He next became state agent and adjuster for the America Fire Companies. The ample experience which he had by this time gained in the insurance adjustment field he put to good use in forming his own firm, B. K. Clapp, Inc., an independent Atlanta firm of adjusters. He remained the president of this organization until he became general manager of the Southern Adjustment Bureau.

One of the best-known insurance men in the South, Mr. Clapp had represented the capital stock fire insurance companies in many of the large and complicated claims for loss arising at a number of locations throughout the South. "The Journal of Commerce," national newspaper serving his field of professional activity, wrote concerning Mr. Clapp:

... He had a special aptitude for organization work and was an inspiration to those with whom he was associated. His advice was eagerly sought and respectfully followed because men trusted his integrity and recognized his gifts. He was an untiring worker, devoted to his business, and due to his warm and gracious personality, his friends were many.

It was such traits of personality, as well as his acknowledged leadership in his field, which brought him positions of trust among organized Southern insurance men. In 1929 he was appointed general manager of the Southern Adjustment Bureau and, when it merged with the Fire Companies' Adjustment Bureau, Inc., he continued in the general managership of the resultant organization, in charge of its Southeastern department. Mr. Clapp's experience and skill in estimating the value of fire losses were everywhere recognized, and the foremost insurance corporations relied heavily on his judgment.

In his home city of Atlanta, Mr. Clapp was a member of the Capital City Club and a communicant of St. Mark Methodist Church.

On June 14, 1904, Brainard Kivlin Clapp married Gertrude Hall, daughter of Benjamin Mortimer and Kate (Chamberlin) Hall. Her father, one of the foremost civil engineers in Georgia's history, is the subject of a biographical sketch accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Clapp became the parents of two children: 1. Sue Allen, who became the wife of Charles E. Freeman, Jr. They reside in Chattanooga, Tennessee. 2. Mary, who married Walter E. Woelper, of Newark, New Jersey and resides in Atlanta. Mrs. Clapp resides at 141 The Prado, Northeast.

Brainard K. Clapp died on September 9, 1942. Leaving a record of achievement significant in the commercial annals of the South, he is remembered as one of Atlanta's popular and respected citizens.

BENJAMIN MORTIMER HALL—The late Benjamin Mortimer Hall was one of the constructive spirits upon whom the material advancement of the state of Georgia has depended. Trained as a civil engineer, he founded the firm of Hall Brothers, Inc., which completed construction projects throughout the South. In a varied career he also found time for teaching, writing, civic work, and official relationships with professional organizations. Atlanta has produced few such well-rounded men, and few as consistently devoted to the service of their fellows through the training and the disciplined use of their native gifts.

A native of Wynnboro, Fairfield County, South Carolina, Mr. Hall was born January 31, 1853, son of Dr. Nathaniel Barber and Nancy (Boulware) Hall. He was probably of the fourth generation of his family in the paternal line to reside in America, and the following record of the three generations preceding him were supplied by the engineer's father, Dr. Hall, who in a preface wrote that he supposed himself "to be the oldest living member of our family."

(1) John Hall, first of the line recorded in these notes but perhaps not the first of the line in America, came to South Carolina with his widowed mother from Virginia prior to the Revolution. They were accompanied by her brothers, John and Moses Hollis. At the close of the war John Hall, then sixteen, was in military camp. He married Martha Gladden, whose mother was of the Agnue family, in 1788. Of this union were born ten children.

(11) John (2) Hall, fifth child and fourth son, was born about 1797. He married, first, Mollie Barber, an Irish girl, who belonged to the colony of Irish patriots from Antrim County, Ireland, who came to South Carolina in 1797. Of this union were born six children. John (2) Hall married, second, in 1829, Dorcas Gladden, who survived him and married thrice afterwards. He died on July 31, 1831.

(111) Dr. Nathaniel Barber Hall, fourth child and third son of John (2) and Mollie (Barber) Hall, was born in 1821 in South Carolina and died in Gordon County, Georgia in December, 1902. He took the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Charleston Medical College in the state of his birth in 1846. After practicing in that state for a time, he removed to Floyd County, Georgia in December, 1853. In 1859 he moved to Webster County, Georgia. Dr. Hall served in the State Troops nine months, three of these months as captain and six as surgeon. After the conclusion of the war, he returned in 1868 to South Carolina, and in December, 1880, came again to Georgia and settled in Gordon County, where he resided until his death. In 1849 in South Carolina, Dr. Nathaniel Hall married Nancy Boulware, and of this union the following children were born: 1. Gertrude. 2. Benjamin Mortimer, of whom further. 3. James. 4. Maxey. 5. Metellus. 6. Olin. Three others, Mary, John and William, died young.

Through other lines of descent, the engineer could claim as an ancestor John Barber, who was a soldier under Robert Emmet in the North of Ireland and who came as a refuge to America, settling in South Carolina in 1707. The Boulware line is of French Huguenot origin. Benjamin Boulware, maternal grandfather of Benjamin Mortimer Hall, married, in 1829, Sarah Richmond, and their daughter was Nancy Boulware.

Benjamin Mortimer Hall was less than a year old when his parents came to Georgia. Hence the years of his youth were for the most part spent in Webster County and he received his early education in its schools. Early attracted to engineering, he entered the University of Georgia, and on his graduation there in 1876, with the degree of Bachelor of Engineering, he accepted appointment as professor of mathematics at North Georgia Agricultural College, Dahlonega. He thereafter began his career in engineering, but concurrently continued his advanced preparation with courses at the University of Georgia. In 1885 he took degrees in civil and mechanical engineering. This same institution conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in 1921.

From 1880 to 1896, Mr. Hall gained varied experience as supervisor of mining operations in the gold mines and marble quarries of the northeastern and northwestern sections of his state. He was successively mining engineer and superintendent. Here, his memoir in the transactions of the American Society of Civil Engineers points out, he "established a reputation for

Thomas Kennedy Hall, 91, a Confederate veteran of the War Between the States and a resident of Lake county for the past 30 years, died at his home on High street early Saturday morning, following a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife, Fannie; by two sons, Henry of Oxford, and Maxie of Orlando; and by several grandchildren.

He was born near Columbia, South Carolina, on January 1st, 1846 and lived near Cuthbert, Georgia. During the War Between the States he enlisted in company E, and rose to the rank of sergeant in his company that was a part of the 3rd Georgia Regiment of Reserves, Gartell's Brigade, Cobb's Division, that was organized on April 16th, 1864, and was paroled on May 1st, 1865. They did guard duty at Andersonville prison during a portion of the war and the last battle in which they were engaged was at Columbus, Georgia, on April 16th, 1865, as they had not been informed of Lee's surrender for there were no telegraphic communication in that section of Georgia after Sherman's march.

In 1868 he came to Florida and located at Slyville on Lake Griffin, and later moved to Micunopy, where, on November 23, 1869, he married Miss Lulu McCollum of Micunopy. In a few years they moved back to his homestead at Slyville or Switten, and built a log cabin and later a nine room house in his orange grove. Mrs. Hall died on December 5th, 1904, leaving three sons. On July 4th, 1906, he married Miss Fannie Jackson of Cuthbert, Georgia. About 30 years ago they moved to Leesburg and occupied a house that remained his home until the time of his death.

Mr. Hall was an active member of the Methodist church, South, all his life, serving as steward in various churches for over 50 years, and was a trustee of the Morrison Memorial Methodist church in Leesburg. He was a past adjutant of the Lake county camp, United Confederate Veterans and was elected commander of the Third brigade, Florida Division, U. C. V., in October, 1933.

