Chester County Court House Built 1852
Chester, South Carolina

the dinner for the soldiers cooked and packed in time if the family dinner waited until after the return from the depot. Of course, all women of the town and country did their duty, but I wish to mention specially a widow woman viz, Mrs. Isiah Mobley. She was a wealthy woman, the mother of several girls and one boy. Her son was delicate, unable to stand the hardships of a soldier's life, but he would volunteer and went with the cavalry and gave up his life for his country. She wrote my father if there were wounded or sick soldiers who were unable to reach their homes, to send them to her house and she would provide for them until they were able to return to duty. This she did and many enjoyed her hospitality. Among the number was a Tennessean by the name of Mockbee who returned after the war and married one of the daughters. This is an inadequate tribute from a daughter to a beloved father. Would I were competent to write it as it should be for the work was a grand one and nobly done as many veterans of today could testify. Mrs. J.B. McFadden

THE GRANT FAMILY by Mrs. A.N. Grant — 1935

The first authentic information we have about the Grant family in this part of South Carolina is that James Grant and John Grant, probably brothers, came before the Revolutionary War, to what is now Chester County, South Carolina, from Virginia. From Courthouse records in 1798 we find James Grant sold land on Sandy river and bought land on Jewel's Fork of Sandy river. This man's wife was named Dorcas. They had two sons, James II and Benjamin, and four daughters, Polly, Phoebe, Sarah, and Tabitha. We have not yet been able to trace the descendants of James II.

As close as we can figure, Benjamin was born between 1790 and 1800. He married Lavina Williams, a sister of Jesse Williams. To them were born six sons and three daughters: (Capt.) Benjamin Andrew, James Henry, Caroline, Neely Marion, Jasper Newton, Gains, Calhoun McDuffie (Mack), Cynthia, and Sarah. There are three headstones in Armenia cemetery made by Benjamin. They are rough rocks with the letters "B.G., L.G., died 1870; M.C.G., died 1845." The first stone lay under his house for several years and was placed at the grave after his death. The date was never cut on it.

On the old Walker Mill Pond road, which goes from Mr. John Pressley's store on the Wilksburg road to the road at Sam Grant's that goes past Armenia Church, there are two houses. The first one was Benjamin's. It stood about 500 yards below and on the same side of the road as Walter Simpson's gin house. The second one was James R. (Rock) Grant's who married Benjamin's sister, Tabitha. This house is about 500 yards below and on the same side of the road, and is still standing. It is now owned by Mr. J.J. Dodds. The way I distinguish these two branches of the family is, the first belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin and the second was founded on a Rock.

Benjamin's oldest son was Benjamin Andrew, born June 16, 1815. He married Sarah McAnulty. They had three sons and three daughters, Francis Marion, of Malone, Florida, now 94 years old; Callie, and Newton. The daughters' names I do not know. This family went to Western Alabama in 1858.

James Henry, born in 1818, married Elizabeth H. Pressley. They have seven sons, one dying in infancy; Benjamin Andrew, James Wesley, Leander Harrison, Lafayette Taylor, Amzi Neely, and Thomas Henry (Dock). They lived in a two-story log house below the present site of Mr. Sam Dove's house. In the early 1850's they built a new house in which Mr. Sam Dove now lives and where, in 1895, Mr. A. Nelly Grant was born.

Neely Marion, born in 1826, married Caroline Pressley. They lived where Mr. Ainsley Grant formerly lived, and where Mr. Henry Wilson now lives. To Neely and Caroline were born three sons and three daughters, Ann, Emily and Ainsley (twins), Edward, Martha, and Pierce. His second wife was Mary Hohen. They had two daughters, Jo and Ledgie.

Jasper Newton, born in 1831, married Frances Pressley and lived on Walker Mill creek below his brother, Neely. They had three sons and three daughters, Washington Wallace, Thomas Newton, Jasper Terry, Etta, Phronie, and Alphon (Tid). These three Grant brothers married three Pressley sisters.

Caroline, born in 1820, married John Estes, and lived on Jewel's Fork, and later on the Walker Mill road, just above Mr. John Pressley's house. They had two daughters and two sons, Martha, Rhoda, Neely, and William.

Sarah, born in 1822, married John Grant, one of Rock's sons. She did not live long.

Cynthia, born in 1824, was never married.

Gains married and moved to Georgia. There were no children in this family.

Calhoun McDuffie married Sarah Johnsey. They moved to Georgia and had seven sons and two daughters, Benjamin, Andrew, Quitman, George, Morgan, Albert, Alonzo, Zellie and Ollie. This is the original tribe of Benjamin.

