secret orders; also for dancing, drunkenness and so on.

A member could not observe the sacrament of the Lord's Supper unless he had a "token." The token was a sort of admission ticket to the Lord's Table and to get the token, the member applied on Sunday morning (or Sabbath, as they all then called it) to the elders who sat in a little house just off the main building. Members who had been indulging in worldly things or had been getting too drunk were refused their tokens, or at least refused them till repentance and contrition of heart was expressed.

"Stick-legged" Jamie seems to have had some stern and severe and rugged stuff in his make-up. Upon being

69. Walter Brice M.D. ^{1,11} was born on 5 Sep 1804 in Fairfield County, SC ¹², died on 7 Dec 1871 in Fairfield County, SC ¹² and was buried in New Hope Cemetery.

This must be the Dr. Walter Brice to whom the later Dr. Walter Brice of Troy, TN came for apprenticeship in medical practice.

From The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte, NC, 1944:

"My grandfather was born September 5, 1804. As he came into the world, his mother passed out of the world, and he was nurtured by a Negro wet nurse.

He attended Mr. Zion Institute in Winnsboro, Jefferson College in Pennsylvania and later graduated in medicine at the College of Charleston.

Transportation facilities were so lacking in those early days that my grandfather had to ride on horseback to the point of connection with the stage coach. There he would sell his horse and, on the return journey, would buy another horse on which to ride home.

Naturally, there were very few return trips. In the case of my grandfather, there was only one return trip as he would spend summer vacations working in the mountainous regions of Pennsylvania and went to Jefferson College two years without visiting home.

Returning home after two years, he decided to study medicine and took a preliminary course of reading with Dr. John Douglas, who married Mary Lunsford, the half-sister of Martha Emaline Moore, who was to become his wife.

It was while boarding in the Douglas home that he met her.

Just why the young student took this preliminary course with a practicing physician isn't now apparent for he took the full course at the Medical College in Charleston and later attended lectures in New York City. The education of Dr. Walter Brice must have been far superior to that of the physicians of that period and he met, in every respect, the qualifications of a Southern gentleman, being fastidious in his dress, and courtly in his manners.

He was twice nominated for the Legislature but always declined public office.

He built an office in the side yard of his home in Fairfield County. This came to be known as "The Doctor Shop," and I can remember as a small child, being told tales about the old skeleton which was still in the house at that time. This building is still in very good shape, although there is no longer a floor and it has been converted into a garage.

I still have a memorandum book showing the fees charged different people. The standard charge for an office visit seems to have been $.50 and if the doctor had to go see the patient, the charge was $1.00. Contrasting was indeed a striking resemblance between my father and the wax figure of General Lee.

In politics, my father was conservative and although as a young man he had been a member of the Red Shirts who drove the Carpetbaggers out of South Carolina in 1876, with the election of General Wade Hampton, the democratic party under William Jennings Bryan became too radical for him.

Like so many southerners, born long since 1876, he would vigorously deny that he was not a Democrat, ignoring the facts of history which show beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Democratic party must continue to be liberal rather than conservative if it hopes for victory at the polls.

The Civil War came to a close just in time to prevent my father going. He was almost 18 years old when Sherman's raiders came through and I have heard him tell of the incident when a Yankee Sgt. tried to get the boy to promise not to use his shot gun to shoot Yankees. When the boy refused, the Sgt. beat the gun over a grindstone and broke the gun stock all to pieces, but fortunately, there was a good gunsmith in the neighborhood and he restored the gun to good condition.

My father enjoyed telling tales of that very eventful period in history and I wish now that I had written some of them as he told them. He left us Dec. 27, 1937, and, with his passing, the three surviving children lost a father of whom they have every right to be proud.

Samuel married Alice Crayton Miller on 6 Dec 1876. (Alice Crayton Miller was born on 21 Jan 1856 and died on 5 Oct 1943.)

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte, NC, 1944:

"My mother's family had its origin in Switzerland and Holland, coming late North Carolina by way of Pennsylvania, and we will begin this narrative with John Miller, born in 1754, married to Susan Twitty, a heroine of the Rev. War, who was born in 1763. Their children were Mary, Susan, William, Elizabeth, David, and the one who was to become my grandfather, who died in 1897.

Like my paternal grandparents, they had a large family and lost three sons in the Civil War.

My mother, Alice Crayton Miller, was their youngest daughter, born Jan. 23, 1856.

Another similarity between the Brice and the Miller families is that my mother's father was also a doctor, practicing in Cleveland Co., and Dr. Miller also owned large plantations and numerous slaves. He was referred to as Dr. William J. T. Miller and was prominent in the State of North Carolina as well as in his immediate section.

In describing my mother there will be none of that maudlin sentimentality so often used, for I am sure she would not want it that way. The English language is replete with adjectives and more of them can be used in describing my mother than any other woman I have ever known.

She was lively, vivacious, sprightly, animated, high-spirited, airy and with it all, she had a keen mind and a good-business judgment. Here was a very unusual personality. She was full of life, enjoyed the society of friends, and was always ready to go almost anywhere at any time.

In her last years she was subject to attacks without much warning and at these times she would remain unconscious for as long as 48 hours and semi-conscious for still longer periods. Our problem during these trying years was to get our mother to understand that she should not attempt to go visiting, shopping, or to church. We would take her on automobile rides and, strangely, as it seemed to us, she preferred being taken downtown, where there were lots of people, to going out into the peaceful countryside. We always felt one of these attacks would take her away, but she had an unusually strong constitution which, together with a strong will to live, would carry her through and she would become, in a remarkably short time, the same vibrant personality as before her illness.

One of these attacks did prove too much for her waning strength and her proud spirit passed into another world Oct. 5, 1943, to join the life partner which whom she had spent 60 years of wedded bliss.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte, NC, 1944:

The youngest child of our family, Eugene Harold, graduated from Southern Medical College in Atlanta, and served in internship in the hospital of the City of New York.

It was customary in New York to take a sea voyage before settling down to the practice of medicine. Eugene sailed as surgeon of a Booth Line Steamship which went far up the Amazon River. Although the Booth Line had not experienced a case of Yellow Fever on one of their boats for years, it was Eugene's fate to contract yellow fever on the return voyage. He died at sea and was buried at sea off Barbadoes in the West Indies.

I went to New York when the ship came in, talked with the ship's officers, who were almost as grief-stricken as I was, and I carried Eugene's effects back to Atlanta.

It was a great tragedy in my life, as Eugene and I were devoted to each other and I still look back upon it with a great question in my mind as to why one so young and so promising should be cut down just as life was unfolding before him.

1. The first step is to identify the problem.

There are many ways to do this, but the most common is to ask the customer what the problem is. This can be done in a number of ways, such as by asking the customer to describe the problem, by asking the customer to show you the problem, or by asking the customer to tell you what they have tried to do to solve the problem.

2. The second step is to gather information about the problem.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by asking the customer for more details about the problem, by asking the customer for more information about the product or service, or by asking the customer for more information about the situation in which the problem occurred.

3. The third step is to analyze the information.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by comparing the information to similar problems, by looking for patterns in the information, or by using a process flowchart to analyze the information.

4. The fourth step is to develop a solution.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by brainstorming ideas, by using a decision tree to evaluate different solutions, or by using a cost-benefit analysis to evaluate different solutions.

5. The fifth step is to implement the solution.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by creating a plan of action, by assigning responsibilities, or by setting a timeline for implementation.

6. The sixth step is to evaluate the results.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by comparing the results to the original problem, by asking the customer for feedback, or by using a customer satisfaction survey.

7. The seventh step is to document the solution.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by creating a user manual, by creating a troubleshooting guide, or by creating a knowledge base.

8. The eighth step is to provide training.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by creating a training manual, by creating a video, or by providing hands-on training.

9. The ninth step is to monitor the solution.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by creating a monitoring system, by asking the customer for feedback, or by using a customer satisfaction survey.

10. The tenth step is to improve the solution.

This can be done in a number of ways, such as by creating a feedback loop, by asking the customer for feedback, or by using a customer satisfaction survey.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Robert Wade Brice was born June 10, 1836. He was called Wade and bore such a striking resemblance to General Wade Hampton that I always thought his name was Wade Hampton Brice.

He was twice married - his first wife, Margaret Bell, lived only a short time after the marriage which was Dec. 2, 1858. While serving as a soldier in the Civil War, he was married Feb. 26, 1863, to Martha Matilda Watson, known to me as Aunt Tilly.

Uncle Wade was wounded in the leg in the Battle of Seven Pines which made it necessary that he resign his commission of Lt. He re-enlisted in the fall of 1864 and served with the Second Cavalry until the end of the war.

Robert married Margaret Bell on 2 Dec 1858.

Robert also married Martha Matilda Watson on 26 Feb 1863.

They had the following children:

Wilson married Fletcher Olds Rösser on 23 Sep 1914.

122. Thomas William Brice¹ was born on 22 Nov 1841 in Fairfield County, SC and died in 1908 in Fairfield County, SC.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Thomas William Brice was born Nov. 22, 1841. He fought through the Civil War and lost his right eye on Nov. 15, 1863, while fighting in East Tennessee.

He was married on Feb. 22, 1866 to Nancy Eugenia Boyce. "The Major," as he was called, achieved the highest rank in the Confederate Army and also became the wealthiest member of the family.

At the outbreak of the war he was attending school at Erskine College, but enlisted at Columbia in Hampton's Legion. He participated in the first battle of Manassas and fought with the Legion until the Maryland campaign when he was transferred to the Sixth S. C. Regt. and became a Lt.

Bethel and Ebenezer, Ga., he was ordained and installed pastor of Tirzah, Union co., N. C., and Shiloh, Lancaster Co., S. C. Nov. 3rd, 1848. Margaret, daughter of Capt. Wm. Bonner, of Wilcox Co., Ala., linked her life to this gifted licentiate. A bride of three months, this beautiful but fragile flower wilted Aug. 4, 1846. With amiable temper and gentle manners, she won favor and admiration.

His second marriage, May 24, 1849, was to Miss Margaret, daughter of Robt. Brice, Esq., of Fairfield Co., S. C. She was a good woman, a devoted mother and wife. Two of her sons, Gardiner springs and Lawrence Henry, became ministers. She died Jan. 31, 1868.

In the fall of 1867 he made complaint of the conduct of two elders in Shiloh, and later that congregation desiring the relation dissolved, a commission was appointed "to adjudicate the difficulties there existing." This committee recommended the dissolution of the pastoral relation, which was done Sept. 23, 1868, the congregation being required to pay balance of salary. These arrearages and declaring the pulpit vacant led to strained relations between him and some members of his Presbytery.

"Partiality, tyranny and usurpation" being his complaint against the Presbytery, this court began a formal process at Ebenezer, N. C. July 16, 1873. when every thing was ready for trial, Rev. Robinson requested and Presbytery agreed to submit this whole matter to a Board of arbitrators, two of whom should be selected by himself, two by the prosecuting Court, the four to select a fifth, all of them to be members of the A. R. P. church outside the Presbytery, and their decision final. This Arbitration board met at New Hope Church, Fairfield Co., S. C. Dec. 3rd, 1873, and unanimously sustained the charge of the First Presbytery, "making due allowance for peculiar circumstances and temperament of Mr. Robinson, some palliation of the offence should be allowed." D. G. Phillips, D. F. Haddon, H. T. Sloan, Joseph Caldwell, J. L. Miller.

Making exception to the construction of the Board, which the Presbytery refused to entertain, and in April, 1874, giving verbal notice of his withdrawal, this judicatory erased his name Sept. 8, 1874.

He was in his best days a fine preacher, a clear, trenchant and logical writer, a man of the most remarkable nerve and coolness. A bright future was largely clouded, a prospective usefulness partly hindered, pure Christian joy largely interrupted because out of tune "in submission to the spirit of meekness, to the admonitions of the brethren of this Presbytery."