Funeral services were held in the chapel of the Beyers funeral home at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, with Dr. D. E. Montgomery and Rev. C. H. Holland officiating. Interment was made in the family plot in Lone Oak cemetery.

Unlike their Anglican, Presbyterian, and Baptist brethren, even rich Methodists appear to have been modest in the outward manifestations of their faith and few elaborate churches were erected. Charleston had two imposing Greek temples, Bethel, built in 1853, and Spring Street (now St. James'), completed in 1858. These, however, were likely to evoke censure for "vanity" from the up-country communicants. Columbia's Washington Street Church (1832) and Marion Street Church (1848)—both plainly named and plainly administered—were gone before 1900 and their relative impressiveness in the capital city is subject to conjec-manager and attended to the slaves on his five plantations in South Carolina. He also owned two places in Georgia, which he frequently visited. His crops were paying ones. He was the best of neighbors and a very benevolent man. No one ever went to him for a favor and came away emptyhanded His slaves loved him devotedly & some of them even after emancipation could not speak of him without tears coursing down their cheeks. He was a strong pillar in Bethesda Church. This was broken up by his death and his place has not since been filled. Not a dollar's worth of the large property

Dear Mr. Hall,

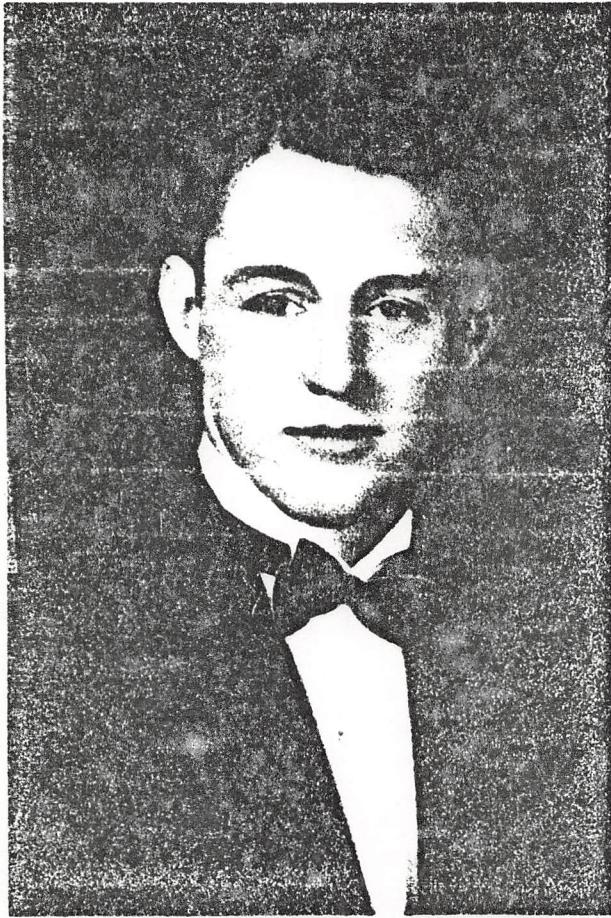

I am enclosing xerox copies of my work-sheets on Dr. William E. Hall. I think you can make them out. As you see, I was able to collect very little about him which is strange as he was a very prominent man. I could not even find his middle name - nor whether he was murdered in Fairfield County or in Bossier Parish, La. I would think if you could get to Lake Bistineau, McDade, La. , you might find something. My sheets are fifteen years old so the people listed as supplying information may now be dead. I do not have the books referred to and they are not in the Davidson library, but I think I copied out all that related to Dr. Hall.

If you get any more definite information, I hope you will pass it back to me. I regretted that the biography in THE LAST FORAY was so limited on so prominent and worthy a representative of his class.

Sincerely yours,

Chalmers G. Davidson

I, Elisha Jones, of the District of Fairfield, in the State of South Carolina, being weak in body but of sound and disposing mind and memory and understanding, do make, publish and declare this my last will and testament: in manner and form following, Viz:

Item I. I will and direct that all my property be kept together under the care, management and control of my executors, hereinafter named, until all my just and lawful debts are paid, (except that in case my executors shall deem it expedient to sell off any portion of my stock, or other articles which they may judge expedient, they are hereby authorized from time to time to make such sales) and my said executors are authorized to employ such overseers as they may think proper for the management of the planting interests of my estate.

Item II. I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Judith Jones, for and during the term of her natural life the following negro slaves, Viz: a negro man called Spencer and his wife, Mary, and their children together with the future increase of said woman Mary: also the use of my dwelling house, garden and such out houses as she may need, and the use of so much land as may be necessary to employ her hands for and during the term of her natural life. It is my meaning and intention, that until my debts shall be paid and a division made of my property, the property above given to my wife shall remain in common with my other property, under the care and management of my executors and that my executors during that time do supply my said wife with everything necessary for her comfortable support and maintenance. And I furthermore will and direct that my said wife shall have a full, ample and comfortable support and maintenance out of my estate, for and during the term of her natural life to be secured to her by my executors in such manner as they may think best.

Item III. I give and bequeath to my grand-son Elisha Hall, a negro girl called Margaret, now about 12 years old, together with her increase, and a negro boy called George, about 10 years old, for and during the term of his natural life, and at the time of his death to be equally divided among the heirs of his body, lawfully begotten, but if my grand-son, Elisha Hall should die without leaving lawful issue of his body then living, then the said slaves and their increase, if any, are to be equally divided among the other children of my daughter, Dorcas Hall.

Item IV. I give and bequeath to my grand-daughter Judith Emiline Hall, a negro girl called Cynthia, about 8 or 9 years old, together with her increase, for and during the term of her natural life and at her death to be equally divided among the heirs of her body, lawfully begotten, but if my grand-daughter, Judith Emiline Hall should die without leaving lawful issue of her body then living, then the said slaves and their increase, if any, are to be equally divided among the other children of my daughter, Dorcas Hall.

Item V. I give and bequeath to my grand-son, John Thomas Hall, a negro boy called John about 3 years old and a negro child called Robinson, about 1 year old, for and during the term of his natural life, and at his death to be equally divided between the heirs of his body, lawfully begotten, but if said grand-son, John Thomas Hall, should die without leaving lawful issue of his body then living, then said two negroes are to be equally divided among the other children of my daughter Dorcas Hall.

Item VI. It is my will and desire that all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, both real and personal, be so divided between my two daughters, Jermima Crankfield and Dorcas Hall, as to make their respective shares, (when added to what I have already given them respectively), equal. And I do hereby authorize and empower my executors to call to their assistance two respectable and intelligent men, and my executors, with such assistance, are hereby authorized and empowered to divide my said estate between my said two daughters. The property heretofore given to my said daughter respectively, is to be valued at the time the division is to be made, and the value at that time is to be regarded as the value of what they have already respectively received. The division contemplated by this item is not to be made until all my debts shall be paid, or provided for. I do hereby, furthermore, declare that the property, both real and personal, hereby devised and bequeathed to my daughter, Jermima Crankfield, is devised and bequeathed to her for and during the term of her natural life, and not to be in any wise subject or liable to the debts, contracts or incumbrances of her present, or any future husband, and that during the life of my daughter, Jermima Crankfield, said property is to be at all times subject to the control of my executors as trustees to protect her title and interest from incumbrances by her husband. And in case my said daughter, Jermima, shall have no issue living at the time of her death, the property, both real and personal, hereby given and devised for the use of my daughter, Jermima, during life, as aforesaid, shall at her death, go to my other daughter, Dorcas Hall, during the term of her natural life, and at her death to be equally divided among the issue of the body of my said daughter Dorcas Hall. I do also declare that the property, both real and personal, devised to my daughter, Dorcas Hall, is devised and bequeathed to her only during the term of her natural life, and at the time of her death, the land is to be divided among her children, the issue of a deceased child, if any such, to take the share which the parent would have taken if living.