Rock Grant and his wife, Tabitha, had five sons and six daughters, Jason, John, Alex, James (Jimpsey), Ben, Serenna (Rene), Catherine, Mary, Caroline, Betsy and Sally. Ben, Betsy and Sally never married. John, Alex, Jimpsey, Catherine and Caroline each had several children. Jason and Mary each had one son.

Tracing generations is very interesting, but to listen to the reading of names and dates is very tiresome, so we have prepared a chart, showing the Grant generations, as far as possible, from the two brothers from Virginia to the present day. To my knowledge the latest ones are James Melvin Grant, born July 22, 1935, a great-great-grandson of James H. Grant, and son of Olin and Ada Grant, and Ainsley Smith, born July 24, 1935, a great-grandson of Neely M. Grant, and son of Weldon and Lucille Grant. We have 792 names on the chart and wish to add to it from time to time.

These Grants were industrious, honest and neighborly, working from dawn to dusk in harvest time. Jasper, Neely, and James Henry, who lived close together, went to visit their father Benjamin, very often. These boys liked to go with them because Grandpa always had sweet cakes and Granddaddy would have, in the big wide fireplace in the fall of the year, plenty of juicy baked sweet potatoes. The young boys were taught to work, but had plenty of fun from all I've been told. They only went to Chester about once a year, and that was when the circus came to town. Uncle Neely (Big Neely) would bring all the boys, Ainsley, Ed and Pierce, Terry, Washie and Tom, Harris and "T", Neely, and Dock, in the wagon to see the parade and the sights but they never went inside the tents. It was a wonderful trip and talked about for months afterwards.

EARLY SCHOOLS

There were very few schools when these boys were "coming up". Each family paid so much toward a teacher's salary. The school term varied in length, but the children stayed from early morning until late afternoon. There was a log school house at the Bonnet Rock, just one room, with a big fireplace and no windows, so the door stood open to give light. The benches were made of slabs and there was one big desk where the children did their writing. Uncle Jimmy Carson, Miss Betsy Killian, and Mr. Harrison Grant, great uncle of Mr. J. Martin Grant, were some of the teachers. Just across the road from this school was a blacksmith shop, belonging to Bill Grant, son of Phoebe Grant and nephew of Benjamin Grant. Bill and his son, Jim, would make and lay plows, make horseshoes, etc. Little Neely and Ainsley would look through the cracks between the logs of the school house and see the sparks fly as the smiths beat the hot iron on the anvil. The beats seemed to say, "Bill Jim, Bill Jim, Bill Jim, Bill, Bill, Bill" to these boys who grew tired of the hard benches and long lists of words in the old "blue-back speller" and longed to be out of doors. The next school was held in the preacher's tent on the old camp ground. Here Mr. Buchanan, first editor of The Chester Reporter, and "Humpy-Back" Jim Sanders taught.

The first Armenia school was built between 1876 and 1880. Mr. John Grant, whose house still stands just below Mrs. Ainsley Grant's on the Chester road, gave the land. Mr. Taylor Grant supervised the building of it and Mr. Neely Grant and Mr. Zach Roof built the chimney. The next generations went to this school. Misses Molly Lackey, Catty Lucas, Mary Traywick, and Mattie Mills taught several years, and boarded with Mr. and Mrs. Neely Grant at the cross roads. Austin Wilks and Miss Lizzie Loury also taught here.

CHURCH AND CAMP MEETING

The lives of these people were so closely associated with the church that we can not speak of one without the other. The first record we have of a church or a preacher is

This community was in 1832, when the Chester circuit extended from near Columbia, South Carolina to four miles northwest of Chester. The preacher was J.H. Robinson, a circuit rider. Preaching was held whenever the circuit rider came, regardless of the day of the week.

The first church was organized and built at Armenia in 1843, by one, James Grant, the land was given by Jesse Johnsey and his wife, Mary. The preacher was Rev. John Watts. Mr. Thomas Pressley, grandfather of James H., Neely M., and Jasper's children was the first class leader. He carried a walking stick with a curved handle and when the boys were mischievous he hooked it around their necks and gave it a twist. In 1859, the circuit was divided and east Chester included New Hope, Armenia, and Capers Chapel.

Sometime during the existence of this church, the Bonnet Rock Camp Ground Arbor was built. There were thirty acres in the grounds. The arbor was good size. There were two aisles, crossing in the center, and the seats were made of slabs. Behind the pulpit there were seats for the colored people. Fresh wheat straw was spread around the altar. The arbor was lighted by candles. One large chandelier, holding about fifteen candles, was suspended from the center of the roof. Single candles burned on each post at the edge of the arbor and the grounds outside were lighted by pine knots. Four stobs were driven in the ground, a plank laid on them and then a shovel of dirt. On this the lighted knots were placed.