He joined the Southern Presbyterian Church and for a number of years carried through all our courts the same unhappy litigation.

After a stormy life, he left evidence that he entered peacefully the haven of rest, Nov. 1902.

She was a cousin of my mother and daughter of William Brice of Cavan. She married her cousin William Malcolmson F.R.C.S.I. Lt. Col. 4th Bat. Royal Irish Fusiliers and medical officer of the Cavan dispensary for many years. She was a highly cultured woman and in her day extremely handsome. She was a fearless horse woman and a most excellent painter. She was fond of looking up families and many years ago established the connection through Nicholas by means of the perusal of old wills and other deeds and documents in Dublin, all of which are now destroyed. I had several talks with her on the subject of the Brice family and she often told me of a William Brice who married Jennie McClure and when I asked her about their family she always told me they emigrated to America and I see now that this accounts in great measure for the disappearance of Brices from this country with the exception of my wife's family, and I am glad to know that you have taken an interest in this matter....." At last I am sending you as much information as I can at present on the subject of our family. I hope you will forgive me for not being able to send it before this but the information came from scattered sources, however I believe the enclosed is accurate.

I regret very much that I did not put all this down in order long ago, before the death of Elizabeth Malcolmson which took place in 1916 aged 86 years. She was a cousin of my mother and daughter of William Brice of Cavan. She married her cousin William Malcolmson F.R.C.S.I. Lt. Col. 4th Bat, Royal Irish Fusiliers an medical officer of the Cavan Dispensary for many years. She was a highly cultured woman and a most excellent painter. She was fond of looking up families and many years ago established the connection through Nicholas by means of the perusal of old wills and other deeds and documents in Dublin, all of which are now destroyed. I had several talks with her on the subject of the Brice family and she often told me of a William Brice who married Jennie McClure and when I asked her about their family she always told me they emigrated to America and I see now that this accounts in great measure for the disappearance of Brices from this country with the exception of my wife's family, and I am glad to know that you have taken an interest in this matter. Some years ago I was trying to find out something about the McClures which is a great County

Antrim name, some of whom rose to great distinction. There was a Sir William McClure in the vicinity of Ballymena, but I will find out more about this later on. there was a George McClure who was headmaster of the Academy Ballymena, in 1760 and no doubt this was a close relation of Jennie. I have not been able to trace how those people came to be about Killlala which is in the west of Ireland. Edward Brice, my great great grandfather had ships at sea and traded with Scotland, just the same as Robert and Rondell of which there is a record. I have several notes on the subject which I have not been able up to the present to find. I had copies of my great grandfather's lectures which he attended under the great Monro in Edinburg, he was Frederick Augustus Brice, MD. of Cavan. I once saw a record of how he was present at the Battle of Grenard in the Irish Rebellion and distinguished himself there, he having marched out with the Cavan yeomanry. William Brice was his uncle and your great great grandfather. I take it you are my own generation. I am just 60 years of age and have lived all my life since 5 years old in Armagh. I was brought up and educated by my grand uncle the late Alexander Brice who came to this city from Cavan in 1830 he died in 1881 aged 79. His mother Elizabeth Brice died in Armagh 29 January, 1835 but I think she is buried in Cavan with the husband who died in 1813, aged 39. I have her will in parchment.

I was educated at the Royal School Armagh and studied medicine in Dublin and became qualified L.R.C.T.I. in 1883 just before I was 20 years of age. I afterward took a good many of the higher degrees and dipomas. I have been medical officer of the Armagh District Hospital and Fevn Hospital since 1891. I served in the South African war as civil Surgeon 1901-2 - medal and 4 clasps. I joined the R.M.A.C and was 4 years in the great war and was promoted to the rank of Major and held a war office appointment as Senior medical officer Command Depots. I took an active part in the anti-tuberculosis campaign started by Her Excellency the Marchioness of Aberdeen, the wife of Lord Lieu ...?.... of Ireland and as principal lecturer saw and lectured in most of the towns in Ireland in 1907 to 1910.

My wife also served in the army as a Sister in Queen Alexander's Imperial Nursing service Reserve. We came back at Xmas 1918 and resumed our work. I was appoint O.C. Military Hospital and medical officer in charge of troops here in 1921 and that is all I'm going to tell you about myself.

During my investigations for you I wrote to Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane of London who is a very big surgeon. He is a descendant of the Rev. Arbuthnot through his mother and I have some very interesting letters from a sister of his one the subject.

I am sending you a copy of the old tomb at Ballycarry it appeared in the Telegraph on 15 May 1913 and a long article by I.W. Kernoghan who I am sorry to say is since dead but I wish to get in touch with a Francis Bigger who is learned in these matters and he may be able to give me some further information. I have an old notebook which belonged to my great grandfather but which is temporarily lost. It contains entries concerning my grand uncle and his brother William my wife's grandfather who were at school here 1810, 1811, 1812 at a school which was kept by their cousin Kitty Arbuthnot - my grand uncle whose enlarged photo I have - if living would now be 122. He is now dead 43 years and it just seems like yesterday. I am at present wearing an old gold chain which belonged to his father which he gave me with gold watch in 1877 when I passed my first examination in Dublin at 14 years of age. I have also in my possession a few silver spoons with a monogram F.E.B. which means Frederick and Elizabeth Brice probably bought at their wedding.

My grand uncle and my wife's grandfather were healthy strong knit men but short of stature, especially Alexander, he was much below the average height. Some of the Malcolmson men were fairly tall (sons of Mary Brice) John of Dublin was one of my dearest friends. He was about six foot. He was law agent in the Bank of Ireland and was one of the most cultured and charming men I ever knew, you will see by the enclosed all about his family. Claud and his sister Mrs. Armstrong are dead but Ralph is still alive an advocate in the Supreme Court living in Allahabad.

I must really stop writing now. I haven't written as much for a very long time, of course I could go on for weeks. Our cousins the Beatties in Belfast are a nice family, he is a very prominent R. C. He has recently bought a new house, a mansion, he stayed with us during the last Assize when on circuit.

Perhaps you will visit this country soon, if so we will be very pleased to see you but it is in a peculiar state at present.

I cannot understand how any honest person can take such fantastic reading out of article 12 - surely a body of men such as the Bill Circuit is composed of if they had intended to reduce the area of the six counties would have said so and not talk of determining the boundary between the six northern counties and the rest of Ireland.

If they took away two counties surely the boundary would be between four and the rest of Ireland the thing is absurd and a perfect mess.

I am glad Patsey wrote to you she is a smart lass and doing well at school. Aleck is a fine lad and smart with a good sense of humor.

Now I hope I have cleared up most of the doubt in your mind.

The Brices were evidently a nice lot of people and I know my grand uncle was a saint on earth - his sister Catherine was a very intelligent well cultured old dame. She lived and died here. I remember old Mary perfectly. She was a wonderful old lady and her son Robert was a very clever man he also was greatly interested in pedigrees and could trace almost any family of note in this country. I was he who traced out the pedigree of Eliz. Moore daughter of James Moore who married a Miss Hall daughter of I. Hall 3rd son of John Hall of Narrow Water. There are two books in this country which contain a lot of information Burke's Peerage and Burkes Landed Gentry, the marriages of the Brices are mentioned with the Maxwells, Knoxs, etc.

Next door to us lives Mrs. Milling widow of the late J. Milling, Resident Magistrate who was murdered by the rebels at Westport in 1919. Her eldest son has gone to the States, Seattle, to ..?. his fortune, he was in the Indian (?) Army but left on _____ with many more. You will see his mother name Lilla she is a granddaughter of Mary Brice. She is very nice but now sad. She has 210. James Moffatt Brice¹ was born on 6 Jul 1862 in Montecello, Arkansas and died on 17 Nov 1926 in Nashville, Davidson Co., TN.

Author of I Had a Real Good Time, the recollections of James M. Brice 1862 - 1926.

From the introduction:

Mr. Brice was born in 1862 in Arkansas. His mother had come to Troy [TN] by wagon train as a child in 1840. following her marriage, her husband moved to Arkansas, Louisiana and then Texas, where he died. James returned to Troy with his mother and the other children in 1879. Following the completion of his early schooling in Troy, he studied at Peabody Normal in Nashville and at the National Normal University in Lebanon, Ohio. For a time he was a cadet at West Point. Following a brief period as a teacher near Troy, he became editor of the troy News-Banner in 1888. He brought his paper to Union City in 1910 and continued publication there until the death of his son, Paul, caused him to lose interest in the work. In 1921 he ceased publication and moved to Nashville, where his daughter was living. Here he operated grocery until ill health forced him to cease operations in 1924.

The manuscript was apparently completed between 1924 and 1926 when he died.

James married Artie Lee Crockett on 21 Oct 1899 in Arp Church, Troy, TN. (Artie Lee Crockett was born about 1870 in Obion County, TN.)

They had the following children:

118 M i. James Michael Brice MD¹ was born 7 or 27 Apr 1832 and died on 30 Sep 1864 in Fort Harrison.

From The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

"The first of the children of my grandparents was James Michael Brice, born April 27, 1832. He was called Michael and grew to be a very handsome man. He fought through the Civil War, having organized the Little River Guards at the out break of the war and when the war was almost over, he was killed at Fort Harrison, on Sept. 30, 1864. he was never married and was promoted to Captain in the early days of the war.

Michael was educated to be the doctor of the family and it has always puzzled us to figure out why he was in combat duty rather than in the Medical Corps. My research has brought out the fact that he preferred to be in combat service but, late, did decide to resume his medical work, had taken an examination and had his commission in the Medical Corps in his pocket at the time he was killed."

119 M ii. Walter Scott Brice¹ was born on 26 Mar 1834 and died on 13 Jul 1862.

From The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Walter Scott Brice was born March 26, 1834, married Martha E. Simonton on Feb. 16, 1860. He enlisted in the 12th Regiment in 1861 and died of fever in a hospital at Richmond July 13, 1862. We have a very interesting letter which Scott wrote to his parents in 1854, about a trip he and three other young men made from Louisiana where he had been teaching school, into Texas. It was a very wild country and they made the trip on foot, camping in the woods and living chiefly on wild game.

Walter married Martha E. Simonton on 16 Feb 1860.

+ 120 M iii. Samuel George Brice¹ was born on 20 Aug 1849 in Fairfield County, SC, died on 27 Dec 1937 in Shelby, NC and was buried in New Hope Cemetery

+ 121 M iv. Robert Wade Brice¹ was born on 10 Jun 1836 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 22 Oct 1882

+ 122 M v. Thomas William Brice¹ was born on 22 Nov 1841 in Fairfield County, SC and died in 1908 in Fairfield County, SC

123 M vi. John Moore Brice¹ was born on 7 Mar 1839 and died on 3 Jun 1864 in Richmond, VA.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

John Moore Brice was born March 7, 1839. John, like his brother Michael, fought through the Civil War and was not killed until the war was nearing the end. He was killed on picket duty in Virginia before Richmond, June 3, 1864, and I have the letter from Tom to his parents, conveying the sad news that his brother John had been killed.

Reading this letter, I could not help but think of the episode of Governor Means offering to wipe up with his pocket handkerchief, all of the blood that would be shed.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities within the organization.

2. It is essential to ensure that all data is entered correctly and consistently to avoid any discrepancies or errors.

3. Regular audits and reviews should be conducted to verify the accuracy and integrity of the information stored in the system.

4. Proper access controls and security measures must be implemented to protect sensitive data from unauthorized access or theft.

5. The organization should also ensure that all users are properly trained and aware of their responsibilities regarding data management.

6. Finally, it is crucial to have a clear backup and recovery strategy in place to ensure that data can be restored in the event of a disaster or system failure.

7. By following these guidelines, the organization can effectively manage its data and ensure its long-term security and availability.

8. The second part of the document provides a detailed overview of the current status of the project and the progress made to date.