Item VII. I wish my present crop to be sold by my executors in such manner as they may think best, and the proceeds applied to the payment of the debts ---- and the provision crop, and other provisions now on hand, to be used for the plantations.

Item VIII. I nominate and appoint my well beloved brother, William Jones, my son-in-law Dr. William E. Hall and my beloved nephew, Ralph Jones, Executors of this my last will and testament. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this sixteenth day of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and forty three.

CATHERINE (KATIE) HALL

Obituary.

A wide void has been created in our midst by the death of two good persons.

They were Mrs. Tommie C. Hall, who died at 3:15 on the morning of February 19, and her husband, Mr. W. E. Hall, on the morning of Feb. 23rd, and strange to say, at the same hour. They both died of typho-malarial fever. Mrs. Hall was born in this parish in 1866, where she has since resided, and her husband in South Carolina in 1860, whose parents, Dr. E. J. Hall and Sallie E. Hall, moved to Bossier parish in 1861, where he lived up to the time of his death.

The subject of this notice was married, March 2nd, 1887, of which marriage two children, a daughter of four years and a son of 18 months, survive. Although Mrs. Hall died four days prior to her husband, the misfortune of her death never came to his knowledge. One who has known them intimately, and who, in common with the rest of the community, sincerely laments their untimely deaths, cannot permit the occasion to pass without putting upon record his knowledge of their personal qualities and virtues.

Mrs. Hall was held in high esteem by her husband, her mother, her sisters and brother, and admired by all whose fortune it had been to make her acquaintance. Of a kind, gentle and sympathetic disposition which made and retained friends.— She was a christian in the true sense of the term.

The death of such a person is, at any age, to relatives and friends premature. The death of Mrs. Hall the more so, as she was only 25 years of age. But we must not murmur at the ways of Providence, as the life she has entered is the portal to one of eternal bliss.

Will, as we knew him, was a devoted husband, affectionate father, and dutiful son, brave and generous to a fault, thoughtful of every interest of family and friends. We humbly trust that his spirit has reached the realms of eternal rest, and ere this enjoying sweet communion with his devoted wife in the Eternal City. A FRIEND.

At Denton, in the 25th year of her age, of typho-malarial fever, Mrs. Tommie C. Hall.

Mrs. Hall was born in 1866, and was the youngest child of Mrs. M. E. Caldwell, who survives her. 'Tis indeed a sad duty to chronicle the death of such an estimable lady.— Mrs. Hall was a dutiful wife, a fond and loving mother. She was the idol of every one that knew her, and the pride of her fond mother. The angel of death has come; she has obeyed the summons and her sweet soul has joined the innumerable host that have gone into the great Futurity.

Weep not dear friends, she is not dead:

"There is no death, the stars go down,
To rise upon a fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more."

Mrs. Hall was a model wife and ever sought to please and comfort those around her. She loved and caressed her two little children, and she in her last moments seemed ready to go, but hated to leave them. Rest on, sweet soul, rest on! Your memory will ever be cherished and loved by those dear relatives and friends left behind, and good friends, remember there is balm in Gilead for all our wounds. We tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved. We know that words are but hollow mockery in this, their hour of grief, but there is a comforting solace in looking aloof to that home where death never enters.

She has gone so young, beautiful and fair; just in the beauty of womanhood; but 'twas Thy will, and oh! Father, let Thy will be done.— What a comforting thought, what a blessed hope to know that thou art asleep in Jesus.

When we have to answer the dread messenger, we earnestly pray that thy sweet spirit may welcome us on the shores of a blissful eternity. Peace to thy ashes! F.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ellison Hall Sr. were honored Tuesday evening on occasion of their golden wedding anniversary by their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hall Jr. of DeRidder and Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hall, with a reception at East Ridge Country Club.

About 300 guests called between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock to offer congratulations to the couple.

Field." This house was located a few hundred yards southerly from the Pine Grove Negro Baptist Church. For many years the name, "Grant's Old Field," along the Bethesda with unaccountable tenacity. Frequently "Grant" was dropped and the "Old Field" retained. Many years ago the preacher sent to this circuit, on his first round, being as he supposed near the Church, a young man, whom he chanced to meet, the distance to Bethesda Church. He declared his ignorance of the existence of a church bearing such a name. He was then asked the distance to the "Old Field Church". This question he answered promptly and explicitly. This young man was to the manor born and his mother was a member of Bethesda.

The names of the person who contributed to the building of the first house of worship are: Rev. Jno. Pickett, a local preacher, Foster, Piper, Jackson, Gibson, Lewis, and Graham, commonly called "Grimes".

The following are some of the names which were on the church roll many years ago, to wit: Lewis, Piper, Jackson, Stokes, Graham, Barber, Ellison, Backstrom, Reynolds, Pickett, Howze, Brown, Grant, Wilson, Walker, Mills, and Templeton. All these have gone to their rewards, and but few, if any, have any descendants bearing their names and connected with the church here. Their places are occupied by others.

Owing to the inconvenience of the location or the condition of the building, another house was built on the west side of the road that extends northerly from the residence recently occupied by John O. Jackson where the Rocky Mount road intersects. This was in the late thirties or early forties.

The present house of worship is a neat and commodious brick building, erected in 1854-55 by the untiring efforts of Rev. L. A. Johnson, pastor at that time.

Bridge Across Rocky Creek

The first bridge ever built across Rocky Creek at what is now Gladden Mill was destroyed by the high creek of 1856. Aleck Baker, an old time free negro, contracted to build it.

While at work on it his son, Hamp Baker, and another free negro, Bill Sanders, made it up with Rachel and Susie Jones and their brother Zach, slaves belonging to Dr. W.E. Hall, to leave the country. Their object was to get the girls to a free state (Ohio) and marry them. The effort was made and they went as far as Charleston where all were apprehended and brought back except Hamp Baker who made good his escape. Dr. Hall strapped his negroes according to their deserts and Bill Sanders was put in jail and the sheriff daily put on strips sufficient in number and degree for several days to satisfy the law. That learned him that it was much more risky and painful, if caught to steal a wife among slaves than among free negroes. This was about 1857. The bridge was and carried all kinds of farm tools and the ladies their jewelry, as, etc., to him for repairs and all were accommodated alike. His work left his hands in good shape and was a fine specimen of workmanship.

He was a harmless and innocent old man and scarcely left his shop except to fish, of which sport he was very fond, and occasionally to hunt.
He died in 1869, respected and beloved by all.

Mr. William E. Hall was the wealthiest man of this community. He was a good manager and attended to the slaves on his five plantations in South Carolina. He also owned two places in Georgia, which he frequently visited.
His crops were paying ones. He was the best of neighbors and a very benevolent man. No one ever went to him for a favor and came away empty handed.
His slaves loved him devotedly and some of them, even after emancipation did not speak of him without tears coursing down their cheeks. He was a staple pillar in Bethesda Church. This was broken by his death and his place has not since been filled. Not a dollar's worth of the large property

William Robertson was probably the best financier of ante bellum days.
He incurred a debt of ten thousand dollars for a plantation and his only resources were a few horses and his family, (he had several children). He paid the debt, built several thousand dollars worth of houses on the plantation, and owned a considerable number of slaves before his youngest child was near grown. He was quite energetic and an excellent manager.