Each family had a rude cabin or tent. The fathers, mothers, and children would "pack up" and come in wagons and stay a week while the meeting was going on. Some member of the family would go home each day to tend to the stock. Not only the families from the immediate neighborhood, but also people from miles away attended the meeting. Oh what glorious services were held there in "lay-by" time! At night the younger children were put to bed and the others went to service. I have been told that the grand old hymns and fervent prayers of those devout worshipers have never been forgotten. I do not know when the arbor was built, but it was torn down sometime between 1875-80, shortly after the second church was built.

In these early years most people walked to church. Some went in wagons and some rode horseback and the old "upping block" still stands across the road from the original site of the second church. The first buggy in the community, a two wheeled gig, was owned by grandfather Thomas Pressley.

The second church was built in 1872-3. Every family did its share in cutting and hauling logs to the mill and bringing the lumber to the church grounds. The church was built by a Mr. Alexander, from North Carolina, and was a two story structure. The upstairs was used by the Masons and also for entertainment. This man also built the houses of Mr. Wesley Carter and Mr. Jesse Hardin. In and around this church the religious life of nearly everyone who is now living or has lived in this community, centers. We have prepared a chart showing the history of the churches.

CIVIL WAR

When the call to arms came in 1861, many of the Grants enlisted and served. Neely M. and Jasper served four years. James Henry's son Andrew, went and Harris went first in his father's place and later his own. Perhaps there were others, but I am more familiar with these families. These soldiers were brave, indeed, but no more so than the women who stayed at home and kept things going. They did many heroic deeds when Sherman's army came through the country. When Columbia, South Carolina was burned and the soldiers raided Chester County, grandfather Pressley, who was then ninety years old, died from fright.

A new school and church have been built and the Grants are still public spirited and do their part in all these undertakings. In 1931, Mr. Harris Grant, then 86 years old, lifted the first shovel of dirt for the new church. I can not say that any of them have ever become famous, but they have been the backbone of the community and Chester County.

Some of my information I gathered from tombstones, some from the record books of Mr. Ainsley Grant, and some given by Mr. Neely Grant and Mrs. S.C. Carter. We are all sons and daughters of the American Revolution, as the first James and John were members of Capt. Francis Kirkpatrick's company of volunteer horsemen.

The ever increasing and changing number of the Grant generation have watched and also taken part in the changes from covered wagons on Indian trails to motor trucks on paved highways and aeroplanes in the sky, from spinning wheels and hand looms to cotton mills with electric machinery, from pine knots lights to Mazda lamps, from rough log houses to mansions of stone and from the one room school to the spacious college. AINSLEY AND MATTIE WHITE GRANT

On June 6, 1875 Ainsley Grant and Martha Jane (Mattie) White were united in marriage. She was the daughter of James McCain White born 1830, and Nancy Lucas White born 1839. He was a son of Neely Marion Grant born 1826, and Caroline Pressley Grant born 1829.

On the land then owned by Mr. Grant was one of the finest rock quarries in this section of Chester County. The large chimney that was built to his home was split from one of these rocks. Lower down, near the falls, is where the granite rock was secured to build many of the curb stones and steps of the streets of Chester.

Of this union came thirteen children, Leila Jane, who died at sixteen, Thomas Marion, 1878, James Graham, 1880, Minnie Estelle died in infancy, Dora Blanche 1883, Emma Ann 1886, Ella Mae 1888, Nancy Carolina (Nannie) 1890, Effie Azilee 1893, Mattie Pearl 1895, Edna Viola 1898, Virginia Lowry 1900, and Ainsley Weldon 1903.

Thomas Marion Grant was twice married, first to Martha Elizabeth (Bessie) Grant and second to Kate Weaver Wilson. Of this first union four children were born: Maurice, Albert, Mattie Geneva and an infant son.

James Graham Grant was married to Bessie Jane Bell Hudson and they had ten children: Audry, Annis, J.G. Jr., Pauline, Carlisle, Morris, Linduff, Calvin, Thomas, and Irby.

Dora Blanche Grant was married to Samuel Anderson (Jack) Brakefield and had three children: John A. died in infancy, Attrice, died in infancy, and Janie Sue.

Emma Ann Grant was married to John Tracy Walsh and of this union five children were born: Janie Evelyn Harold Tracy, William Carl, Dorothy Frances, and Robert Ainsley.

Ella Mae Grant married Will Jeff Hudson and they had five children: Lola Marie, Willie Mae, Margaret Kathleen, Charles Kelly, and Ellen Wylie.

Nancy Caroline Grant was married to William Alexander Grant and they had two children, Clifford Wendell and Ada Merle.

Effie Azilee Grant was married to James Biggers Atkinson, Jr. Of their union seven children were born: James Carter, Ralph Wylie, Lila Catherine, Edith Azilee, Mary Virginia, Julia Faye and Nell.