9. The project has been successfully completed, and all objectives have been met within the specified timeline.

10. The results of the project have been positive, and the organization is pleased with the outcomes achieved.

11. The project team has demonstrated exceptional dedication and hard work throughout the entire process.

12. The organization is grateful for the support and collaboration provided by all stakeholders involved in the project.

13. The project has set a strong foundation for future initiatives, and the organization is confident in its ability to continue to grow and succeed.

124 F vii. Rebecca Jane Brice^{1,9} was born on 6 Sep 1844 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 4 Jul 1901.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Rebecca Jane Brice was born Sept. 8, 1844. She was twice married, the first time to James Lawrence Rosborough, Oct. 20, 1869. He died July 18, 1872. To this marriage was born one daughter, Mary Emeline on August 20, 1870, named for her grandmother, and now Mrs. Wade Macfie, living in winnsboro, SC. My Aunt Becky is remembered by me as a handsome woman with coal black harie and it was siad that when released, her hair came down below her waist.

After the death of Mr. Rosborough, she married John A. Brice, who was born Nov. 8, 1822, and died Nov. 1890. (Apparently also her uncle, her father's brother)

Incidently, he is the grandfather of John A. Brice, now President of The Atlanta Journal. Two daughters were born to this union: Rebecca and Jennie, both of whom are still living.

Rebecca married John Alexander Brice, son of Robert Brice and Margaret Simonton, on 15 Jan 1879. (John Alexander Brice was born on 8 Nov 1822 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died in Nov 1890.)

125 M viii. Wilson Mcdonald Brice¹ was born on 21 Mar 1847.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Wilson McDonald Brice was born March 21, 1847, and was never married. While old enough to have gotten into the war before its close, he was quite delicate and was sick upstairs when Sherman's raiders came through.

The family silver had been buried and the Yankee officer, despite my grandmother's pleading, was preparing to apply a torch to the house, after promising to remove the sick boy, when grandmother gave in and directed the negro servant to guide them to the silver.

This faithful servant held out on them, as we would say now, and directed them to only a small part of the silver. They did get some silver cups, and evidently divided the booty among themselves. At any rate, one of the cups was found on a dead Yankee soldier who was shot from his horse at Broad River, and from the inscription on it, the cup was restored to my grandfather several years after the war. This cup is still in the possession of my nephew, Walter Brice, Jr. of Spartanburg, SC.

My Uncle Wilson was fond of horticulture, rather than agriculture, and he will always be remembered by me as the most unselfish man I ever knew. He is the only person I can conceive of who would plant a rather large orchard, knowing full well that his days were numbered and he could never hope to enjoy the fruits of his labor.

126 M ix. David Lunsford Brice¹ was born on 21 Oct 1852 and died on 21 Jan 1867.

From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

David Lunsford Brice was born Oct. 21, 1852. Being only a boy inn his 13th year at the close of the war, he, of course, escaped the terrible war, but was killed Jan 21, 1867, by a tree falling on him while he was standing watching some negro men cut down the tree.

72. Nancy Brice^{1,9} was born in 1802 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 28 Jun 1864.

Noted events in her life were:

1. Fact 1; Both Buried New Hope Arp Cemetery, Fairfield Co., SC.

Nancy married John Simonton Jr., son of John Simonton and Margaret Strong. (John Simonton Jr. was born on 8 Nov 1797 in South Carolina ¹² and died on 13 May 1880 ¹².)

They had the following children:

127 M i. W. B. Simonton ¹.

From The Brice Family by L.S.Brice:

W. B. Simonton was a son of Nancy Brice and John Simonton. He was in Co. H, 12th SCV and lost a leg at the Battle of Sharpsburg, Sept 17, 1862.

+ 128 M ii. Samuel Robert Simonton ¹ was born in 1847 and died in 1889

73. William Brice ^{1,9} was born in 1793 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 9 Mar 1872 in Farifield, Co., S. C.

William married Mary Simonton, daughter of John Simonton and Margaret Strong, on 6 Oct 1829 in Performed By Rev. John Hemphill. (Mary Simonton was born on 16 Dec 1809 and died on 20 Jun 1890 in Farifield, Co., S. C.)

They had the following children:

+ 129 F i. Margaret Brice ¹ was born on 18 Dec 1831 and died in 1868

+ 130 M ii. Calvin Brice ¹ was born on 5 Oct 1832 and died in 1905

131 M iii. Robert R. Brice ¹ was born on 13 Sep 1834 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 25 Apr 1861 in Fairfield Co. S.C.

132 F iv. Jane W. Brice ¹ was born on 18 Mar 1836.

Jane married John C. Yongue on 12 Mar 1855. (John C. Yongue was born in Yonguesville, SC.)

133 M v. John Pressly Brice ^{1,14} was born on 27 Dec 1837 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 24 Jul 1862 in Fairfield Co. S.C.

p. 163 "Departed this life on the 24th July. John Pressly Brice, aged 24 years and 7 months...He graduated in Erskine college about the year 1856, studied law, and settled in Washington, Ark., where he pursued his profession. He joined the army in March last, and served in the Artillery Department as 2nd Lieutenant in Fort Pillow. After a time he was ordered to Corinth, but falling sick, he returned to his father, William Brice, Fairfield District on the 4th June where he died on the 24th of July, of an affection of the lungs."

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for the success of any business and for the protection of the interests of all parties involved.

Section 1: Introduction

This section provides an overview of the document's purpose and scope.

The following sections will discuss the various aspects of the project in detail.

The second part of the document details the specific objectives and goals of the project. It outlines the key areas of focus and the expected outcomes of the initiative.

The third part of the document describes the methodology and approach used to conduct the research and analysis.

The fourth part of the document presents the findings and results of the study, supported by relevant data and evidence.

The fifth part of the document discusses the implications and conclusions drawn from the research. It highlights the key takeaways and provides recommendations for future action.

Section 2: Methodology

This section describes the research methods and data collection techniques used in the study.

The data was collected through a combination of primary and secondary sources.

The primary data was obtained through interviews, surveys, and focus groups. The secondary data was sourced from published reports, academic journals, and industry publications.

The data was analyzed using statistical software and qualitative analysis techniques.

The results of the analysis are presented in the following sections, along with a discussion of the findings.

The findings of the study indicate that there is a significant correlation between the variables studied. The results suggest that the proposed intervention may have a positive impact on the outcomes measured.

Based on the findings, it is recommended that the organization implement the proposed changes to improve performance. Further research is needed to explore the long-term effects of the intervention and to identify any potential challenges or barriers to implementation.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions.

2. It is essential to ensure that all entries are supported by appropriate documentation and receipts.

3. The second section outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze financial data.

4. These methods include direct observation, interviews, and the use of specialized software tools.

5. The third part of the document focuses on the challenges faced by researchers in this field.

6. One major challenge is the lack of standardized procedures for data collection and analysis.

7. Another challenge is the potential for bias in the selection of samples and the interpretation of results.

8. The fourth section discusses the importance of transparency and ethical considerations in research.

9. Researchers must clearly disclose any conflicts of interest and ensure that their work is conducted in an ethical manner.

10. Finally, the document concludes by emphasizing the need for ongoing collaboration and communication among researchers.

11. This will help to address the challenges mentioned earlier and advance the field of research.

12. The authors hope that this document will provide a useful overview of the current state of the field.

13. It also aims to highlight the areas where further research is needed and to encourage researchers to work together.

14. In conclusion, the document stresses the importance of rigorous and ethical research practices.

15. Only through such efforts can we hope to gain a better understanding of the complex issues at hand.

Letter from Dr. Robert T. Herron to Brice family in Charlotte, 1924:

"I regret very much that I did not put all this down in order long ago, before the death of Elizabeth Malcolmson which took place in 1916 aged 86 years. She was a cousin of my mother and daughter of William Brice of Cavan. She married her cousin William Malcolmson F.R.C.S.I. Lt. Col. 4th Bat. Royal Irish Fusiliers and medical officer of the Cavan dispensary for many years. She was a highly cultured woman and in her day extremely handsome. She was a fearless horse woman and a most excellent painter. She was fond of looking up families and many years ago established the connection through Nicholas by means of the perusal of old wills and other deeds and documents in Dublin, all of which are now destroyed. I had several talks with her on the subject of the Brice family and she often told me of a William Brice who married Jennie McClure and when I asked her about their family she always told me they emigrated to America and I see now that this accounts in great measure for the disappearance of Brices from this country with the exception of my wife's family, and I am glad to know that you have taken an interest in this matter....." From: The History of the Brice Family by George Wilson Brice, Charlotte NC, 1944:

Rebecca Jane Brice was born Sept. 8, 1844. She was twice married, the first time to James Lawrence Rosborough, Oct. 20, 1869. He died July 18, 1872. To this marriage was born one daughter, Mary Emeline on August 20, 1870, named for her grandmother, and now Mrs. Wade Macfie, living in Winnsboro, SC. My Aunt Becky is remembered by me as a handsome woman with coal black hair and it was said that when released, her hair came down below her waist.

After the death of Mr. Rosborough, she married John A. Brice, who was born Nov. 8, 1822, and died Nov. 1890. (Apparently also her uncle, her father's brother)

Incidentally, he is the grandfather of John A. Brice, now President of The Atlanta Journal. Two daughters were born to this union: Rebecca and Jennie, both of whom are still living.

110. Rev. Robert Wilson Brice^{1,9} was born on 2 Jul 1826 in Fairfield Co. S.C. and died on 14 Mar 1878 in Hopewell Church, Chester Co. S. C.

"The fourth pastor (of Hopewell Church, Chester County, S. C.) was Robert Wilson Brice. His term of service was near 28 years, May 31, 1850 to March 14, 1878. He was born and reared in the New Hope congregation, (Fairfield County, SC) a man of cultured and impressive, though simple, personality. "He had a clear intellect and sound judgment and rare common sense. He was a Bible student and teacher, his sermons being largely expositions of the Holy Word. His work as pastor and instructor and catechizer "from house to house" was regular and systematic. He is buried near the North Wall of the Cemetery."

-Sesquicentennial History of the ARP Church, p. 449

From The Centennial History of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church-1903. Charleston, S.C. 1905 pp 78-81

Rev. Robert Wilson Brice was born at the home of his father, Robert Brice, near New Hope Church in Fairfield Co., S. C., July 2nd, 1826. His ancestors were all Scotch-Irish. His grandfather, James Brice, came from County Antrim, Ireland, about 1780, and settled on Little River. He married Jane Wilson, the daughter of Robert Wilson, one of the leaders of the Whigs in his neighborhood, during the Revolutionary War.

The mother of Robert Wilson Brice was Margaret Simonton, the daughter of John Simonton and Jeannette Strong. On both sides the parents of Mr. Brice were intelligent and pious, thrifty and industrious. His grandfather, James Brice, gave the land on which the New Hope Church stands, and his father, Robert Brice, was for many years an elder in the congregation. His grandfather, John Simonton, was also an elder in New Hope.

When a boy, R. W. Brice attended the schools near his home, and was prepared for college by John McClurkin, who for many years taught the school at New Hope.

In the fall of 1840 he entered Erskine College, graduating in 1844. Even as a boy and young man, those noble traits of character which were displayed in his life afterwards, were plainly manifested, and he always exerted a good influence over his associates. He connected with the church while a student in college, and in Dec. 1844, when only a boy of eighteen, he began the study of Theology under his brother-in-law, Rev. L. McDonald, then pastor of Union Church in Chester Co.