William Nickels was boat-wright for the river men. He built all the boats used in navigating the river in his day. When boat building was no longer a business, he opened a shop at his home to repair wagon and all kinds of vehicles. Thus he did as long as he was able to do the work. He died in 1887 nearly 91 years of age.

Dear Mr. Hall,

There were so many references on your Hall family, I just didn't have time to read them all. I missed any reference that might have mentioned land in Georgia. Where did you find about the land? I did see a notation where the Administrator (Henry A. Gaillard) had left the State. As you know several Halls bought at the sale: Capt. Hall, Henry Hall, Reuben Hall etc., Elisha Hall now a resident of Louisiana. William E. Hall is dead. Was this William a son or did it refer to the Dr. William E. Hall? Son-in-law Jesse Gladden & a transaction with ? Dye. I don't usually scan the documents, but since I was looking for a mention of land in Georgia I didn't want to spend a lot of time on this.

William E. Hall was a large land owner, and his estate was to be advertized on the 6th day of January 1868. A portion of land was bought at the Auction by James A. McCroy. I would think the land in Georgia was advertized about the same date by the Administrator. Then at the Auction would be sold by the Sheriff. If so, in some counties the sale would be indexed under the Sheriff's name and that would be more difficult to find.

Since the county is unknown the Grantee Index for all the counties would have to be checked for William E. Hall buying the land. I have done some counties but there is two I have in mind to check when I go to the Archives this week. Do you want the name of a person who goes to the Archive every day?

It will probably be a month before I go back to South Carolina.

Sincerely,

Mary J. Gilbert

HON. JOHN LYLES GLENN. When the South Carolina State Bar Association chose John Lyles Glenn as president, it appropriately honored one of the ablest lawyers in the state. Mr. Glenn has been in active practice at Chester for nearly forty years, is a banker, has been prominent in politics and public affairs, and is easily one of the outstanding figures in the life and affairs of the state today.

Mr. Glenn was born at Lowryville in Chester County, April 20, 1838, a son of Dr. Ephraim Lyles and Louisa (Carter) Glenn. His father after graduating from the Medical College of the State of South Carolina at Charleston took up the work of the profession, to which he gave the rest of his life, serving the people of York and Chester counties with singular zeal and consecration.

When John Lyles Glenn was about twelve years old the family moved from Lowryville to the Tirzah neighborhood in York County. He grew up on a farm, attended county schools in Chester and York counties, and in 1870 entered Wofford College at Spartanburg. He was graduated with the class of 1879. His law studies were pursued in Vanderbilt University at Nashville, and he was admitted to the bar in 1881, at once beginning practice at Chester, where he has since had his home. Many years of hard and faithful work have effected his reputation as one of the leading lawyers of the state. In addition to a large general practice Mr. Glenn is district counsel for the Seaboard Air Line Railway.

He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1895, and served in the State Senate four years, from 1896 to 1900. He was a delegate to the democratic convention at Baltimore when Woodrow Wilson was nominated in 1912. During the great World war while two of his sons were with the colors he was performing all the duties of a patriotic citizen at home. He served as food administrator for Chester County and as district chairman of the Legal Advisory Board. Mr. Glenn is president of the National Exchange Bank of Chester and has long been a figure in the South Carolina Bankers' Association. He served one term as president of the State Bar Association, and at one time was a member of the State Board of Education and is now president of the Board of Trustees of Wofford College.

Mr. Glenn married Miss Alice Hall, member of a prominent family of that name in Fairfield County. Mrs. Glenn was educated at the old Williamstown Female College and is a graduate of the Columbia Female College. She shares with her husband many scholarly tastes and attainments, and in school she excelled in mathematics and in her own home has done much to educate her children. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn have a family of eight children, five daughters and three sons. The sons are all young men of distinction and part of this record may very appropriately be devoted to them.

The oldest, James Hardin Glenn, is his father's law partner. He graduated from Wofford College in 1909, studied law at Columbia University in New York, and was admitted to the bar in 1912. He married Miss Ola Allison, of York County, and they have a daughter, named Elizabeth Carroll Glenn.

The youngest son is Thomas Hall Glenn, also a graduate of Wofford. He has made an enviable record as an educator, having much of his mother's ability in that line. During the war he volunteered and served with the United States Marine Corps, and had been picked for the Naval Aviation Service when the war ended.

Few Americans were longer identified with the World war than the second son, Capt. J. Lyles Glenn, Jr. He was graduated with honors from Wofford College in 1912. In college he was a leader in athletics, particularly baseball, but his participation in athletics was no bar to his scholarship. He won two or three scholarship prizes and was one of the Rhodes scholars from South Carolina. He went to Oxford University in England to benefit from this scholarship in September, 1914. After about six weeks' work in the university he voluntarily joined Mr. Hoover's Food Relief Commission in Belgium. He was soon in active service behind the German lines. Subsequently, in company with C. G. Bowden of Tennessee, he went into Northern France, still behind the German lines, distributing supplies in behalf of the American Food Commission. These two intrepid young men were the first to engage in that work in Northern France. Their exploits were made the subject of some widely read article on the war published in Hearst's Magazine in November, 1917. The adventures described in that article occurred in February, 1915. Captain Glenn remained with that work for eighteen months. During the fall and early winter of 1915-16 he was again at his studies in Oxford. In February, 1916, he became an ambulance driver for the French army. His duties were in and around Verdun at the time of the stupendous assault on that fortress, in many respects the most spectacular event in the entire war.

Captain Glenn was again busy with his studies at Oxford in 1917, when America joined the Allies. He was given his A. B. degree in advance of the regular time, and returning to America entered the Officers Training Camp at Fort Oglethorpe. He received his commission as second lieutenant of infantry and was at once ordered overseas as a casual officer. In France he attended the British Infantry Army School. He was assigned to duty with the First Division of the United States Regular Army and on January 5, 1918, was promoted to first lieutenant and was immediately given command of Company G of the Twenty-sixth Infantry, First Division. He was with that organization at the battle front, was wounded but remained in continuous service until July 8, 1918. At that date he was ordered home and at the same time was promoted to captain. He was assigned to instruction duty at Camp Gordon Officers Training School and continued there until the close of the war. He received his honorable discharge March 4, 1919, and then returned home to Chester. It was his rare experience to have been in close touch with some phase of the great European front almost continuously from the early months of the struggle.

General Petain, the hero of Verdun, gave Captain Glenn a citation, based upon his leading a raid on the German trenches in June, 1918, and bringing back a number of German prisoners and very important information. He made this raid while on the battle front in Picardy. He led his company of 120 men, and in the citation General Petain refers especially to Captain Glenn's conspicuous intelligence in forming the plans for this raid and his subsequent leadership. More recently Captain Glenn has been notified through the State Department that he has been awarded by King Albert the Belgian decoration of the Chevaliers of the Order of the Crown—this on account of his services with the Food Commission in Belgium.