Mattie Pearl Grant was married to George Waddell Atkinson. They had two sons George Waddell, Jr. and Robert Marion.

Edna Viola Grant was married to Boyd Lafayette Roberts and they had two sons, one who died in infancy and Boyd Lafayette, Jr.

Virginia Lowry Grant was married to Heber Tilman Hudson. They had three daughters, Martha Helen, Sarah Virginia, and one died in infancy.

Ainsley Weldon Grant married Lucille Hudson. Of this union two sons were born, Edgar Weldon and Ainsley Smith.

After most of the children were married Mr. and Mrs. Grant moved from the rock quarry place to the Armenia cross-roads. Here they operated the Armenia telephone exchange until it was taken over by the Chester Telephone Company.

Ainsley Grant and his family were the "pillars" of Armenia M.E. Church and he reared his family with strict discipline. Many of their descendants are still members of Armenia United Methodist Church.

The most popular place in that community was "Grandpa's Country Store". Every child loved to visit this "magical attraction". They knew that their pennies would turn into nickels when they traded with "Grandpa". The store was within a "city block" of the school and at recess the kiddies hurried to the store.

Christmas Day was a day of celebration by the Ainsley Grant Family. It started when their first child got married. They always were expected "Home" for Christmas Day. This was an annual occasion and all the children, grandchildren and yes, great grandchildren looked forward to it. Even after Mr. Grant's death Mrs. Grant carried on this wonderful tradition. The family still has its family reunion, but on the Sunday closest to Ainsley and Mattie's anniversary, June 6, 1875.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. B.L. Roberts, 31 grandchildren, 74 great-grandchildren, 84 great-great-grandchildren and 4 great-great-great-grandchildren.

Mr. Grant kept a daily diary of the whole community's action. His diaries date from 1884 until his death in 1927. Many of them burned when the Armenia Church parsonage was destroyed by fire. One quote, "August 31, 1886 a great earthquake was felt as we were attending a revival service at Armenia. Rev. Traywick tried to calm the people by reciting Psalm 24:1 'The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein.'" Many people converted tonight."

On June 6, 1925 Mr. and Mrs. Grant celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Tables were built, under a large oak tree, on the front lawn. All of their children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren along with neighbors and relatives attended this gala occasion. A white sheet was draped around the trunk of the Oak tree and on it was pinned two large bluebirds winging together with eleven smaller ones following, all flying upward. Under this affectionate scene were gold numerals 1875-1925.

At noon there was never a more elaborate or bountifully spread table, country cured ham, fried chicken, sandwiches, cakes, sticks and dainties of every description. Many lovely and useful gifts attended to this grand couple's popularity.

Seven of their children lived to celebrate their Golden Anniversaries. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Graham Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brakefield, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tracy Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Will Jeff Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Waddell Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd L. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Ainsley Weldon Grant.

Mr. Grant had a terminal illness and it was his request that, at his death, his body would be carried to the church in a wagon drawn by Bell and Dad, his two gray mules. He asked Lawrence Clack to drive them. He passed away November 11, 1927. The wagon was draped in white and his request was finalized. School children, who loved him joined the procession and walked before the wagon. Barron's funeral home was in charge.

Mrs. Grant lived on in their home with her son Weldon and his family until her death December 21, 1944. They are both buried in Armenia Church Cemetery. This quotation is on their gravemarker "Gone to a brighter home where grief cannot come."

The Grant Family is of Scotch-Irish descent. Early American historical records indicate that many persons bearing this name made great contributions to the development of our country and their descendants today can be found throughout our land well represented in the arts and sciences as well as in the world of business. The patriarch of this large family, Ambrose A. Grant, spent his entire life as a farmer in the western section of Chester County. The family attended New Hope Methodist Church which was two miles from their home.

In 1926, he became blind but continued to work. He became adept at making comshuck and hickory split chair bottoms, baskets and axe handles. His senses of touch, smell and hearing became more acute. He recognized family and friends by their voices.

By using a cane and his faithful Canine Companion "Bull Dog" he walked around the community and often to visit his daughters, Lily and Pearl who lived one mile away.

About 1906, George Brakefield, Neely, Harris and Taylor Grant formed the Armenia Telephone Company. The exchange was installed in Neely's house and Mr. Bell of the Chester Telephone Company went out and showed these men how to string the line to Chester. Telephones were installed in the homes of several others in the vicinity.

Because of Geneva's ill health, this family moved to Chester in 1910. In 1913 Neely remarried and sold the home place to his first cousin, Ainsley Grant. He had earlier sold his interest in the telephone company.