The session of 1845- 1846, he spent in the A. R. Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., then presided over by Dr. John T. Pressly. On returning to the home of his father in the spring of 1846, he taught school for a time at New Hope, and then went to the Seminary at Due West, where he completed his course in the spring of 1848. He was received as a student by the First Presbytery in 1847, and was licensed in April, 1848. After supplying some of the vacancies in the First Presbytery, he was sent to Kentucky in 1848, to supply some of the vacancies in that state. In the winter of 1849-50 he received a call from Hinkston, Ky., and in Jan. 1850, he also received a call to Hopewell, Chester Co., S. C., and this latter call he accepted, and on May 31st, 1850, he was ordained and installed as pastor of Hopewell, and there spent the remainder of his life, as the beloved pastor of this people. On March 4th, 1850, he was happily married to Anna Maria, the daughter of Rev. John and Jane C. Steele, of Kentucky, who proved to be to him a helpmeet indeed, and a model pastor's wife. To them was born a large family of children, all of whom have proved worthy children of a noble pair. As a pastor, Mr. Brice was greatly beloved by his congregation. His people placed implicit confidence and trust in him, for they found him to be a man without guile and without hypocrisy. He possess a clear intellect, sound judgment and rare common sense. His sermons were plain, expository and practical, and more than ordinarily interesting and instructive. Dr. R. Lathan, who was raised in Hopewell, says: "He never preached a poor sermon--never an unstudied one." His custom was, during the winter months, to explain a Psalm and preach a sermon, and during the summer months to lecture on some Book of the Bible, selected in regular order, and then after a short interval to preach a

It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice to ensure transparency and accountability. This section also outlines the procedures for handling discrepancies and the role of the audit committee in overseeing the process.

3.0 Financial Reporting and Disclosure

This section details the requirements for financial reporting, including the frequency of reports and the specific information that must be disclosed. It also addresses the consequences of non-compliance with these reporting standards.

The following table provides a summary of the key reporting requirements:

Requirement	Frequency	Responsible Party
Quarterly Financial Statements	Quarterly	Finance Department
Annual Financial Statements	Annually	Finance Department
Material Change Reports	As Occurs	Management

It is crucial that all reporting is done in a timely and accurate manner. Any delays or inaccuracies could lead to legal and financial repercussions. The organization is committed to maintaining the highest standards of transparency and integrity in all its financial reporting.

The next section discusses the internal controls that are in place to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the financial data. These controls are designed to prevent and detect errors and fraud, and to ensure that all transactions are properly recorded and classified.

Internal controls are a fundamental part of the organization's risk management strategy. They help to identify and mitigate potential risks, and to ensure that the organization is operating in a controlled and efficient manner. Regular reviews and updates of these controls are necessary to keep them effective and relevant.

The organization has implemented a robust system of internal controls that covers all aspects of its operations. This system is based on the principles of segregation of duties, authorization, and independent verification. It is designed to provide a high level of assurance that the financial data is accurate and reliable.

Regular audits are conducted to assess the effectiveness of the internal controls and to identify any areas for improvement. The audit committee is responsible for overseeing these audits and for reporting the results to the board of directors. The organization is committed to continuous improvement and to ensuring that its internal controls remain up-to-date and effective.

The organization's commitment to transparency and integrity is a key part of its corporate culture. We believe that this commitment is essential for the long-term success of the organization and for the trust of our stakeholders. We will continue to work hard to maintain the highest standards of transparency and integrity in all our operations.

sermon. In this way he had explained the whole book of Psalms, and his lectures covered a good portion of the books of the New Testament. In his time Hopewell was literally a school house in which the Bible was taught. these faithful labors, together with regular pastoral visitation and catechizing were blessed to the edification of his congregation. In 1866 or 1867, Mr. Brice began to preach one third of his time at old Purity, two miles south of Chester, and there in 1869 he organized the present A. R. P. Church at Chester. He continued to minister to this new organization for one third of his time until October, 1875.

From the first to the last, Mr. Brice took an active interest in everything that pertained to the welfare of his denomination. He was constant in his attendance at Presbytery and Synod, and was an influential member of both these courts. He was Moderator of Synod at Sardis, N. C. in 1862, and at Hopewell, TN in 1874, and he was Treasurer of Synod's Home Mission funds from 1854 to 1878. In summing up the character of Mr. Brice, Dr. Lathan, who was in early life a member of his congregation, and for a while a student in his home, says in his history of Hopewell and its Pastors: "He was in the strictest sense of the word a model man. Nature had bestowed on him some rare gifts. His disposition was that of a high-toned Christian gentleman. In his nature there was nothing wild and fanciful. He was by every instinct of his being a matter of fact man. His passions were kept under perfect control. No man, so far as we know, ever saw him violently angry, nor did anyone ever hear him utter a hasty or rash sentence. All his convictions were reached calmly and conscientiously. Amid all the vicissitudes of life, he was, as near as mortal man can be, the same. His manners were plain but always gentlemanly.

No man was better adapted to make himself friends, and no man was better fitted to retain them when made. Nature designed him to govern others, in that he was granted power to govern himself."

With the close of the year 1877, the actual labors of Mr. Brice came to an end. On the last Sabbath of that years, he preached at Hopewell his last sermon. As the sun went down on the 14th of March 1878, he peacefully passed from earth saying: "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." On the 16th of March he was buried at Hopewell amid the tears of a sorrowing family and congregation. He left surviving him his beloved wife and ten children, three sons and seven daughters.

111. Christopher Simonton Brice^{1,9} was born on 25 Apr 1828 in Fairfield County, SC and died in 1900.

Research: Various birth dates exist for Christopher Simonton Brice, including ones in 1823, 1826, and 1828. The date 1828 seems most plausible based on the dates of his siblings, and is the one that appears in the records of Christopher Simonton's great granddaughter, Leslie Morris Gilbert Christy. It is also the most frequently appearing date in the records I have.

Christopher married Margaret Missouri Gooch, daughter of Henry Gooch and Martha Truesdale, on 4 Dec 1855¹⁵. (Margaret Missouri Gooch was born in 1836¹⁵ and died in 1893¹⁵.)

Harry Urban Wakefield, my grandfather, was the first born on December 31, 1875.

Pap's family lived in Cornersville all of his life as far as we know. His father, Thomas Winston Wakefield was born January 30, 1850 and was married to Martha Adelaide Cunningham, born in March of 1851 in the Richmond community of Bedford County.

Education was highly important in this family. Urban went to George Peabody College in Nashville before following his own father in farming and in the manufacture of farm implements.

Urban and Mayme met when Mayme moved to Cornersville to teach music. Urban's home was Cornersville. We don't know yet just why Mayme chose Cornersville as the place she would live.

Continued family research indicates that a possibility exists that Urban's mother, Martha Adelaide Cunningham Wakefield, may have been a kinswoman of Mayme's on Mayme's father's side of the family. The Cunningham family and the Enloe family lived in close proximity in North Carolina prior to removal to Bedford County and Obion County, Tennessee.

I grew up knowing Urban and Mayme as "Pap" and "B," nicknames I am told were generated by their son Enloe somewhere along the way. I am going to call them by those names, since I can't remember the others! Near the beginning of WWII, Pap and B had moved from Cornersville where they had lived as long as I could recall, to Shelbyville, to a house on the Wartrace Pike, between Miss Mamie Moore's farm, and Mr. John Moore's farm. Only a few acres, but a barn and a woods lot, and a house filled with good cheer as far as I was concerned.

When David died in 1945, the coffin was placed in the music room of the house, and the funeral held in the parlor.

When Pap died in 1953, the coffin and the wake were at the home, the funeral at First Presbyterian Church in Shelbyville where Pap had been a ruling elder for many years.

When B died in 1963, funerals were no longer held in homes, but in funeral parlors. Those were the early 60's when the world seemed to be changing very rapidly indeed.

They had the following children:

485 M i. Harry Urban Wakefield Jr. ¹ was born on 7 Nov 1902 in Marshall County, Tennessee and died on 15 Aug 1981 in Houston, Texas.

B and Pap had five sons.

The oldest brother, Harry Urban Wakefield, Jr., was born November 7, 1902, in Cornersville. Harry was always one the most studious of the brothers. He went to Vanderbilt University and was Phi Beta Kappa as a chemical engineer.

He later married Martha Sands from Pittsburgh, PA, the only "Yankee" I can recall being in our family ever! She enjoyed listening to us talk! And we asked her over and over again to say "newspaper!"

The family story is that Martha's family was listed on the famous list of the 400 families on Lady Aster's invitation list in New York City. Martha and her sister, Betty Sands, were the two members of her family that I knew.

I believe that Martha grew up in Sawicki, PA, a very posh area in Pittsburgh.

Harry became the CEO of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company in Houston, Texas, which has now become TennCo. That company laid the first pipeline connecting the Texas natural gas fields to the industrial northeast I can remember when the family was very proud of Harry's part in the development of what was called "The Big Inch." (I guess the pipeline is 1" in diameter, rho I don't know that.)

Martha and Harry lived in Houstin, then in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, then back to Houstin, a city they loved. Even Martha complained that she had become accustomed to Southern manners and was glad to once more leave the north!

On a summer vacation in Acapulco, Mexico, Martha fell ill with viral encephalitis and died. She is buried in Pennsylvania.

When Harry retired in Houstin, he moved into a retirement complex where he met Gladys, whom he later married.

Both widowed, Harry and Gladys continued to live in Bayou Manor Retirement Complex. Gladys died before Harry did. He became blind, but never lost cognitive function, nor sense of humor.

Harry is buried in Houstin, Texas.

Noted events in his life were:

1. Fact 1; Ed: Vanderbilt.
2. Fact 2; Work: Ceo, Tenn Gas And Tranmission.
3. Fact 3; Phi Beta Kappa.

Harry married Martha Sands. (Martha Sands was born in Pittsburg, PA and died in Acapulca, Mexico.)

Harry also married Gladys. (Gladys died on 9 Jun 1978.)

Letter from Robert T. Herron to Brice family in Charlotte, NC:

6 Victoria Street
Armagh, Ireland
October 10, 1924

Dear Mr. Brice:

At last I am sending you as much information as I can at present on the subject of our family. I hope you will forgive me for not being able to send it before this but the information came from scattered sources, however I believe the enclosed is accurate.

I regret very much that I did not put all this down in order long ago, before the death of Elizabeth Malcolmson which took place in 1916 aged 86 years. She was a cousin of my mother and daughter of William Brice of Cavan. She married her cousin William Malcolmson F.R.C.S.I. Lt. Col. 4th Bat, Royal Irish Fusiliers an medical officer of the Cavan Dispensary for many years. She was a highly cultured woman and a most excellent painter. She was fond of looking up families and many years ago established the connection through Nicholas by means of the perusal of old wills and other deeds and documents in Dublin, all of which are now destroyed. I had several talks with her on the subject of the Brice family and she often told me of a William Brice who married Jennie McClure and when I asked her about their family she always told me they emigrated to America and I see now that this accounts in great measure for the disappearance of Brices from this country with the exception of my wife's family, and I am glad to know that you have taken an interest in this matter. Some years ago I was trying to find out something about the McClures which is a great County Antrim name, some of whom rose to great distinction. There was a Sir William McClure in the vicinity of Ballymena, but I will find out more about this later on. there was a George McClure who was headmaster of the Academy Ballymena, in 1760 and no doubt this was a close relation of Jennie. I have not been able to trace how those people came to be about Killlala which is in the west of Ireland. Edward Brice, my great great grandfather had ships at sea and traded with Scotland, just the same as Robert and Rondell of which there is a record. I have several notes on the subject which I have not been able up to the present to find. I had copies of my great grandfather's lectures which he attended under the great Monro in Edinburg, he was Frederick Augustus Brice, MD. of Cavan. I once saw a record of how he was present at the Battle of Grenard in the Irish Rebellion and distinguished himself there, he having marched out with the Cavan yeomanry. William Brice was his uncle and your great great grandfather. I take it you are my own generation. I am just 60 years of age and have lived all my life since 5 years old in Armagh. I was brought up and educated by my grand uncle the late Alexander Brice who came to this city from Cavan in 1830 he died in 1881 aged 79. His mother Elizabeth Brice died in Armagh 29 January, 1835 but I think she is buried in Cavan with the husband who died in 1813, aged 39. I have her will in parchment.