Before entering Oxford Captain Glenn had the law in view, and he specialized his studies along that line while abroad. He finished his law work after returning home and leaving the army, and in the spring of 1919 was admitted to the bar and entered his father's law firm at Chester. Captain Glenn married Miss Sarah Terrell, of Atlanta, daughter of Mr. W. A. Terrell and a niece of the former governor and ex-senator Terrell of that state.

BORN MAY 22, 1801
DIED FEB. 21, 1864

SON OF
JOHN AND MARTHA GLADDEN HALL

FAIRFIELD COUNTY S. C.

Dr. Hall Remembered

Dr. William E. Hall (1801-1864), doctor and prosperous planter of the antebellum era of Fairfield County, was honored and remembered by present day members of the Hall family recently. A monument was erected to Dr. Hall at Bethesda Methodist Church, "so other generations of the family will know and remember their ancestors".

Dr. Hall was born May 22, 1801, one of eleven children of John and Martha Gladden Hall of Fairfield. He had seven brothers and three sisters. His father was a planter, and a firm believer in hardwork, honest, and education. He provided well for all his children and William was no exception.

His early education was at Rocky Mount School, Rocky Mount. His zest for knowledge later led him to Charleston where he gained his medical degree in 1828 from Charleston Medical College.

In 1831, he married Dorcas Jones of Fairfield. Their family consisted of four children, two sons and two daughters. Both sons, Elisha Jones Hall, born 1834, and John Thomas Hall, born 1836, married and became medical doctors. The daughters, Jemima Ann Hall, born 1832, married Dr. William R. Dye of Kershaw, and Judith, born 1834 and twin of Elisha, was married to Major Cunningham Hamilton McClenghan, a lawyer.

William E. Hall used his intelligence to the best of his advantage. He was a very enterprising and well educated man. He was a successful physician as well as a plantation planter and master. He owned and operated five plantations in South Carolina, which consisted of 10,000 acres and 149 slaves, two plantations in Echols County, Ga., and 1,437 acres in Bossier Parish, La. A distinguished and versatile leader of his generation, in 1850, he was the wealthiest man of the Rocky Mount community. In 1860, he was the third largest landowner in Fairfield County.

His slaves loved him devotedly, and he in turn was fair in the administration of their medical and personal needs on the plantation. He was a very benevolent man, and liked by all who knew him. He never turned away anybody empty handed and offered his assistance whenever needed.

Dr. William E. Hall, along with his brother, Daniel, also a large landowner, donated the land and the funds for the building of Bethesda Methodist Church at Mtford, in 1854. They were both members of this church. Another brother, Rev. Thomas Hall, was a Methodist preacher of the Fairfield community for twenty-five years.

Dr. Hall was formed from the same mold as his ancestors, a man of keen intelligence, with polished manners and cultivated taste, a much loved man, the epitome of the true Southern gentleman.

Dr. Hall died during the Civil War, on February 21, 1864. Until recently, he did not have a monument to his name, although he was never forgotten by family or relatives. Recently, Hall family members erected a monument for Dr. Hall at Bethesda Church.

ing one for the purpose of carrying a cargo of Indian corn to Belfast, Ireland, in the time of the "great famine." When Albert Bickmore was eight years of age, his father took him on his ship to Bordeaux, France, and from that time dates the naturalist's love for travel and for the study of nature. He began to study for college at Thomaston, Me., finished his preparatory course at New London, N. H., under Dr. G. W. Gardner, and was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1860. During his college course his vacations were spent in explorations in the vicinity of Hanover, his object being to study the geology of that region, and gather specimens of natural history. He was urged by some members of the college faculty to confer with Prof. Louis Agassiz of Harvard, with a view to making natural history his life study; and an interview with that great investigator and teacher caused Mr. Bickmore to become one of his pupils, and later an assistant in his museum, 1860-64. In 1863 he visited Bermuda, for the purpose of collecting for the museum of comparative zoology in Cambridge. On his return he joined the 44th Massachusetts volunteers, and served nine months, mostly in North Carolina. In January, 1865, Mr. Bickmore sailed from Boston via the Cape of Good Hope to Java, and traveled for a year in the spice islands, Celebes and Sumatra. He next proceeded to Singapore, thence to Saigon in Cochin China, and from that place to Hong Kong. Another year was passed in a journey through the interior of China; from Canton to Yungting lake, and down the Yangtse river to Shanghai, and northward to Peking and Corea. During a third year he visited the coast ports of China and Japan, and coming to the mouth of the Amoor river, traveled across Siberia to Moscow; visiting St. Petersburg, Berlin and London on his way home. On his return in 1868 he prepared a volume entitled, "Travels in the East Indian Archipelago," which was published in the United States, England and Germany. When this book was issued he was made a life-fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London; in the same year he was elected professor of natural history in Madison (now Colgate) University. In 1869 he resigned that position to become superintendent of the American Museum of Natural History, which he had aided to obtain its original charter and its first general subscription. In 1884 a department of public instruction was formed in connection with the museum, and Mr. Bickmore was placed in charge as professor; since that date he has been aiding the princely benefactors of that institution lay for it a permanent foundation, by causing it to take a prominent part in the public education of the city and state. Under the auspices of the state superintendent of public instruction, he has delivered more than 150 different lectures on geography and natural history to the teachers of the public schools. His lectures, which are delivered at the museum to 25,000 educators, are now repeated by the board of education in the city to over 70,000 citizens, and under the direction of the state superintendent to nearly 800,000 pupils of the public schools in seventy cities and villages of the commonwealth. This system of illustrated instruction is now rapidly spreading throughout our country.