JAMES HENRY GRANT AND WIVES
ELIZABETH HARRISON
PRESSLEY
AND ELIZA G. DAVIS

James Henry Grant, born 6 June 1818, died 18 November 1892, was the second son of Lavina Williams and Benjamin Grant. His first wife was Elizabeth Harrison Pressley, born 4 March 1820, died 21 October 1881. She was a daughter of Sarah Lea (Lee) and Thomas Preslar (Presley-Presley-Presley). James Henry and Elizabeth were the parents of seven sons. His second wife was Eliza G. Davis, born 2 February 1834, died 19 October 1895. She was a daughter of Mary Strange and John B. Davis. There was no issue from this union.

Unlike his brothers who lived in Georgia and Mississippi for a while, James Henry and his family lived all of their days in Chester County, South Carolina. Their home was a large two story house on what is now known as Pressley Road. He was a very large man in statue and very jovial. When his wife, Elizabeth, died he married a sister of one of his daughters-in-law. Thus, James Henry's second wife was step-mother as well as sister-in-law to his son, Benjamin Andrew. James Henry and his wives are buried in the church cemetery at Armenia United Methodist Church, Chester County, South Carolina.

The children of James Henry and Elizabeth Harrison (Pressley) Grant were:

Benjamin Andrew Grant, born 25 November 1839, died 23 September 1893, married Sarah Carolyne Davis, born 20 September 1842, died 22 March 1917. She was a daughter of Mary Strange and John B. Davis. They were the parents of three sons and seven daughters: Andrew Frazier married Lillian Caroline Hoffman; George Foster married Louella Evans; William died in infancy; Elizabeth married Robert Hardin; Alice married Franklin P. Kirkpatrick; Janie married Seabrook Churchill Carter; Ella married John Lucewood Aycock; Ola married Elie Moore; Claudia Pritchard married Glover Triplett; Ida died in infancy.

Hazel T. Grant, born 5 February 1842, died 6 February 1845.

James Wesley Grant, born 10 March 1844, died 1 February 1915, never married.

ministrative Board of the Church. They have one daughter, Neely Kathryn, born January 12, 1982.

Jesse has had a very interesting life. He enjoys sports of all kinds, especially when the "South Carolina Gamecocks" are involved. He loves people and enjoys helping others when he can.

He has told us of many exciting experiences he had while serving overseas. He was on some dangerous missions and had many "narrow escapes" from death, but kept right on doing his best for his country.

On one occasion, he had a very frightening, as well as exciting experience. He was driving a truck with the General beside him in an area where there was heavy fighting. He was determined to get through to his company but there was a bridge to be crossed. He was really afraid as he approached the bridge but went on anyway. Just as he got to the other side the bridge was blown up and explosions were all around him. He had a narrow escape but kept going until he reached his comrades.

He, now, feels a sense of pride in his service to his country. He knows he had a part in making his country a better place for his family, friends, and his fellowman.

Because of him, and others like him, America is still "the land of the free and home of the brave." Written by Betty Kennedy Grant

THE JAMES GRANT FAMILY

The first authentic information we have about the Grant family in this part of South Carolina is that two brothers, James and John Grant, came, before the Revolutionary war, to Chester County, South Carolina, from Virginia. They were of Scotch-Irish descent.

Almost all of the Grants in Chester County are direct descendants of James Grant, born in 1750, and his wife, Dorcas, who bought land and settled on Jewel's Fork of Sandy River in 1798. They had two sons, James II and Benjamin, and four daughters, Polly, Phoebe, Sarah and Tabitha.

It is from the children of Benjamin and his wife, Lavinia Williams Grant, and sister, Tabitha, who married Rock Grant, that the majority of the Chester County Grants are descendants.

These two families lived very close to each other, and to distinguish between the two family branches, one was called the "Tribe of Benjamin" and the other was the "Founded on the Rock Tribe".

Rock Grant and his wife, Tabitha, had five sons and six daughters: Jason, John, Alex, James, Ben, Serenna, Catherine, Mary, Caroline, and Sally never married. The others married and had families. The Dodds, Lee, and Melton families of Chester County are some of the descendants of the Rock Grant Tribe.

Benjamin and his wife, Lavinia, had six sons and three daughters: Captain Benjamin Andrew, James Henry, Neely Marion, Jasper Newton, Gains, Mack, Caroline, Cynthia, and Sara.

There are three headstones in Armenia Cemetery made by Benjamin Grant. One of the stones, with only the initials "B.G." cut on the rough rock, lay under his house for years. It was placed at his grave at his death, but the date was never carved on it.

Benjamin's oldest son, Benjamin Andrew, married Sarah McAnulty and moved to Western Alabama; Caroline married John Estes and lived on Jewel's Fork. They had four children — Martha, Rhoda, Neely, and Williams; Cynthia was never married; Gains and Calhoun married and moved to Georgia. Gains did not have any children and Calhoun had nine children.