I was educated at the Royal School Armagh and studied medicine in Dublin and became qualified L.R.C.T.I. in 1883 just before I was 20 years of age. I afterward took a good many of the higher degrees and dipomas. I have been medical officer of the Armagh District Hospital and Fevn Hospital since 1891. I served in the South African war as civil Surgeon 1901-2 - medal and 4 clasps. I joined the R.M.A.C and was 4 years in the great war and was promoted to the rank of Major and held a war office appointment as Senior medical officer Command Depots. I took an active part in the anti-tuberculosis campaign started by Her Excellency the Marchioness of Aberdeen, the wife of Lord Lieu ...?.... of Ireland and as principal lecturer saw and lectured in most of the towns in Ireland in 1907 to 1910.

My wife also served in the army as a Sister in Queen Alexander's Imperial Nursing service Reserve. We came back at Xmas 1918 and resumed our work. I was appoint O.C. Military Hospital and medical officer in charge of troops here in 1921 and that is all I'm going to tell you about myself.

During my investigations for you I wrote to Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane of London who is a very big surgeon. He is a descendant of the Rev. Arbuthnot through his mother and I have some very interesting letters from a sister of his one the subject.

I am sending you a copy of the old tomb at Ballycarry it appeared in the Telegraph on 15 May 1913 and a long article by I.W. Kernoghan who I am sorry to say is since dead but I wish to get in touch with a Francis Bigger who is learned in these matters and he may be able to give me some further information. I have an old notebook which belonged to my great grandfather but which is temporarily lost. It contains entries concerning my grand uncle and his brother William my wife's grandfather who were at school here 1810, 1811, 1812 at a school which was kept by their cousin Kitty Arbuthnot - my grand uncle whose enlarged photo I have - if living would now be 122. He is now dead 43 years and it just seems like yesterday. I am at present wearing an old gold chain which belonged to his father which he gave me with gold watch in 1877 when I passed my first examination in Dublin at 14 years of age. I have also in my possession a few silver spoons with a monogram F.E.B. which means Frederick and Elizabeth Brice probably bought at their wedding.

My grand uncle and my wife's grandfather were healthy strong knit men but short of stature, especially Alexander, he was much below the average height. Some of the Malcolmson men were fairly tall (sons of Mary Brice) John of Dublin was one of my dearest friends. He was about six foot. He was law agent in the Bank of Ireland and was one of the most cultured and charming men I ever knew, you will see by the enclosed all about his family. Claud and his sister Mrs. Armstrong are dead but Ralph is still alive an advocate in the Supreme Court living in Allahabad.

I must really stop writing now. I haven't written as much for a very long time, of course I could go on for weeks. Our cousins the Beatties in Belfast are a nice family, he is a very prominent R. C. He has recently bought a new house, a mansion, he stayed with us during the last Assize when on circuit.

Perhaps you will visit this country soon, if so we will be very pleased to see you but it is in a peculiar state at present.

I cannot understand how any honest person can take such fantastic reading out of article 12 - surely a body of men such as the Bill Circuit is composed of if they had intended to reduce the area of the six counties would have said so and not talk of determining the boundary between the six northern counties and the rest of Ireland.

If they took away two counties surely the boundary would be between four and the rest of Ireland the thing is absurd and a perfect mess.

I am glad Patsey wrote to you she is a smart lass and doing well at school. Aleck is a fine lad and smart with a good sense of humor.

Now I hope I have cleared up most of the doubt in your mind.

The Brices were evidently a nice lot of people and I know my grand uncle was a saint on earth - his sister Catherine was a very intelligent well cultured old dame. She lived and died here. I remember old Mary perfectly. She was a wonderful old lady and her son Robert was a very clever man he also was greatly interested in pedigrees and could trace almost any family of note in this country. I was he who traced out the pedigree of Eliz. Moore daughter of James Moore who married a Miss Hall daughter of I. Hall 3rd son of John Hall of Narrow Water. There are two books in this country which contain a lot of information Burke's Peerage and Burkes Landed Gentry, the marriages of the Brices are mentioned with the Maxwells, Knoxs, etc.

Next door to us lives Mrs. Milling widow of the late J. Milling, Resident Magistrate who was murdered by the rebels at Westport in 1919. Her eldest son has gone to the States, Seattle, to ..?.. his fortune, he was in the Indian (?) Army but left on _____ with many more. You will see his mother name Lilla she is a granddaughter of Mary Brice. She is very nice but now sad. She has just been in here.

486. Enloe Brice Wakefield¹ was born on 30 Oct 1905 in Marshall County, Tennessee and died on 16 Jun 1984 in Macon, Georgia.

After Harry came Enloe Brice Wakefield, born October 30, 1905. Enloe loved fun and was a great teaser. He went to college at Mercer in Macon, GA, where he met and married Harriet Watson, called "Bill." They had two daughters, Katherine and Toni.

Enloe also went away to make his fortune....and did. He started as a stock boy for the Woolworth Company while in college, stayed with the company, and retired as one of the company's major buyers working in New York City, traveling all over the world, bringing stories of fabulous vista to be seen "a long way from Dark's Mill!"

Variouly located around the country in his Woolworth career, Enloe lived in North Platte, Nebraska; in Denver, Colorado; and then in Summit, New Jersey, from which he commuted to NYC.

When Ed and I were honeymooning in New York, Enloe and Bill invited us to visit them in their home in Summit....which we were successful in finding! We had a wonderful meal on the back lawn of the house, and Ed was being helpful in carrying the dishes in doors when the meal was finished. CRASH. Yes, it was the Steuben ware, dropped. Not a glass broke.

Bill and Enloe gave us tickets to "The Sound of Music" which had opened nine days earlier on Broadway. We had never heard of the play before and went with no preconception.....what a splendid gift! Mary Martin was in the starring role and a lady by the name of Patricia Neway sang the Mother Superior role. Theodore Bikel was the leading man. A highlight of our lives.

Noted events in his life were:

487. Robert Winston Wakefield¹ was born on 12 Feb 1908 in Marshall County, Tennessee³³ and died on 9 Sep 1986 in Rutherford County, Tennessee.

Robert was the third of five sons born to Harry Urban Wakefield, born on December 31, 1875, in Cornersville, Marshall County, TN, and Mary Frances Enloe (Mayme), born July 18, 1877 in Troy, Obion County, TN. Urban and Mayme were married on December 31, 1901 in Troy, TN, where Mayme had grown up.

Robert Winston Wakefield, my father, was the third child, also born in Cornersville. The house where he was born still stands, in remodeled mint condition, directly across the street from the Cornersville school on the corner of Hgw. 31A and "Wakefield Street."

Baba Growing Up

Robert, who the young ones know as "Baba" told many stories about life on the farm with his brothers and his father and mother. Pap had followed his own father in a small manufacturing venture in Cornersville making "single trees" and "double trees" -- part of the harness required for plowing with horses. They also had a fairly large farm which kept the boys all occupied.

To hear Baba tell it, their life as children was one of great pleasure, much fun, lots of hard work and lots of adventures. Many, if not most, of the adventures escaped the attention of their parents! (Of course, they included the many miles of walking to and from school in the most vile weather!)

Baba told stories of "Old Red," the smartest mule he ever saw and how some of the boys could ride or work him, and others could not. Baba, of course, could manage the smart mule. I believe it was Harry who never really got the swing of it!

Once, the family moved to Dark's Mill in Maury County, where Baba went to little country schools and then started high school in Columbia. He later claimed that if it had not been for Mr. Carl Gardner teaching History, he never would have know how to do school. Mr. Gardner aimed never to fail a student. Now, that did not mean the student could loaf...on the contrary, the student had to stay at the school doing the work repeatedly until it was satisfactory. Baba claimed that he had spent many extra hours working for Mr. Gardner's approval.

The family lived in a country house said by the neighbors to be haunted. It was the usual old story, a doctor had lived there and a child had died in one of the upstairs bedrooms. The child sometimes wandered about looking for her family.

Well sir, a few weeks after the family moved in, far into the night, someone woke to hear the sound of little shoe laces dragging on the central staircase of the house....soon the whole family was up and listening. No one could see anything but everyone heard the shoe laces!

This went on night after night and the whole family was getting pretty edgy, including B and Pap. And then, the discovery of the dark secret.....

The house was built up off the ground as was the habit in those days, and there was a deep, dark crawl space underneath the house. The space was high enough for a grown man to stand up.

A big old billy goat had taken up sleeping underneath the house with the chickens and the dogs. When he scratched his back with one horn, the other horn reached the framing holding the house up above his head, making the sound of the laces. So much for the ghost.

Baba and his brothers always maintained that there was a field at that house where they could not get any livestock to go....the grass could be green and lush, but no animal would go there. Even Old Red refused to enter the gate.

In this generation, the Wakefield family experienced the Great Depression and World War II, both of which had a profound impact. All of the boys struggled to keep any cash flow at all for the family during the depression. Apparently, Pap was not the most effective farmer around and the family moved about trying to find the most congenial environment. They moved to and from Cornersville on several occasions.

Maury County and Bedford County were included in their range.

The end of the depression found them living in Shelbyville, where Pap and Baba went into business together, manufacturing cross cut saw handles. They were beginning to build a good business when Robert brought home his bride in 1934. B and Pap moved back to Cornersville.

Robert had not been "cut out" for schooling. He told of his years in the small, one roomed schools of his childhood when he and the teacher would make plans to go fishing at lunch time, hiding their fishing gear in the woods where they could find it quickly when school let out. He also told of occupying himself whittling holes in the log wall of one schoolhouse, a feat for which he was certainly called to task but of which he claimed B had no knowledge.

He finished high school in Shelbyville, and tried both Berry College in Rome, GA, and what became MTSU to no avail. (In fact, I am of the belief that Baba's exit from the then State Normal was accomplished at the invitation of Dean Beasley upon the occasion of a small fire in Jones Hall attended by Baba and his friend, Jack Ray.)

College simply held no interest for Robert. He had always been the "fixer" of the family, keeping all the mechanical equipment in good running order, inventing the toys with which the boys entertained themselves building dams in the creek and figuring out how to move the creek over to another bed....that kind of thing. He even built small movable trucks and cars after their advent on the scene. He told in much detail of the family's first T Model Ford and the adventures involved in keeping it running.

Baba invented and built all of the machinery used at Wakefield Mfg. Co. for making cross cut saw handles. His was the only factory east of Washington State manufacturing the handles, essential to the lumber business at that time.

"The mill" was a wondrous place of my youth, smelling of wood shaving and motor oil and the "milk" that ran through the "big punch press" to cool the steel being stamped piece by piece into shape.

It was that punch press that one night took off the end of my father's finger right up to the second knuckle. I clearly recall his sitting that night in the cool, dark living room, very, very still....trying to sooth the pain of the awesome thing.

Robert married Susan Louisa Polk Peery on 29 May 1934 in Polk, Tennessee ³⁴. (Susan Louisa Polk Peery was born on 13 Jan 1903 in Polk Station, Obion County, Tennessee and died in 1963 in Davidson County, Tennessee.)

Marriage of Robert and Louisa

Robert and Louisa were married in 1934 at the home of the Rev. L. R. Neill in Troy, Tennessee.

The story of their wedding includes Robert calling Louisa to tell her that he was coming to Polk Station and thought they would be married that weekend. Because the telephone was a "party line" that included everyone in the village of Polk Station on the same line, he tried to be subtle and keep it between themselves.

A Party Line is one where every phone is connected and everyone can listen to all the other people's calls....when a call came through to the Peery household they could hear the clicks of everyone else picking up the phone to see what was happening!

The trouble was that Robert was SO careful to guard his words that Louisa did not catch on and was totally surprised when Robert arrived expecting a wedding!

Robert and Louisa met when Louisa was a student at Vanderbilt University in Nashville and went to Shelbyville to visit with her kinswoman who was Robert's mother. Robert's mother, was the first cousin of Louisa's Aunt Bert Polk. One of Louisa's friends at Vanderbilt was Robert's brother, Harry, so that Louisa and her family knew that Mayme Enloe Wakefield lived near Nashville in Shelbyville. A trip to visit introduced Louisa to Robert.

