

Harling-Chappell Wedding Last Evening

An unusually lovely and interesting wedding of the fall was that of Miss Frances Hammond Harling and Dr. Travis Chappell, which took place at 8 o'clock last evening in the First Baptist church, where four generations of the bride's family have been married. The Rev. John H. Webb, D. D., pastor of the church, officiated before many relatives and friends of the couple, using the impressive ring ceremony.

Easter lilies and many white lighted candles against a background of palms formed a charming setting for the wedding. White tulle bows marked the family pews.

The nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. E. L. Crooks, contralto; Mrs. Hubert Vowell, soprano, and M. Berry Seay, organist. Before the ceremony Mrs. Crooks sang "O Promise Me" and Mrs. Vowell sang "At Dawning" (Cadman) and they rendered as a duet, "I Love You Truly" (Carrie Jacobs Bond). Mr. Seay played "Liebestraum" (Liszt) and "Trau-merel" (Schumann). "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell) was softly given while the vows were spoken. "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" (Wagner) was used for the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the recessional.

The groomsmen were Julian Hope, Joel Wyman and Thaddeus G. McCullough. Serving as ushers were Hammond Harling, brother of the bride; J. W. McLaurin and Edwin McLaurin of Laurinburg, N. C., cousins of the bride, and Edgar Waites.

Miss Olive Spigner was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Gretchen Howell, Miss Mary Louise James and Miss Mattie Chappell, sister of the bridegroom. They wore dresses of chiffon velvet in lovely blue tones, made on old-fashioned lines and having becoming rounds neck and short puffed sleeves that dropped slightly off the shoulders. Shirring on the bodices gave soft fullness and the graceful rippled skirts featured even hemlines. They also wore blue ostrich feathers in the hair and their flowers were arm bouquets of pink dahlias tied with pink satin ribbon.

The bride entered with her brother, James N. Harling, by whom she was given in marriage. Her blonde beauty was enhanced by her handsome wedding gown of ivory satin, made on princess lines and having a deep yoke and becoming high collar of hand-made lace. The long fitted sleeves were finished with the same gorgeous lace which was made by the bride's mother and trimmed her own wedding dress. A row of satin-covered buttons adorned the back skirt which Mrs. Henry McLaurin aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Otis Johnston greeted the guests at the door. The hostess, the bride, the bridegroom and the wedding attendants formed the receiving line in the living room.

For the occasion many arrangements of mixed fall flowers decorated the living room, halls and the gift room.

In the dining room the bridal tones of green and white were attractively carried out. White rosebuds made the centerpiece for the lace-covered table, where tall white tapers burned in silver holders. Silver was used for all the table service.

Mrs. Roy McLaurin and Mrs. Floyd McLaurin, cousins of the bride. Miss Grace Chappell, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. J. W. McLaurin served ice cream and individual cakes embossed with valley lilies. The "fortune emblems" were concealed in the individual cakes.

Mrs. William Ellis, aunt of the bride, received in the gift room, where the many lovely wedding presents were displayed. Among the couple's wedding gifts were an antique suite and a sewing table that belonged to the bride's maternal great-grandmother.

During the evening the couple left for an extended trip out West and on their return to Columbia will be at home in the Mayflower apartments.

For traveling the bride wore a stunning outfit of gray lightweight wool, having a short coat stitched with silk braid. A small scar of deep red velvet finished the dress. A top-coat of gray tweed and black accessories completed the costume.

Mrs. Chappell is the daughter of Mrs. Ludemela Hammond Harling and the late James N. Harling and has always made her home in Columbia. She, like her husband, is widely connected with well known families throughout the state.

Doctor Chappell is the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Chappell of Winnsboro. He is a graduate of the Atlanta-Southern Dental college of Georgia and for the past several years has practiced dentistry in Columbia.