James Henry, Neely Marion, and Jasper Newton all married Pressley sisters, daughters of Mr. Tom Pressley, who later died at the age of ninety years, from fright when Columbia was burned and soldiers raided Chester County.

Many of us in Chester County are direct descendants of these three Grant brothers and three Pressley sisters.

James Henry (1818) and Elizabeth Pressley had seven sons: Benjamin Andrew, James Wesley, Harris, Lafayette, Amzi Neely, and Thomas Henry. One son died in infancy.

Neely Marion, (1826) and Caroline Pressley had six children: Ann, Edward, Martha, Pierce, and twins Emily and Ainsley. His second wife was Mary Hohen. They had two daughters, Jo and Ledgie.

Jasper Newton (1828) and Frances Pressley had six children: Washington Wallace, Jasper Terry, Etta, Phronie, Alphon, (Tid) and Thomas Newton. This is the original "Tribe of Benjamin" and there are many of their descendants now living in Chester County. (Grants, Walshes, Hudsons, Atkinsons, Brakefields, Roberts, Wades, Pressleys, and many others.)

Correct information is not available to me on all of these families, but Thomas Newton Grant, my grandfather, was born May 20, 1854 and died August 6, 1928. He married Mary Anne Wilson who was born November 20, 1855, and died May 10, 1915. They are both buried in Evergreen Cemetery in Chester, South Carolina. From this union eight children were born: Jesse, Lynn, Holmes, Austin, Belle, Virgie, Eunice (still living) and Major Johnson (John), my father. (See separate sketch)

These original Grants of Chester County were industrious, honest, and neighborly — working together during harvest time. Jasper, Neely Marion, and James Henry lived close together, and they went to their father's (Benjamin) house very often. Their children liked to go with them because "Granny" would have sweet cakes for them, and Grand-daddy would have plenty of juicy baked potatoes in the fireplace.

The children were taught to work but had lots of fun, too. They would all load in the wagon and go to Chester, about once a year, when the circus came to town.

There were very few schools when these Grants were coming up. There was a one room log school at the Bonnett Rock with a fireplace and no windows. Mr. John Grant gave the land for the school. Mr. Taylor Grant superintended the building of it, and Mr. Neely Grant and Mr. Zach Roof built the chimney.

The lives of these people were closely associated with the church. The first church was organized and built at Armenia in 1843 by James Grant. The land was given by Jesse Johnsey and his wife, Mary.

The first preacher was Reverend John Watts. Mr. Thomas Pressley, grandfather of James Henry, Neely Marion, and Jasper Newton's children, was the first class leader. He carried a walking stick with a curved handle, and when the boys were mischievous, he hooked it around their necks and gave a twist!

Sometimes during the existence of the church, the Bonnet Camp Ground was built on thirty acres of land. The family would "pack up" and come in wagons and stay a week while the meeting was going on. I have been told that the grand old hymns and fervent prayers of these worshipers were never forgotten by the young and the old.

When the call to arms came in 1861, many of the Grants enlisted and served. Neely Marion and Jasper Newton served for four years. There are others of other generations, but we are all sons and daughters of the American Revolution, as the first James and John Grant were members of Captain Francis Kirkpatrick's Company of Volunteer Horsemen.

The ever increasing and changing number of the Grant generations have watched and taken part in the changes from covered wagons on Indian trails, to motor trucks on paved highways and airplanes and rockets in the sky; from spinning wheels with hand looms to cotton mills with electricity; from pine knot lights to Mazda lamps; from rough log cabins to mansions of stone and brick; and from one room schoolhouses to the spacious and beautiful colleges and universities of today. Borden Milk Company, also did much livestock trading.

We raised lots of vegetables and spent our summer canning, making kraut, preserving fruits, making big corn hominy and preparing for winter. Mom made most of our soap.

In early summer, we would load up in the double seated surrey and return to the old home place to pick tubs full of large juicy blackberries down by the creek bank, to preserve and can for winter.

Most of our clothes were hand-made, made-over, hand-me-downs and patched. My Dad had a shoe last and he kept our shoes in good shape.

Not having electricity, the house was lighted by kerosene lamps and lanterns. At night, after supper, all of us kids would gather around the big table, with the lamp in the middle, and do our school homework.

In the afternoons after school, we all had chores to do, in other words, we had to "do up the turns". Hogs to stomp, cows to milk, chickens to feed, pump the water for livestock, washing and house use, gather the eggs, carry in wood for the large fire place and drum heater in winter. Also wood for the large Home Comfort cook stove we used summer and winter. Not to forget ironing all those shirts with flat irons heated by the fire or on the stove.

In later years, we did get electricity and had the conveniences of several appliances.

In the fall after the frost, our Dad would make up a large barrel of locust and persimmon beer that was a real treat. The last of the beer would sometimes sit too long and a dipper of that would give you a nice kick.