They had the following children:

+ 702 F i. Dorothy Peery Wakefield ¹ was born on 15 Nov 1936 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee

703 F ii. Susan Polk Wakefield ¹ was born on 28 Dec 1940 in Bedford County, Tennessee and died on 17 Jun 1990 in Bedford County, Tennessee.

Susan was born with a congenital heart defect, then known popularly as a "blue baby." She was ill all of her infancy and well into her middle years. She was unable to attend school but 4 days during the 1st grade. The medical opinion shared by our neighborhood physician as well as the pediatrician in Nashville where we were taken at intervals, was that Susan would not live beyond her early years, thus whether she went to school or not was really inconsequential.

And, indeed, until the advent of antibiotics after WWII, Susan was assured a brief life span.

When I had the whooping cough, the first dosage of gamma globulin ever given in Bedford County was flown from New York to Nashville where my father picked it up at the airport and brought it for Dr. Burch to drop by the house and administer. She did not get the whooping cough.

And she lived. When she was 19 years old she had the first open heart surgery at Vanderbilt University Hospital using a brand new piece of technology known as a heart lung Machine. The surgery was to repair a prolapse of the pulmonary valve. That was in June of 1960.

When her heart finally did stop, she was soon to be 50 years old, had finished a master's degree, had worked as a professional medical librarian. Probably because she had never been encouraged to think of herself beyond childhood, she never really "grew up."

She was literally only 4'8" tall, very slight of stature, and besieged by the dependency to which she had been socialized. She died the invalid she had been as a very young child. Technology repaired her faulty heart, but could not replace her well learned sick image of herself with a more robust, healthy, capable one.

Susan died on June 7, 1990 and is buried in Willow Mount Cemetery in Shelbyville, Bedford County, next to her father and mother.

Robert also married Patricia Tharpe Hope on 4 Oct 1963 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee. (Patricia Tharpe Hope was born on 31 Oct 1924 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee.)

A G-G-G-granddaughter of David Crockett.

Educated in Shelbyville Public Schools and graduated from high school in 1942, received BS degree from Middle Tennessee State College in Murfreesboro, TN in spring of 1945. Received a State of Tennessee scholarship for aviation instruction at MTSC for the summer quarter following graduation.

She was a high school teacher from 1945 through spring of 1957; spring of 1957 until retirement in Jan. 1990 was employed at Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tullahoma, TN. which has the world's largest closed circuit wind tunnels for testing aircraft, missiles and space flight vehicles and components of the same. Position title, "math data assistant" which means chief responsibilities were to manually calculate a wind tunnel test program of engineering equations to verify computer programming for on line test programs.

(Up until 1990, there were no US space vehicles that were not totally or partially tested in these tunnels, plus all new aircraft)

Recognized several times for outstanding performance at Propulsion Wind Tunnel Facility by company executives and outside contractors.

They had the following children:

704 F i. Dorothy Peery Wakefield¹ was born on 15 Nov 1936 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee.

Dorothy Peery Wakefield (that's me) was born on November 15, 1936, in Shelbyville Tennessee. I am told that I was born in time for Sunday School on that Sunday morning.

I am the eldest of the two daughters born to Robert Winston Wakefield and Susan Louisa Polk Peery Wakefield. My sister, Susan Polk Wakefield, was born on December 28, 1940.

The family lived at 307 Carney Street in Shelbyville from the time I was 5 years old until 1963 when both of us daughters were gone from Shelbyville, Louisa died, and Robert married Patricia Tharpe Hope Mullens and moved to her home on South Brittain Street.

Filled with children, the Carney Street neighborhood was a wonderful place for growing up. Next door was the Higgins family with their three babies (Walter, Mary Battle and Bob), then the Erwin Thomas family with their four children (John R., Erwena, Billy and Kathryn) and then on the corner was Dr. Burch and their two daughters (Betty and Ann). Across the street Mrs. Carney lived in the back of her ancestral home with the front part converted to a large and gracious apartment variously occupied over the years. Next to Mrs. Carney lived the Bobo family with a daughter (Rosemary). Across the street from the Bobo house was the Tarpley house including the "best friend" of my entire growing up years, Mary Marzee Warren. Next to Marzee lived Coach Swing and their three daughters (Virginia).

Endless "lets pretend," "play house," "hide and go seek," "stick horse shows" were engaging the youngsters throughout the summer days, long into the evenings. In the winters, we walked up the street one block east and then north one block to East Side School, later to Junior High School across town, and then to Bedford County High School, where each of us duly graduated. Both of us graduated from MTSC in Murfreesboro, Susan got her masters degree at Peabody College in Nashville, I got mine at the University of Tennessee School of Social Work on its Nashville Campus.

If the clouds that later rested upon our little family were at all evident during my youth, I was blissfully unaware. Possibly on account of the lively "core group" of neighborhood kids, others were drawn to our play places where we staged plays of all sorts, had "funerals" after we discovered the drama to be drawn from the demise of a bug or a butterfly.....or the duck belonging to George Thomas Seton up the street who (duck) fell into the starch!

In the evenings when my father came around the corner home from work, he knew to stop at the corner where we all piled into the truck bed for the ride up the street and into the driveway!

The "double" driveway was the scene of many a stick horse show modeled on the then infant "Walking Horse Celebration" later to become the centerpiece of the Bedford County Tourism. . Susan, my sister, inevitably "won" the stick horse shows, a fact which dawned upon me gradually and about which I was led to question the "judge"usually daddy, roped into the act. Finally, it was explained that Susan's superior stick horse was the function of the prize money drawn from her piggy bank more than relative merits of the various "horses" themselves! It was Her Money!!

Throughout my childhood we always had a "maid" as did all the other children with whom I was acquainted. In my recollection, these blessed women were kind, compassionate, wise and wonderful. I vaguely recall Betty Scott, the earliest in my lifetime; then Willie Florence who chased a very energetic toddler with good cheer. Then beloved Annie Turrentine who came to us on Carney Street and stayed through my high school days. Then Kathryn Streeter who was the blessing of my grandmother "B's" aging days and Susan's high school years.

Even now, 50 years later, I can feel those warm and welcoming arms and find comfort and a sense of safety in the recollection. Yet, of them all, only Kathryn Streeter was ever a "real" person with a family and a life and dreams of her own away from my house. Kathryn was my teacher through the Civil Rights era of the late 50's and early 60's.

I do not know where Betty Scott's, Willie Florence's, or even Annie Turrentine's lives were spent after they passed from my world. In those days there was a separation between the races beyond imagination...or even consideration. There just was a separation, as if ordained by God, that was not consciously questioned, at least not by me or those with whom I lived my days.

One thing I did know without doubt. I was loved by these women. A child can tell, and I knew love and comfort with them. They nurtured me, and my sister, and, I believe, my mother as well.

For my mother was unable to cope with the vagaries of living, sought relief in withdrawal and depression, and spent the last 13 years of her life enclosed in mental illness.

She was first hospitalized when I was 13 years old and Susan, my sister, was 9. My grandmother B moved into our house after Pap died, and stayed there until her own illness overcame her. She was the "mother" for my sister.

World War II

Baba, Robert, was exempt from military duty because he was the owner of the mill manufacturing essential war materials. Since we were the only members of the family living near the grandparents, our family stayed very close to the war news with them. A great map hung on the wall of the room in the house designated "the music room" and little pins marched around the world following the action as relayed by H.V. Kaltenborn and Edward R. Murrow over the radio.

Letters came with regularity from the four sons who were in active military duty and from their families. The letters from the war front were very heavily censored, with many holes carefully snipped in the fragile paper cutting out any words that could have been revealing of "war secrets." We never knew where the sons were at any time. Later, when three of the four had returned safely home, there was lengthy conversation about what we had gleaned from the news, and their actual involvement in the action.

Paul and David were the closest to action, Paul in actual combat in the Pacific, David sailing around the world delivering, or trying to deliver goods to the front. It was David, who joined the merchant marines as a conscientious objector who died.

In our living room, we had a Philco radio that stood taller than my childhood head. I remember sitting in front of that radio listening to the "short wave" carrying the voice of the "enemy" Adolph Hitler. I remember D Day, and the worry of my grandparents about the family men who were engaged in active duty. (My mother's only brother was also in the Army.)

I vividly recall my mother's insistence that I remain by the radio one day, telling me that something was happening that I would want to remember all of my life...a very large and different bomb had been dropped on the mainland of Japan. A few days later, another such bomb was dropped and the war was over. And the atomic age began.

Regardless of the aftermath, the sheer relief of the ending of that World wide War was precious. One son was gone, the others would be home.

The only other clear image I have about WWII had to do with rationing. I was one day dispatched to the little corner grocery where we bought all our food (mostly delivered to the house each morning in those days) to get a 5 pound sack of sugar. As that was a month's rationing of sugar, I was cautioned to be very careful, which I was. I did, however, fail to notice on my trip home that the sugar sack had sprung a leak and that I was trailing precious sugar on the ground. Humiliation.

I never even wondered, or knew, how we came to have sugar after that dreadful episode. I suppose that Mr. Cross, who owned the store, and my father had some kind of understanding.

Being one of the few men not away for the war effort, my father served as an "air raid warden." When the fire siren went off, all lights went out and daddy went outside to be certain no lights were visible. I have vivid memories of seeing him walking up and down those silent dark streets, with only the glow of the ever present Chesterfield cigarette to mark his passing.

These remarkable events, along with maneuvers through the town, rationing of food and gasoline, and the lack of bubble gum were the only impacts of the War directly on our lives.

translating Russian newspapers during the cold war. Occasionally he told jokes he had read in the Russian newspaper "Isvestia".

Paul married Eloise Hames from the Brainerd Community in Chattanooga, TN, after a good many years of bachelorhood, and they had one son, Paul, Jr. Eloise and Paul lived in Falls Church, Virginia and later in Vienna, Virginia. Paul was an elder in the large Presbyterian Church in Washington where President Eisenhower was also a member. Both Alan and John Foster Dullas were pall bearers when Paul was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

World War II

WWII took its toll on this Wakefield family. All the brothers except Robert were in the military at the one time. Harry and Enloe were both Navy Officers, both stationed around Chicago. Paul was a Marine, a sergeant who refused a commission preferring to stay with the troops. At one point during the War, a picture was on the front of Life Magazine entitled "The Meanest Man on Earth" showing a Marine Drill Instructor at Paris Island....which was exactly Paul's role at that time.

This did not fit at all to my mind as Paul was funny and kind and prone to "spoiling" his niece...me! Paul was also an accomplished organist and on Sundays played the organ at the local Church near Paris Island. In later years, I asked Paul how he managed to be a DI at Paris Island. He pointed out that the young soldiers he was training were headed directly into battle where their training would mean death or life. Of course, he was strict.

He told a story of running backward down a line of recruits one day, barking at them in the usual manner when he stumbled and tumbled over backwards. (Paul always carried the Wakefield bon moi, even in top physical shape) Quickly recovering, he looked down the line of recruits and saw not one smile. Discipline!

Paul later volunteered to go to the Pacific theater where he participated in the Battles of Guam, Wake, Quaduline and Iwo Jima where he was injured. I remember seeing the helmet that the bullet pierced, grazing Paul's head. I remember hours and hours of hearing the stories Paul told of the Marines on those far flung islands and the heroism of so many of those young men.

Paul married Eloise Hames in 1949. (Eloise Hames was born on 4 Jun 1920 in Hamilton County, Tennessee ³⁷ and died in Jul 1974 in Virginia ³⁷.)

They had the following children:

David Cunningham Wakefield was the youngest of the Wakefield brothers. Born in 1914 in Marshall County, he was the trickster of the family and loved practical jokes. One of his favorites as a child was running into the bathroom just as his grandmother, "Miss Addie" was headed in that direction, and pretending to use the bathroom for long periods of time, arousing her concerned "Why, David, Are you all right?"

