

CHARITY COLEMAN

For many years, the Coleman relatives, also Crosby, have wanted to know about Charity Coleman.

She was a favorite in the Coleman family and with all who knew her. Down through my family line from Robert Coleman, Sr. and Jr. comes this description.....

As My Aunt Jennie Coleman and my mother, Mrs. Mary Feaster Coleman Faucette, remembered, talked and impressed the value of knowing about our kinfolks, I listened long and well and it really soaked in. I loved to hear it all and in my early years wrote some of it down...added to it as we went along...just as they gave it, handed down from Daddy David Roe Coleman, the Patriach of the Coleman Family. Who with a brillant mind, a warm nature and a great love for kinfolks,also, appreciation beyond measure for who they are and what were their ideals and principles.

CHARITY COLEMAN was very pretty with a small and perfect figure. She had brown hair and grey eyes, nice appearance, graceful, with a pleasing personality and charming manner. She was well read, an intelluctual, good reader. She was quite domestic, sewed well, a good housekeeper and cook.

At sixteen she married Stephen Crosby, Sr., lived in a nice home, one mile from old Fish Dam Road...now 215... Her husband's plantation extended west, clear to the banks of Broad River. He was a prosperous farmer and they were a leading couple in that area.