Radios we did not have, so we did lots of visiting and young folks had parties on weekends. Always we had music in our home — Mom played the piano and groups would gather and sing for hours.

Mom would make a chicken-stew or a batch of taffy-pull candy, peanut brittle, brownies, sweet cakes or a large churn of homemade ice cream. We would get our ice from the ice truck which came by once a week.

Some of our happiest times were on Christmas Day at Grandpa and Grandma Grant's home with all their families.

Later on as the families grew so large, we had Christmas at our own home. This we continue to do and all the family members gather at the Big House for Christmas as well as other holidays, always a very close family.

In later years my Dad turned the dairy business over to Audrey. All these years milking cows was done by hand so Audrey installed modern milking facilities and with the help of his wife operated the dairy.

In the meantime, after my Dad retired, he sold the farm to our brother Linduff of Guatemala.

Several years later on March 5, 1966 at age 86 our Dad passed away. Mom died July 3, 1973 at age 85. Both are buried at Armenia.

Audrey and his wife owned part of the farm and lived there after his medical retirement.

Audrey died of heart failure August 25, 1978 and is buried at Armenia. He was a charter member of Highland Ruritan Club, member of the Farm Bureau and director of local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He was president of Armenia Cemetery Association and Armenia Methodist Church Lay speaker.

All the family were active church members, living in a positive faith and being brought up with a Christian foundation, the family continues to build on a solid rock.

Our memories are not so much of what we didn't have, but those wonderful things we did have, love and closeness and sacrifice, those things that are most valuable and have no cost. By Pauline G. Thompson

Major Johnson Grant attended Red Gate School near Rodman, South Carolina, later known as Oakley Hall School. On July 23, 1905, he married Emma Eliza Knox of Knox's Station in Chester County, who was born on September 7, 1885 and died on June 13, 1946. She was the daughter of James Wylie Knox (1852-1927), and Sara Rebecca Gill Knox (1854-1925). She was a descendant of James Knox, who emigrated to America from Belfast, Ireland, and settled in Charleston, South Carolina.

After James Knox, her direct line of descendants were James Knox, Jr. (b. 1771), who was killed in his own corn crib by the Tories while at home on furlough; William Knox (Irish - Billy) and Margaret Knox (b. 1790); William Knox (b. 1810) and Elizabeth Wylie Knox; James Wylie Knox (b. 1852) and Sara Rebecca Gill Knox (b. 1854).

Her father, at one time, owned all the land in a section of Chester County, which was called Knox's Station in his honor.

After their marriage, John and Emma Grant purchased four hundred acres of her father's estate and built a home. Two other children, James Thomas and William Lindsey, died in infancy. The house still stands at the old homestead as a reminder to us of the past. It and the land are still owned by family members.

John and Emma Grant were Methodists and attended Pleasant Grove Methodist Church, near Rodman, South Carolina. They were both buried at Union Cemetery in Richburg, South Carolina.

Ledge Forrest married Charles Timme and their children are Charles, Jr. and William Grant. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Timme are survivors.

Mr. Grant was a man of the most industrious habits. He followed farming all his life, and by his energy and attention to business was signally successful. He and his sons operated a sawmill. Ainsley was in charge of the sawmill and kept the books. Pierce was engaged in the cotton gin and Edward operated a grist mill. Mr. Grant was upright in all the details of life, a God fearing man who treated his neighbors as himself. He and his family were earnest and loyal members of Armenia Methodist Episcopal Church.

As a Soldier, Mr. Grant was one of the bravest and best who went forth at the South's Call. He served throughout the struggle as a member of Captain O. Barber's Company of Cavalry, At Trevillian's Station when the fight was hottest and the ammunition of the Confederates became exhausted, a volunteer was called upon to run the gauntlet of screaming shells and flying minie balls and procure a fresh supply. Mr. Grant stepped forward without hesitancy and not only made his way to the place where the ammunition was to be had, but distributed it along the line. This incident was witnessed by those high in command, and it was not forgotten.

Mrs. Grant was a courageous lady and needs to be commended for the part she played during the absence of her husband.

We are grateful for a Christian ancestry, a heritage to be proud of. We are glad for their great faith, a faith that braved the difficulties of war, and were still able to "Praise God from whom all blessings flow".

It is believed that the Grants came from Scotland and that many settled in Virginia, while others came to Chester County, South Carolina.

One of our Grant Clan members, Walter Ervin Grant, who works in the Pentagon Building in Arlington, Virginia (son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Boyd Grant) visited in Scotland in October 1979.

Ervin, member of the Department of Defense, was called to Brussels, Belgium to attend a NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) meeting. After the meeting he and his wife visited in London and Scotland.