His wife was Ruth Meriwether and they had one son, David Meriwether Wakefield.

During WWII David was in the Merchant Marine because he was a conscientious objector. He sailed the world over in the Merchant Marine, coming home from time to time bringing coins from all over the earth and telling fantastic tales of the adventures he was having. He never carried a weapon.

David was the one who died during WWII. No one knows the actual circumstances of his death which occurred in New York City. It was reported as an accidental fall down a stair case in a hotel in NYC. I don't think the family ever really believed that was the whole story.

During WWII, the mothers of active duty soldiers displayed stars in the window for each son sent to war. B had 4 stars, with the one gold star after David's death. Paul brought home a purple heart.

558. William Oscar Jr. Brice¹ was born in 1898.

Lieutenant General William Oscar Brice:

Lt. general William Oscar Brice, US Marine Corps who is the second Marine aviator to attain this rank, has had a long, colorful and distinguished career in the service of his country.

The son of Dr. William Oscar Brice and Rachel Thompson Brice, he was born in Columbia in 1899, the family moving to Winnsboro six years later. He was graduated from Mr. Zion Institute, where "Skinny" Brice early exhibited his inbred loyalty to the "Rebel" cause by winning an oratorical contest on the subject of "The Confederacy."

WWI, in which he served as a second lieutenant, interrupted his studies at The Citadel but he returned to complete his education, becoming a naval aviator in 1924. Long before the second world conflict began, he was a member of the "Caterpillar" club, a real distinction in those early days of air travel.

General Brice has won a multitude of citations and decorations, including the Legion of Merit presented by General Vandergrift. During the first eighteen months in the Pacific war theatre, when the going was really tough, he displayed leadership, verve and daring of the highest calibre and in 1943, Colonel Brice was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for outstanding leadership of all the Allied Search bomber and torpedo planes in the Solomons area. A Presidential citation accompanied it and his unit was given credit for inflicting tremendous losses on the Japanese.

In 1944, Vern Haugland, famed Associated Press Correspondent, writing of the Bonnie Blue Flag which waved over Brice's headquarters in the Solomons, said: "you dont have to have a Southern accent to work under colonel Brice but it helps. In Navy parlance, Brice is the man who make the air safe over the Solomons and he has commanded some of the nation's top aces, including Foss, Boyington, and Hassen."

Later in the war, the Winnsboro Marine officer did another tour of duty in the Far East and he has been twice to Korea, once during the "police action: and again sine the "uneasy peace."

Earlier this year he was elevated to his present rank, thus becoming the second marine aviator to attain this distinction in all American history. There are only four other Lt. Generals in the entire Marine Corps. Commandant Lemuel Shepherd is the only four star general. (Except of news article in THE NEWS AND HERALD, Winnsboro) as quoted by L. S. Brice in The Brice Family

702. Dorothy Peery Wakefield¹ was born on 15 Nov 1936 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee.

Dorothy Peery Wakefield (that's me) was born on November 15, 1936, in Shelbyville Tennessee. I am told that I was born in time for Sunday School on that Sunday morning.

I am the eldest of the two daughters born to Robert Winston Wakefield and Susan Louisa Polk Peery Wakefield. My sister, Susan Polk Wakefield, was born on December 28, 1940.

The family lived at 307 Carney Street in Shelbyville from the time I was 5 years old until 1963 when both of us daughters were gone from Shelbyville, Louisa died, and Robert married Patricia Tharpe Hope Mullens and moved to her home on South Brittain Street.

Filled with children, the Carney Street neighborhood was a wonderful place for growing up. Next door was the Higgins family with their three babies (Walter, Mary Battle and Bob), then the Erwin Thomas family with their four children (John R., Erwena, Billy and Kathryn) and then on the corner was Dr. Burch and their two daughters (Betty and Ann). Across the street Mrs. Carney lived in the back of her ancestral home with the front part converted to a large and gracious apartment variously occupied over the years. Next to Mrs. Carney lived the Bobo family with a daughter (Rosemary). Across the street from the Bobo house was the Tarpley house including the "best friend" of my entire growing up years, Mary Marzee Warren. Next to Marzee lived Coach Swing and their three daughters (Virginia).

Endless "lets pretend," "play house," "hide and go seek," "stick horse shows" were engaging the youngsters throughout the summer days, long into the evenings. In the winters, we walked up the street one block east and then north one block to East Side School, later to Junior High School across town, and then to Bedford County High School, where each of us duly graduated. Both of us graduated from MTSC in Murfreesboro, Susan got her masters degree at Peabody College in Nashville, I got mine at the University of Tennessee School of Social Work on its Nashville Campus.

If the clouds that later rested upon our little family were at all evident during my youth, I was blissfully unaware. Possibly on account of the lively "core group" of neighborhood kids, others were drawn to our play places where we staged plays of all sorts, had "funerals" after we discovered the drama to be drawn from the demise of a bug or a butterfly.....or the duck belonging to George Thomas Seton up the street who (duck) fell into the starch!

In the evenings when my father came around the corner home from work, he knew to stop at the corner where we all piled into the truck bed for the ride up the street and into the driveway!

The "double" driveway was the scene of many a stick horse show modeled on the then infant "Walking Horse Celebration" later to become the centerpiece of the Bedford County Tourism. . Susan, my sister, inevitably "won" the stick horse shows, a fact which dawned upon me gradually and about which I was led to question the "judge".....usually daddy, roped into the act. Finally, it was explained that Susan's superior stick horse was the function of the prize money drawn from her piggy bank more than relative merits of the various "horses" themselves! It was Her Money!!

Throughout my childhood we always had a "maid" as did all the other children with whom I was acquainted. In my recollection, these blessed women were kind, compassionate, wise and wonderful. I vaguely recall Betty Scott, the earliest in my lifetime; then Willie Florence who chased a very energetic toddler with good cheer. Then beloved Annie Turrentine who came to us on Carney Street and stayed through my high school days. Then Kathryn Streeter who was the blessing of my grandmother "B's" aging days and Susan's high school years.

Even now, 50 years later, I can feel those warm and welcoming arms and find comfort and a sense of safety in the recollection. Yet, of them all, only Kathryn Streeter was ever a "real" person with a family and a life and dreams of her own away from my house. Kathryn was my teacher through the Civil Rights era of the late 50's and early 60's.

I do not know where Betty Scott's, Willie Florence's, or even Annie Turrentine's lives were spent after they passed from my world. In those days there was a separation between the races beyond imagination...or even consideration. There just was a separation, as if ordained by God, that was not consciously questioned, at least not by me or those with whom I lived my days.

One thing I did know without doubt. I was loved by these women. A child can tell, and I knew love and comfort with them. They nurtured me, and my sister, and, I believe, my mother as well.

For my mother was unable to cope with the vagaries of living, sought relief in withdrawal and depression, and spent the last 13 years of her life enclosed in mental illness.

She was first hospitalized when I was 13 years old and Susan, my sister, was 9. My grandmother B moved into our house after Pap died, and stayed there until her own illness overcame her. She was the "mother" for my sister.

World War II

Baba, Robert, was exempt from military duty because he was the owner of the mill manufacturing essential war materials. Since we were the only members of the family living near the grandparents, our family stayed very close to the war news with them. A great map hung on the wall of the room in the house designated "the music room" and little pins marched around the world following the action as relayed by H.V. Kaltenborn and Edward R. Murrow over the radio.

Letters came with regularity from the four sons who were in active military duty and from their families. The letters from the war front were very heavily censored, with many holes carefully snipped in the fragile paper cutting out any words that could have been revealing of "war secrets." We never knew where the sons were at any time. Later, when three of the four had returned safely home, there was lengthy conversation about what we had gleaned from the news, and their actual involvement in the action.

Paul and David were the closest to action, Paul in actual combat in the Pacific, David sailing around the world delivering, or trying to deliver goods to the front. It was David, who joined the merchant marines as a conscientious objector who died.

In our living room, we had a Philco radio that stood taller than my childhood head. I remember sitting in front of that radio listening to the "short wave" carrying the voice of the "enemy" Adolph Hitler. I remember D Day, and the worry of my grandparents about the family men who were engaged in active duty. (My mother's only brother was also in the Army.)

I vividly recall my mother's insistence that I remain by the radio one day, telling me that something was happening that I would want to remember all of my life...a very large and different bomb had been dropped on the mainland of Japan. A few days later, another such bomb was dropped and the war was over. And the atomic age began.

Regardless of the aftermath, the sheer relief of the ending of that World wide War was precious. One son was gone, the others would be home.

The only other clear image I have about WWII had to do with rationing. I was one day dispatched to the little corner grocery where we bought all our food (mostly delivered to the house each morning in those days) to get a 5 pound sack of sugar. As that was a month's rationing of sugar, I was cautioned to be very careful, which I was. I did, however, fail to notice on my trip home that the sugar sack had sprung a leak and that I was trailing precious sugar on the ground. Humiliation.

I never even wondered, or knew, how we came to have sugar after that dreadful episode. I suppose that Mr. Cross, who owned the store, and my father had some kind of understanding.

Being one of the few men not away for the war effort, my father served as an "air raid warden." When the fire siren went off, all lights went out and daddy went outside to be certain no lights were visible. I have vivid memories of seeing him walking up and down those silent dark streets, with only the glow of the ever present Chesterfield cigarette to mark his passing.

These remarkable events, along with maneuvers through the town, rationing of food and gasoline, and the lack of bubble gum were the only impacts of the War directly on our lives.

Louisa died in 1963 after her very long and distressing illness. She is buried in the Willow Mount Cemetery in Shelbyville.

Robert married Patricia Tharpe Hope, the widow of Walter D. Mullins, in the summer of 1963. Patricia's family will be included as a chapter in this book.

Noted events in her life were:

1. Fact 1; 1954; Central High School, Shelbyville.
2. Fact 2; 1958; Middle Tennessee State College.

3. Fact 3; 1963; UT School Of Social Work.

Dorothy married Lawrence Edwin Chance on 2 Jul 1960 in Shelbyville, Bedford County, Tennessee. (Lawrence Edwin Chance was born on 3 Jul 1935 in Madison, Davidson County, Tennessee.)

Lawrence Edwin Chance was born on July 3, 1935 at Madison Hospital in Nashville, Tennessee. His mother was Louise Gretchen Ludwig Chance and his father, George William Chance. They lived in Old Hickory, Tennessee where George was an area supervisor at the Dupont Plant.

His parents had been married for 10 years when he was born and Ed is their only child.

It tickled Ed's mother to tell of slipping off from George, who was working nights at the Dupont plant, to go and have the baby, calling him only when all was done. It also tickled her to tell of her own distress at having given birth to an "old boy" rather than the long desired daughter she had dreamed of naming "Antoinette".

Mimi claimed, also, that Ed was a very fussy baby, crying on and on with colic. She told that one night a child who lived next door asked if she could please move the baby on the other side of the house since the crying was keeping him awake!

Many are the young "Eddie" tales. When George took him to get his first hair cut, he did not tell the mother for good reason. The golden curls were beautiful and the tears followed!

By the time Ed went to High School, the Chance family lived at 1202 Riverside Drive in Old Hickory, an imposing four floor house filled with Mimi's antique furniture.

Ed went to school in Old Hickory for the elementary years, remembering that it took him an entire year to make a 90 degree angle in woodworking! Mechanical ability is not his major asset!! He was also an avid golfer throughout his growing up years within walking distance one of the best golf courses in the area.

For high school, Ed went to Webb School in Bell Buckle, Tennessee, a "classical" boarding school for young men at the time where four years of Latin, four years of English, four years of mathematics were required, and there were no "—ologies" taught. Following the disciplinary regime applauded by the "Protestant work ethic" and modeled from the English boarding school, Webb had a powerful influence in Ed's young life.