HALL, Wilburn Briggs, naval officer, was born on his father's plantation, in Fairfield district, S. C., Sept. 20, 1838, son of James Gregg Hall and Jemima Jones, daughter of Dr. Thomas Briggs, also a South Carolina planter, and a descendant, through the maternal line, of the Lewis family of Virginia. He was educated in a South Carolina academy, at the Georgia Military Institute at Marietta, and a classical and collegiate institution in Northern Louisiana. In 1855 he was appointed an acting midshipman in the United States Naval Academy, where, on his graduation at the head of his class in 1859, he was publicly presented with a sword inscribed as a memorial of "highest academic merit." He was then ordered to the West African squadron on the flagship Constellation, as aide to the commander-in-chief, Com. Inman. Two months later he was made acting master of the U. S. ship Marion. In 1860, on returning to the United States, he received orders to go on board the Niagara, carrying back to Japan the first Japanese embassy ever sent to any country. He was transferred at St. Paul de Loande to the Constellation as acting flag-lieutenant and watch officer under Com. Inman. During the cruise the Constellation captured the slave-ship Cora off the Congo river; and Mr. Hall, being chosen for service on this vessel, effected the landing at Monrovia of the 720 slaves on board, and brought the ship to the United States. An interesting account of this action was published in the "Century Magazine" for May, 1894. The civil war commencing, Mr. Hall resigned, purchased the steamer Huntress for the Confederacy, and running it out of New York during a severe gale at midnight in March, 1861, was the first naval officer to hoist the Confederate flag at sea. The Huntress, after an eventful career, was accidentally burned. Mr. Hall assisted, after the battle of Port Royal, in removing the Confederate garrison, and served on board one of the three small steamers which, under Com. Tatnall, ran through a fleet of thirteen Federal warships and carried provisions to relieve the famished and beleaguered garrison of Pulaski. He aided in the defense of Savannah in 1862, blocking the river channels, and in constructing defenses laid the first submarine torpedoes used by Confederates. Being promoted first lieutenant, he was placed in command of floating batteries at Charleston, and subsequently served as executive officer on the ironclads Chicora and Tuscaloosa; as executive officer of the captured Harriet Lane, the crew of which he marched across Texas to man the Missouri in the Red river; as commander on the Red river of the gunboat Webb; as executive officer on the Missouri, and as commander of midshipmen in the naval academy at Richmond. While making his way to Richmond to assume charge of this post, he spent forty days in the swamps of Louisiana and the forests of Mississippi, suffering from malarial fever and constantly imperiled. At Richmond, during the siege, he also served in the trenches, and on board the second ironclad Virginia. During the siege of Charleston, he served in the harbor as executive officer on the ironclad Chicora, and as commander of the Huntress, and after the city fell he was with the Confederate army until it surrendered. In 1874 Lieut. Hall was recommended by Gen. Sherman to the khedive of Egypt, who appointed him major of engineers in the army for service on his staff. On his arrival in Egypt he was assigned to duty in charge of the survey of Lower Egypt, but was soon detached from this service and appointed chief of the first section of the ministry of war, a position corresponding to that of adjutant-general in the U. S. war department. In this position he was actively engaged in all matters pertaining to the organization of the forces and the development of the military condition of Egypt. The general staff was charged with the campaign against Abyssinia, and the American officers were conspicuous for their service. On the defeat and death of Col. Arendrup, Maj. Hall was charged as chief of the bureau of military construction in addition to his duties as adjutant-general. He combined these two bureaus into one at the citadel of Cairo, and organized the work with the assistance of Turkish and other officers under him. He was also assigned by the khedive to examine and report upon the progress of the young princes, Ibrahim Pasha, Mahmoud Bey and Fuad Effendi, who were being educated by a corps of European professors, and was appointed visitor and inspector of the military schools of the government. Many flattering honors were paid him by the khedive. On retiring from the service he returned to America and organized in Baltimore an institution for the instruction of cadet engineers for the navy, and also prepared midshipmen and cadets for the Naval Academy and West Point. At the beginning of Mr. Cleveland's second administration Maj. Hall was appointed U. S. consul at Nice, to serve in all the towns on the French Riviera from Frejus to Ventemiglia, and this post he held until 1898. He was married to Harriott, daughter of Com. D. N. Ingraham, and a descendant of Henry Laurens, president of congress during the revolution, and of Gov. John Rutledge, of South Carolina.

SLATER, John, manufacturer, was born in Belper, Derbyshire, England, Dec. 25, 1776. He received a good education, and learned the trade of a wheelwright, which then included in its scope the construction and setting-up of all sorts of machinery. At the suggestion of his brother, Samuel, he made a special study of such machinery as was then profitable in the manufacture of yarns and cloths, with a view to inaugurating the industry in America. He came to this country in the latter part of 1803, and at once united his knowledge and skill with the ideas and plans of his brother, who had started a mill at Pawtucket, R. I., bringing with him particularly a knowledge of the mule spinning invented by the famous Samuel Crompton. His ideas were a great accession, and in 1806, with William Almy, Obadiah Brown and Samuel Slater, he formed the firm of Almy, Brown & Slaters. They purchased land and started a mill in North Smithfield, thus beginning what has finally grown into the beautiful and prosperous village of Slatersville. In 1807 Mr. Slater removed to Slatersville, and there continued to reside through his laborious and successful life, steadily enlarging the mills, and directing business in other places in which he was interested. In 1833 he and his brother, Samuel, bought out the interests of their partners in Slatersville, and so became sole owners of mills and privileges, under the style of S. & J. Slater. They had, under the same firm-name, in 1823 already purchased and put in operation the mill at Jewett City, Griswold, Conn. In 1825, John, on his own account, bought the mill property on Pachaug river, three miles above Jewett City, and named the place Hopeville. Here he increased the manufacturing business, and made it remarkably successful; indeed, everywhere his skill, energy and prudence insured success to his undertakings. In 1831 he purchased the interest of his brother, Samuel, in the Jewett City property, thus becoming sole owner, and placed his eldest son, John, in charge as business manager. His second son, William, assisted him in the conduct of the Slatersville interests. In other localities where he was interested with his brother, Samuel, he continued the copartnership as at Slatersville, until the latter's death in 1835, and for a time afterwards with his heirs and executors. When, in 1818, the Burrillville Agricultural and Manufacturers' Bank was established, Mr. Slater became its first president, and he continued to preside over it until his death. In all affairs he was broad minded and public spirited. Mr. Slater was particularly considerate to his workmen, and cherished a lively interest in the education and progress of the young. The educational, religious and industrial interests of Slatersville bore the impress of his worthy life. Among his interests in other states, he was concerned with Robert Rogerson and others, in a mill at Boylston, Mass. He was married, in 1807, to Ruth, daughter of John Bucklin, of Pawtucket, R. I., and had eleven children, only four of whom, two sons and two daughters, lived to maturity. After his death, his sons formed the firm of J. & W. Slater. He died at Slatersville, R. I., May 27, 1843.

ADAMS, Herbert Baxter, educator and author, was born at Shutesbury, Mass., April 16, 1850. His father was Nathaniel Dickinson Adams, a lumber merchant and selectman of Shutesbury, and a descendant of Henry Adams, who settled in Braintree, Mass., 1634. His mother was Harriet Hastings, a descendant of Thomas Hastings, who settled in Watertown, Mass., 1634. Lieut. Thomas Hastings, of the revolutionary army, was a member of this family. Adams studied at Phillips Exeter Academy and Amherst College, where he was graduated in 1872. He then continued his studies in Germany, at the University of Heidelberg, where he won, summa cum laude, the degree of Ph.D. in 1876. Returning to America, he was in that year appointed to a fellowship in history at the Johns Hopkins University. In 1883 he became associate professor, and since 1891 has been professor in full charge of the department of history and politics. He has also lectured (1878-81) on history at Smith College, Massachusetts. In 1882 he began to edit the "University Studies in Historical and Political Science," now embracing thirty-three volumes. To this series he has made numerous contributions, chiefly on American institutional and economic history. In 1887 he began to edit, for the bureau of education at Washington, D. C., "Contributions to American Educational History," now including nineteen monographs, treating of American colleges and universities in state groups. For this series he wrote "The Study of History in American Colleges and Universities"; "The College of William and Mary"; and "Thomas Jefferson and the University of Virginia." He has been secretary of the American Historical Association since its organization in 1884, and has edited the

THE GERM OF WINTHROP COLLEGE.

How the idea of a State Institution for Girls took root, and how it grew under the cultivation of the late W.
S. Hall described by his son--Honor enough for all who were instrumental in this broadening of educational system of the State.

By W. S. Hall.

(This article embraces facts relating to the history of Winthrop College, taken from the original manuscript of the late W. S. Hall, Sr.)