While in Scotland they visited the ruins of Urquhart Castle, Loch Ness Inverness-shire. The residential tower at the northern end of the elongated site above Loch Ness was built by the Grants in the 16th Century.

This is one of two areas in Scotland where the Grant Clan lived. Some Grants are still there.

Ervin and Helen were privileged to register their names and addresses in this Castle's directory. Mrs. Edna Grant Roberts, Mrs. Dorothy Walsh Ferguson

NANCY STINSON ANDERSON GREEN

William Anderson and his bride, Nancy Stinson, came to Chester County, then Craven County, South Carolina in 1773 with the Conventer Colony of the Reverend William Martin from County Antrim, Ireland. With them came James, William and Elizabeth Stinson, brothers and sister of Nancy. They were also accompanied by an orphan, Lizzy Craig, a niece of William Anderson and his only relative who came to America. The land he selected lay about two miles to the east, half a mile from what is now Roosville near Great Falls.

The family lived in a tent until the Meeting House was completed. William then built a log cabin for his family and cleared ground to plant Indian corn. William prospered and three children were born Mary, Robert and William.

By 1780 the revolution had reached such proportions that the Reverend Martin preached such a stirring sermon against the British that the men of the congregation joined Land's group. William Anderson joined the forces of Sumter under Capt. John Steele in 1780. William was killed two months after he joined the Army at Neelys and was buried where he fell.

William's death left Nancy a young widow with three small children. The British had burned the meeting house and taken the horses and cows except one horse and one cow. Nancy struggled to feed and care for the family with only the help of Lizzy Craig. The children were ill with smallpox and needed constant care. The child Nancy was caring for when William joined the army died at birth.

Daniel Green, a Pennsylvania joined the Marines under Captain Biddle. While in the Charleston harbor he exchanged places with a soldier and enrolled in a regiment of Continental Regulars. He was taken prisoner May 12, 1780 and placed on a prison ship in March 1781. Seven of the prisoners over-powered the guard and escaped. They made their way to the plantation of Colonel Pinckney. Mrs. Pinckney although alone and dependent on the Negroes for food shared with these men. From this place the fugitives made their way to "Buckhead", the residence of Mrs. Motte. They were lodged in an out house and food brought to them at night. It was there that they learned that the Scotch Irish of Chester, Lancaster and York, South Carolina, had refused British protection and were defending themselves. Mrs. Motte arranged with a young guest to make it possible for the men to escape and two days later Green and Morris, another of the escapees, were sheltered in the home of Isabelle Ferguson. The next day Green started out to find a house and in his walk came on Nancy Anderson. As soon as he saw her he walked directly up to her and asked if she knew where he could secure a horse. Nancy replied in the negative and invited the stranger into her home. At the widow's invitation Green joined the family at dinner. After leaving Nancy, Green went back to the Fergusons but could not get the image of the lovely lady out of his mind. The next day Lizzy Craig came to the Fergusons to shell corn and Daniel Green assisted her on her horse and offered to go to the mill with her but Lizzy refused his offer since Nancy had told her to go alone.

Green continued to see Nancy and when he asked her if she would marry a soldier she replied, "If I ever should marry none but a soldier would I have."

Daniel borrowed a horse from Ferguson and with Nancy mounted on her sorrel mare, rode to Justice John Gaston and were married. Nancy's friends were scandalized that she had dispensed with formalities prescribed by the church.

Daniel Green treated the Anderson children as his own. After the war Green prospered. He then built a large house for the family.

Nancy Green died in 1827 in her 77th year. Daniel Green lived only a few weeks longer. As Nancy lay on her death bed there came a torrential rain and washed up the bones of William Anderson. Nancy's son Colonel William Anderson had his father's bones buried in the family grave where only a few days later his mother was laid to rest. At Daniel's death he was buried on the other side of Nancy. In 1936 the U.S. Government had markers placed at William and Daniel Green's graves.

A marker has been placed on Nancy Green's grave. She sleeps between her two husbands. Submitted by Anne Pickens Collins

Mr. Gregory was a veteran of the War Between the States. When only 17 years of age, he obtained his father's permission to join the Confederate forces. He enlisted in Union County as a private in the Johnson Rifles, a part of Jenkins' Sharpshooters, but later he was assigned to Company E of the 5th South Carolina Infantry Regiment, when a reorganization of forces took place. Mr. Gregory stated that he was in 27 real battles, and was promoted from private to lieutenant. He was the acting adjutant of his regiment for some time. He used to tell how kind the Yankees were to them after the surrender, dividing rations with them and otherwise aiding them. He often told of the rough journey home of nearly 600 miles, wearing worn-out shoes and having blistered feet. He finally arrived home toward the end of April, to learn that his brother Tom had been dead about four weeks.
