Notes for PRESTON ELLISON, SR.:

Preston Ellison worked as a farm laborer to support his mother, sisters and brothers following the death of his father, Mack Ellison. Mack Ellison died sometime before the 12th U.S. Census in 1900. Preston was 12 years old at the time. He was "farmed out" by his mother to help support the family. At the time, his mother, Sara Ellison, had 13 children. All of them were alive. Ten of them, including Preston, were living at home with their mother. Preston was sent to work on a nearby farm. Each pay day, his wages were sent home to his mother. Preston was proud of this accomplishment. He was proud that he could partially fill the economic shoes of his father.

Neither Sara, nor her children could read or write, but they all spoke English. There was little, if any educational opportunities for African Americans during this period of time. Years later, Preston was taught to read and write by his wife, Willie Johnson Ellison. Preston was proud and appreciative of his wife's efforts to improve his life.

As a young man, Preston worked in rock quarries in Winnsboro, South Carolina and in Cuba. Towards the end of his life, he would walk for miles every day.

Preston had a brother, whom he believed went to Tennessee following the death of their father, who was not heard from again. [Editorial Note: During 1979 this brother's descendants were located in Memphis, Tennessee. Willie James Ellison, Preston's grandson, met a Navy Special Investigator, Naval Air Station, Memphis, Tennessee, named Mack ?. Mack informed Willie James Ellison, that his grandfather had left South Carolina as a young man, following the death of his father, homesteaded a 100 acre parcel of land north of Memphis and acquired ownership of same. The family still owned the land in the 1980's. Ellison lost touch with Mack when they parted company in 1984. The last Ellison heard from Mack was that he was stationed at a Naval facility in Arizona.]

Mattie Lene Ellison and her husband, Leroy, Sr. were strong proponents of education. During an era when it was not common to do so, all of their children received high school educations. At one time in 1971-72, 5 of their 10 children were in college at the same time. The children were attending Tuskegee Institute [now University] (Leroy, Jr.), University of Michigan (Juanita), University of Chicago (LaChun Arliva), Rutgers College (Willie James and Robert Lee).

Mattie Lene Ellison graduated from high school in 1979, through an adult education program offered by the public school system. Leroy Ellison, Sr. graduated from high school, through an adult education program at Clinton College, Rock Hill, S. C., in 1965, the same date as his oldest son, Willie James, who graduated public high school. By law or custom, Leroy, Sr. was prohibited from attending high school in South Carolina beyond the eighth grade. The apartheid system in place at the time wanted to keep African Americans ill-educated to ensure they were only suited for manual and primarily farm labor.

In 1995, Clinton College awarded Leroy, Sr. an Honorary Doctorate of Divinity Degree. This was a proud moment for the Ellison family. Members of the family came from all over the United States to attend the ceremony at Clinton College.