May 4, 1912, Dr. E. S. Joynes of the University of South Carolina published in the State an account of the founding of Winthrop College. A few facts from this historical account will serve as a text. Dr. Joynes writes: "The occurrence on November 15, 1911, of the 25th anniversary of the opening of the Winthrop Training School in Columbia, November 15th 1886, invites at this time, near the close of the 25th annual session, some commemoration of the history of this earlier school, from which Winthrop College had its origin and of the creation therefrom of the Winthrop Normal and Industrial College of South Carolina, as it now exists. Since its adoption as a State Institution and its transfer to Rock Hill, the history of Winthrop has become part of the public history of South Carolina, 'known and read of all men.' It has seemed proper, therefore, that on this occasion some record should be made of that earlier and more obscure history--that 'day of small things'--less known to the public, which, however, contained the germ of all that has followed, and which, unless now rescued from oblivion, might soon be forgotten. As I am the only living person, besides President Johnson, that has been connected with this institution from its earliest conception and beginning, it has seemed proper that I should make this record. It will be confined to a statement only of important facts, and will extend only to the laying of the cornerstone, as commemorated in the following pages, and the final transfer to Rock Hill. Thus connected, it will form, I hope, a valuable record of what may be called the first epoch in the history of Winthrop College and a suitable contribution to the memorial occasion. As I shall record matters known to myself personally, and of which I was often a part, I need not apologize for such references to myself as the truth of history may require.

Separate Influences.

The great institutions of civilization or culture owe their origin generally to concurrent, often distinct, influences, working often unconsciously together under separate leadership, and progressively educating the public mind to the needed reform. To this general rule Winthrop College, as will be seen, offers no exception.

"Winthrop College had its immediate origin in Winthrop Training School for Teachers, established in Columbia in 1886, and the Winthrop Training School had its origin in the Columbia city schools, through the conception and agency of D. B. Johnson, the Superintendent."

Attention is directed to the statement that "Winthrop College had its immediate origin in Winthrop Training School for Teachers, established in Columbia in 1886, and the Winthrop Training School had its origin in the Columbia city schools, through the conception and agency of D. B. Johnson, the superintendent."

Against this statement, we wish to place that of Senator B. R. Tillman, who at the laying of the cornerstone of Winthrop College in 1894, declared in an emphatic manner that he was the first man to advocate an industrial school for girls in the State of South Carolina.

It is proposed to show that the statement of Senator Tillman is not correct, and that the history of Dr. Joynes is true only so far as it goes back to the immediate origin of the college.

In the language of Dr. Joynes, it seems proper, therefore, that some record should be made of that earlier and more obscure history--that day of small things--less known to the public, which however, contained the germ of all that followed.

It is true, as Dr. Joynes says, that the great institutions of civilization or culture owe their origin generally to concurrent, often distinct influences, working together under separate leadership, and progressively educating the public mind to the needed reform. In these respects both Senator Tillman and Dr. D. B. Johnson have played important parts in the crystallization of that public sentiment which resulted in the establishment of the college. Dr. Johnson, by putting into practical form his ideas of a training school for girls, and Senator Tillman, by his aggressive leadership, which found expression in the college as now established.

THE VERY GERM.

But, of that earlier and more obscure history-- the germ of Winthrop College, and the separate and concurrent influences which progressively educated the public mind, it is necessary to go back to the leadership of Senator Tillman--back to the training school in Columbia--back to the city schools of Columbia and its superintendent--back beyond the birth of either Dr. Johnson or Senator Tillman. It is not certain but that we should go back to the North of Ireland before the dawn of the nineteenth century. Happily, it is not necessary to go beyond the year 1804, for from that date the "germ" was at work, and the history may be traced by an unbroken chain of events.

In the year 1804 there came into this State a family of Scotch-Irish of the name of Walker. They came from the northern part of Ireland and settled in that part of Fairfield County near the Great Falls of the Catawba River. Mrs. Walker was a school teacher, and a woman of high moral and intellectual character. Among her many duties as a teacher, she taught the girls needle work, thereby laying the foundation of an industrial education. This lady had a son about four years of age when she came to this country. The name of the son is still familiar to a large number of people throughout the State--Hugh A. C. Walker. The influence of Mrs. Walker extended throughout the immediate neighborhood and into adjoining communities, to such an extent that it became a fashion for young ladies as late as 1840 to take great pride in needle work. They wrought what was then called "samplers" which were often evidence of great skill with the needle, and were exhibited with pride by the young ladies.

Among the young women in the community who fell under the influence of Mrs. Walker was Mary McCullough, the daughter of Thomas McCullough, a Scotch Presbyterian of some means, and of great integrity of character. She was a woman of fine practical sense, skilled in needlework and in all the domestic duties, firm of character, and deeply interested in all enterprises, looking to the good and welfare of the people. She took a great interest in the country schools, named many of them, and often made suggestions to the teachers in the line of encouraging the pupils to clean up about the school houses, plant flowers and beautify the premises. About 1849 she suggested to the teachers in the schools the idea of writing letters to friends and relatives instead of exclusively confining them to writing essays on abstract subjects. In these suggestions she was instrumental in laying the foundations of a practical education.

When Mary McCullough married Daniel Hall, she carried into their home that fine sense of practical skill, that firmness and decision of character and intellectual endowments which dominated the minds of the children that came to them, and impressed these children with the necessity for and advantages that flow from educated and trained motherhood; for naturally the earliest, deepest and most lasting impressions made upon the minds of children come from the mothers, under whose care and tuition all the early influences of life are crystalized into character. The fathers were winners of bread; the mothers were the keepers at home, the trainers of children who were denied to a large extent the companionship and influences of the fathers.

The youngest child of Mary McCullough Hall was William S. Hall. He grew up to young manhood under the influence and the training of his mother. In early life he was impressed with the great value of an educated mother. To his mind was transmitted the influences of Mrs. Walker, and the germ continued to grow. In his associations with men he often heard them attribute whatever they possessed in the way of character to the influences of their mothers. He read that many great men gave the honor of success to their mothers. He commenced to formulate some plan by which the same advantages could be secured for the education of the future mothers as was being provided by the State for the education of her sons.

In 1862 W. S. Hall was elected to the General Assembly of the State as a representative from Chester County. The opportunity for carrying out his plans for a Woman's College seemed to present itself. The "germ" was quickened into life. It had not died during his youth; it survived the period of college life. It passed through the four years of fraternal strife; it continued to live after Sherman had wrecked the fine property his father had accumulated by his own and the industry of his wife, though dormant, its vitality did not perish during the long struggle that followed the war.

When elected to the Legislature, Mr Hall commenced at once to agitate the question of a Woman's College. The idea was new; the State was heavily in debt; many and urgent demands were being made on the treasury for funds for needed public improvements; the time was not ripe, but he continued agitating the matter, advising with and seeking the counsel of other members of the general assembly, among whom were R. T. Mockbe and James F. Barber of Chester County, George H. McMaster and Hayne McMeekin from York County, Col. George Johnston of Newberry, W. L. Mauldin of Greenville, Col. John C. Haskell from Columbia, Charles H. Simonton of Charleston, and many other prominent men of the time.

The occasion was not propitious yet, but Mr. Hall did not give up the fight. Those concurrent and distinct influences, working together had not yet educated the public mind to the needed reform. More yet had to be done. A general sentiment had to be created; so on August 15, 1863, Mr. Hall published a card in The News and Courier inviting all who were in favor of a Woman's College to communicate with him. Out of all the readers of that paper, only 40 or 50 replied. Most of the replies were expressive of a hearty sympathy and enthusiastic co-operation. But, what a meager response!

More yet had to be done. At the next session of the General Assembly a bill was introduced, not the bill desired by Mr. Hall, but rather a compromise measure as an entering wedge. The bill failed of passage, but the "germ" did not die.

In the mean time Mr. Hall had built a new residence just over the Chester County line, and in Fairfield County. He did not return to Columbia, but he continued his endeavors by encouraging the members to be elected from both counties to press the matter.

