WHO ARE YOU?

A Glazier?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

Glazier

The arms reproduced above were first granted to the Glazier family of Lea, in Cheshire, England, in the 16th century. William Glazier, traditionally a native of the Isle of Man, was mayor of the city of Chester in 1552 and his son, William, founder of the Lea branch of the family, was vice chamberlain of Chester. The name Glazier, as the name was spelled in England, is found to run back for several centuries.

John Glazier, a member of a cadet branch, came to America before 1656, and settled at Woburn, Mass., later removing to Lancaster, where he died in 1688. The Glaziers are the only family in American history known to have furnished members of four generations to both sides of the conflict in the Revolutionary war. Joseph Glazier, at the age of 97, was active in the American cause. Beamsley Perkins Glazier was the adjutant general of the British forces in America and also military governor of Florida, while his sons were officers in the Revolutionary army. Joseph Glazier's great-grandsons also took part in the conflict.

Of more recent date are the late Capt. Willard Glazier, a brilliant officer in the Confederate war, discoverer of the true source of the Mississippi, and author, and the late Hon. E. B. Glazier, financier, inventor, writer and representative of the United States in legations in South America and Europe. Although a family numerically small, a number of brilliant men of our time are descended from it on the maternal side.