Bell Buckle is a tiny village, so Ed claimed membership in the Episcopal Church in order to be taken to Shelbyville to church on Sundays!

Following Webb, Ed went to Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia where he was the president of his fraternity for two years, majoring in humanities. One of his teachers there was the famous author, Thomas Altizer.

Dorothy and Ed met when they were both students at The University of Tennessee School of Social Work located in Nashville. They attended the year of 1958-59, then both worked for a year, Ed as an admission counselor at Emory.

After their marriage, they lived in Atlanta for a year, during which Ted was born, then went back to finish one at a time the graduate work in Social Work.

A full career as a psychiatric social worker at the VAH in Murfreesboro, interspersed with active military duty in the US Army led to retirement after 30 years with the VA, and as a full Colonel in the US Army Reserve.

One tour of duty in Viet Nam, 1968-1969, he describes as the best professional years of his life. He received a Bronze Star with an Oak Leaf Cluster, an unusual for a social worker in the military. He was "put in" for a Silver Star, but was below the senior ranks at the time, and did not receive it. He spent the entire 12 months of Viet Nam duty in the 1st Cavalry Division, directly on the front lines.

Now, 1996, he is continuing work full time, just finished a four year stint at the Middle Tennessee Mental Health Institute (a long held dream) and is now working in a geriatric, psychiatric partial hospitalization program.

Dorothy and Ed met when they were both students at The University of Tennessee School of Social Work located in Nashville. They attended the year of 1958-59, then both worked for a year, Ed as an admission counselor at Emory, Dorothy at the Welfare Department in Putnam Co., Tennessee.

After their marriage, they lived in Atlanta for a year, during which Ted was born, then went back to finish one at a time the graduate work in Social Work.

Mimi and Granddaddy were very involved in the life of the village in Old Hickory. They moved from the Riverside house to an apartment nearby, which looked over Old Hickory lake.

After many years of emphysema, George suffered a CVA and died at the Nashville Memorial Hospital. He had made arrangements to for his body to be donated to Vanderbilt University Medical School, which was honored by Louise and Ed.

After George died, Mimi lived on in this apartment they had chosen for their later years. She was quite busy with church and bridge games and all of her many friends. In 1983, she fell and broke her hip, and lived after that with Dorothy, Ed, Ted and Susie in Murfreesboro. They were wonderful years until, while playing bridge, she suffered the stroke from which she died on August 5, 1985.

Mimi is buried at Evergreen Cemetery in Murfreesboro, TN. Granddaddy is buried in the common grave of those who donate their body for study at Vanderbilt Medical School.

George and Louise Chance lived during World War I, the Great Depression, and World War II. Probably the event most influential in their family life and the way they saw themselves and the world was the Great Depression. It took a lot of courage for both of them to pick up after financial disaster and get back on their feet.

The wedding day was very hot but beautiful. The church was decorated with great beauty since a gift of orchids had arrived that morning from friends who owned an orchid farm in Chattanooga. (Ruth and Neill McDade) So the little church was filled with beautiful flowers and with orchids.

The minister was Herbert Catlin, the Episcopal Priest from Cookeville, TN where I had been living for a year before we were married. It was his first wedding and I think that he was more nervous than we were.

Lawrence Edwin Chance was born on July 3, 1935 and married Dorothy Peery Wakefield, born November 15, 1936, on July 2, 1960 in Shelbyville, Tennessee at The Church of the Redeemer, Episcopal, Mimi and Granddaddy were there; my uncle, Harry Urban Wakefield, Jr. was there; my grandmother "B", Mary Frances Enloe Wakefield was there. Miss Linda Huffman (Mrs. John Huffman) was the organist. Katherine Streeter was there.

There was a wedding luncheon at Miss Linda's beautiful home on South Brittain Street in Shelbyville. All the orchids went with us to the luncheon! Miss Linda and several other wonderful ladies had made lobster for the lunch....which was the first time I had ever eaten such fare.

Mimi and Granddaddy gave us a trip to New York City for our honeymoon. Another uncle, Enloe Wakefield, gave us tickets to "The Sound of Music" which had just opened nine days earlier on Broadway. Ed, for years, sang "High on a hill is a lonely gopher" which is what he "heard" that very first time. We also saw "The Miracle Worker," and "Jesus Christ, Superstar." 1960 was a good year on Broadway!

They had the following children:

799 M i. Lawrence Edwin Chance Jr.¹ was born on 1 Apr 1961 in Emory, Dekalb County, Georgia.

Ted was born about 7:15 in the evening of April 1, 1961 at Emory Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia.

Dr. Cross was the obstetrician who delivered the baby on the evening before Easter. Dr. Cross was the chairman of the Department of OBGYN at Emory Medical School.

Ed, who had been standing by all day, left the hospital that night having met his first born son, and went to Easter even Church service at St. Bartholomew's in Atlanta. He entered a darkened church, then the lights came up and the singing of "Welcome, Happy Morning" rang out....what a fitting celebration for a new born child.

Ted graduated from High School in Murfreesboro, TN in 1983, went to the University of Tennessee in Knoxville where he graduated Summa Cum Laude, and then from the University of Tennessee Medical School in Memphis, TN.

Following four years at Walter Reed in Washington, DC and four years in Germany, Ted went to live and work in Cincinnati. Now, in 1996, he is preparing to move once more, this time to Sitka, Alaska where the beauty of the earth beckons.

Addendum: Ted did move to Sitka and finds it more wonderful than he ever expected. He and Phyllis Hill, who he met in Germany in the military, are planning to be married in August. Phyllis is from St. Louis, is a nurse with her masters in nursing from Emory University in Atlanta, small world.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records.

2. It is essential to ensure that all data is entered correctly and consistently.

3. Regular audits should be conducted to verify the integrity of the information.

4. Proper labeling and organization of files are crucial for easy retrieval.

5. Finally, it is important to have a backup system in place to prevent data loss.

6. The second part of the document covers the various methods used for data collection.

7. These methods include surveys, interviews, and focus groups.

8. Each method has its own strengths and weaknesses, and should be chosen accordingly.

9. It is also important to consider the ethical implications of data collection.

10. Ensuring that participants are informed and that their privacy is protected is paramount.

11. The third part of the document discusses the analysis of the collected data.

12. This involves identifying patterns, trends, and correlations within the data set.

13. Statistical tools and software can be used to facilitate this process.

14. The final part of the document provides conclusions and recommendations.

15. Based on the findings, it is recommended that certain changes be implemented.

16. These changes will help to improve the overall efficiency and accuracy of the system.

17. The document concludes with a summary of the key points discussed.

18. It is hoped that this information will be helpful to all readers.

Susan Louise Chance, born in Murfreesboro, Tennessee to Dorothy and Ed Chance. She has one brother, Ted.

Christened on Easter Day, 1966, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Murfreesboro, the church on that day held the largest number of people ever gathered there. God parents, Barbara Cook, Dr. Antonio Periut and Jean Molloy joined the Chance and Wakefield families in celebrating the event.

When she was two years old, her father entered military duty and the family moved from Murfreesboro to Ft. Rucker, Alabama, then only six weeks later, back to Old Hickory, TN when her father went to Viet Nam for a year. Lived next door to Mimi and Granddaddy Chance in Old Hickory for the year daddy was in "Biet Nan"

Then, to Ft. Riley, KS, for a year then to Ft. McClellan, ALA and back to Murfreesboro in time for kindergarten at First Methodist church.

1. Introduction

The purpose of this report is to analyze the data collected during the experiment.

The data shows a clear trend of increasing values over time.

This trend is consistent with the theoretical model proposed in the literature.

The results are summarized in the following table.

The table shows that the experimental results are in good agreement with the theoretical predictions.

It is concluded that the model accurately describes the observed behavior.

Further research is needed to investigate the underlying mechanisms.

The data was collected using a high-precision instrument, ensuring the reliability of the results.

The following table provides a detailed breakdown of the data.

The data indicates a significant correlation between the variables studied.

This correlation is supported by the statistical analysis performed on the data.

The results suggest that the system is highly sensitive to changes in the input parameters.

The overall findings of this study are consistent with previous research in the field.

The study highlights the importance of accurate data collection and analysis.

The data was carefully reviewed and found to be complete and accurate.

The results of this study have important implications for the design of similar systems.

The study also identifies areas for future research and development.

The authors would like to thank the funding agency for their support.

Reeves Rogers Elementary school until summer after the second grade when family called back into military and back to Ft. Riley, KS, school at the post school at Ft. Riley.

Back to Murfreesboro for Central Middle School, then one semester at St. Andrews Sewanee and then Oakland.

After graduating from high school, Susie spent a year in a school in Switzerland called Surval located in Montreaux, on Lake Geneva. Susie has traveled widely in her life time, out in the Western part of the USA, to Brazil, to Europe on several occasions and came back from her year at Surval speaking fluent French.

Her travel adventures include boarding the wrong plane in New York bound for Geneva, she thought; and arriving at Orly Airport in Paris without a word of French to help her out! The airline assisted her in reaching Geneva later that day and an American from Nashville, also Episcopalian, took pity and drove her from Geneva to Montreaux. We have said that after that experience, nothing should ever be intimidating to Susie again!!

Lived in Murfreesboro and Atlanta before marrying Kevin Murdock and moving to Tampa, Florida where Kayleigh was born.

Susie is beautiful.

Noted events in her life were:

1. Fact 1; Oakland High School.
2. Fact 2; Surval, Montreaux, Switzerland.

Susan married Kevin Murdock on 5 Sep 1992 in Tampa, Florida. (Kevin Murdock was born on 15 Oct 1954 in Atlanta, Fulton County, Georgia.)

Kevin was born in Atlanta, Georgia, where his father was a student at Georgia Tech. After another brother was born, the family moved to Florida for work at Cape Canaveral with RCA.

Kevin graduated from the University of Miami. He became an expert in understanding the behavior problems sometimes encountered by people who are developmentally delayed. Just when he started back to school to get his masters and Ph D, he was asked to consult with the Louisa School in Murfreesboro, TN where Susie Chance was working with the residents. •

Susie and Kevin were right away "captured" by one another.

Kevin has continued school and now, in 1997 has completed all but his dissertation toward a Ph D in psychology, specializing in behavior management.

Susie and Kevin were married in the den of the beautiful home of Kevin's parents overlooking the Hillsborough River in Tampa, Florida. Megan, the Murdocks, the Chances and several friends attended.

They had the following children:

861 F i. Kayleigh Chance Murdock¹ was born on 12 Feb 1993 in Tampa, Hillsborough County, Florida.

Kayleigh was born just after midnight on the morning of February 12, 1993 at Woman's Hospital,

Tampa, Florida. Her daddy, Kevin, was with her mother when she was born. Waiting for her were her sister Megan Murdock, and all of her grandparents, Murdocks and Chances.

Most of the babies in the nursery at the hospital were lying on their tummies, all curled up. Not Kayleigh. She was stretched out on her back with one foot propped up on the side of the baby crib. Right away, she was a laid back Florida baby!!

February 12 was also the birthday of her great grandfather, Robert Wakefield, and of President Abraham Lincoln.

Kayleigh's mom was the happiest person in the world holding her new baby. Right away it was clear there was a special understanding between the two of them.

Dad was right there making sure everyone was welcomed to meet the new baby. One of the things that Daddy Kevin had done was to prepare a tape of "The Four Seasons" by Vivaldi for music in the waiting for baby room. All the people who came were pleased with the beautiful music celebrating the new life.

We made up a little rhyme: " Nineteen ninety three,
The year of Kayleigh!"

"Kayleigh" was the name picked by her mother who thinks it is the most beautiful name she ever heard. It is a new name in the family...not "after" anybody. Later we learned that it is used in Scotland as a variation of Kathryn.

In reading of the early gods and goddesses of Ireland and Scotland, I find a goddess called Caileough. The most ancient mother goddess of all is the Indian Kali....with the many hands....
