

NOTICE – We have included a membership form. We would like to see our society continue but we cannot do this without your help; without your help, our society will cease to exist.

CONFEDERATE GENERALS OF FAIRFIELD COUNTY

There were 425 official Confederate generals. Eight attained the rank of full general, seventeen became lieutenant generals, seventy-two were major generals and the remaining 328 were brigadier generals. Forty-eight were born in South Carolina, twenty died in South Carolina and twenty-eight are buried in the state. *

Brigadier General John Bratton is the only general buried in Fairfield County; born in Winnsboro in 1831 and died January 12, 1898. He is buried in St Johns Episcopal cemetery in Winnsboro. He was married to Elizabeth Porcher Dubose (1838-1875), daughter of Theodore Samuel Marion Dubose and Jane S. Porcher. Seven infant sons are buried nearby as well as William Dubose Bratton, MD (1860-1897) who became a surgeon in the United States Marine Corps.

Brigadier General Adley Hogan Gladden was born in Fairfield District in 1810. He died April 12, 1862 near Corinth, Mississippi six days after being wounded at Shiloh, Tn.

*See "Generals at Rest" by Richard Owen and James Owen, 1997, White Mane Publishing Company Inc 352 pages with pictures of graves and short biographical sketch of each general before and after the war.

*from the Fairfield Am. Soc.
Newsletter
Vol. 14 No. 1
March 2001*