In the summer of 1884 Charles A. Douglas was a candidate for the House from Fairfield. At a campaign meeting held at Bethesda he referred to Mr. Hall's work for "his college", and stated that he would advocate the building of such an institution, as it was a good plank to run on.

During the latter part of the session of 1883, in a conversation with Charles E. Somonton of Charleston, Mr. Hall asked him why he opposed a Woman's College. Mr. Somonton replied: "I am not opposed to it, and will assist you next session." Mr. Hall told him that he would not return next session. Mr. Somonton said: "I thought you told me that you never gave up an undertaking about the justice of which you were satisfied." Mr. Hall replied: "I will repeat the assertion."

In 1884 Dr. T. B. McKenstry, John Douglas Harrison and C. A. Douglas, members of the house from Fairfield County, all advocated the establishment of the College.

During the session of 1884 Mr. Hall visited Columbia. About that time a distinguished orator delivered an address in the opera house to the students of the South Carolina College. The name of the orator has been forgotten, but he spoke along the line of higher education for women. Capt. R. T. Mockbe of Chester heard the address, and meeting Mr. Hall later, said: "The sentiment is spreading like wildfire. Hall you'll get your Girl's College yet."

Thinking, perhaps, the endorsement of the two senators and the members of Congress would accelerate the crystallization of sentiment, Mr. Hall addressed letters to all of them. All of the representatives replied, some showing a little interest, some frankly endorsing, and only one opposing the idea--the last giving as his reason, "That for several years our men would have to be bread winners." This was George D. Tillman. Neither Sen. Hampton nor Sen. Butler replied.

In 1884 or 1885 Mr. Hall was passing the store of George H. McMaster in Winnsboro. Mr. McMaster said: "Hall, there is a blame might more in your Woman's College than I had any idea of." He then showed Mr. Hall a clipping from a news paper containing a most interesting account of the Industrial College for Women in Mississippi, which was written by a Charleston lady who had visited the institution. This was the first information had by Mr. Hall of an Industrial School for Girls in the South, and the establishment of the Mississippi College preceded the advocacy of a similar institution by Senator Tillman for this State, and the establishment of the Training School for Teachers by Dr. D. B. Johnson in Columbia in 1886. In 1886 the "germ" had, by the processes of cleavage and distribution, found lodgment in the minds of not a few in separate and distinct communities. The nucleus was at Columbia in the form of the Training School under Dr. Johnson. It had reached a state of active vitality.

That same year the sentiment took root in the mind of B. R. Tillman, who, then, was not known except locally. The soil was fertile, and the "germ" thrived. Under the leadership that was afterwards asserted by Capt. B. R. Tillman, the "GERM" began to assume a concrete form; so that in 1894, Gov. Tillman was present at the laying of the cornerstone of this magnificent institution in Rock Hill, where he said that he was the first man to advocate the establishment of an Industrial College for Girls in South Carolina. On that same occasion, Hon. Ira B. Jones, who was the orator of the day, made the remark that he saw before him in the audience the man who first conceived the idea of the institution--Mr. W. S. Hall of Chester.

Mr. W. S. Hall was the first man publicly to advocate this institution. It was he who first breathed the breath of life into the "germ" which in the fullness of its maturity adorns the city of Rock Hill, and is the pride of the State, but the "germ" itself springs from Mrs. Walker, of whom more must be said.

In addition to what has been detailed, all of which is historically true, and can be verified by the testimony of living witnesses, we shall trace our steps back to the day of "small things", which, but for this history, would be lost in obscurity.

Other separate influences springing from the same source, different in the final forms assumed, but akin in purpose, are always strong persuasive arguments of the probability of things, and the true history. The original "germ" contained in it those elements that make for equal advantages for both sexes in the educational world.

Mrs. Walker's son, Hugh A. C. Walker, followed in the steps of his distinguished mother. He became a teacher in the same community. His mother's spirit and industry was reflected in his life and character. Among the boys who were taught by H. A. C. Walker and James H. Carlisle of honored memory, who more than any man, South Carolina has ever produced, has moulded the life and character of manhood, and left an imperishable monument in the lives of some of our State's most distinguished sons. Young Walker afterwards became a minister of the Methodist Church, and enriched the whole State by the influence of his life and preaching. Some years later Benjamin Wofford, a local Methodist Minister, having acquired a considerable fortune, became in the question as to how he should dispose of it to the best advantage. Out of his wide range of acquaintances, he called on his friend, H. A. C. Walker, to advise him. Mr. Walker advised the founding of a College to be under the charge of the Methodist Church. Mr. Wofford made his will, leaving the sum of $100,000 dollars for the purpose of establishing at Spartanburg, S. C. a college for the young men of the State, under the charge of the Methodist Church. The College so founded is Wofford College.

In the same obscure community lived Rev. John R. Pickett, who, too, fell under the educational influences of the community. He gave the next largest donation to Wofford College.

Through the two separate lines of transmission, two noble institutions, Wofford College and Winthrop College, have sprung from the same source of educational energy-- the "germ", if you please to so call it. Some honor belongs to Mrs. Walker; but for her who knows what future events would have shaped themselves? Some honor belongs to those who have stood in the line of transmission between the power station and the two institutions, and have carried the energy slowly at times it may be, but in an unbroken current.

In writing this history no effort is made, and none designed, to take from any other person the full measure of honor and credit due for the parts played by such persons in the final establishment of Winthrop College. "There is honor enough to go around." It is a very small man that will arrogate to himself the sole honor for the accomplishment of an enterprise to which less prominent persons have contributed. All truly great leaders in war and peace have been magnanimous enough to give to the toilers in the ranks the full measure of credit for their share in bringing victory.

Much more might be written of details, but the facts given here are given in their logical sequence, and are sufficiently connected to trace the line of events. It is the purpose of the writer to go back to "that day of small things-- less known to the public, which, however, contained the "germ" of all that followed, and which, unless now rescued from oblivion, might soon be forgotten."

Established The First Public School and Occupied Important Place in Life of City.

William Stuart Hall, 69, senior member of the law firm of Hall, Vassy & Hall, died about 6:10 o'clock yesterday morning at his residence, 500 South Johnson street.

Mr. Hall, who was a lawyer, educator and author, had been prominent in Gaffney and Cherokee county affairs for more than 40 years.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon by the Rev. A. C. Holler pastor of the Buford Street Methodist church, of which Mr. Hall was a member. The Rev. W. A. Fairey, of Chesnee, a former pastor of the Buford Street church, will assist Mr. Holler. Interment will be in Lakeland cemetery with the Shurford-Hatcher Company, morticians, in charge.

Mr. Hall's death was caused by pneumonia, which developed a few days ago, but he had been in declining health and had been confined to his home for several weeks.

About nine years ago Mr. Hall almost died as a result of a car accident on his face. He remained unconscious for several weeks, and was confined to his home for months, but he finally recovered and enjoyed normal health until a heart affection developed a few months ago.

Active Career.

Mr. Hall had taken an active part in political, social, civic and literary affairs during his two more years of residence in Gaffney.

He was born in Chester county, October 21, 1869, the son of the late William Stuart Hall and Anna E. (Holmes) Hall. He was educated at Wofford College, Spartanburg, where he received a B. A. degree in 1891 and an M. A. degree in 1895. He married Miss Anna R. Caldwell, of Chester, September 19, 1891.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall came to Gaffney in August, 1897, and Mr. Hall became superintendent of Gaffney's first public school system in which he was instrumental in establishing in 1898. Mr. Hall is one of the teachers in the first "free" school. Mr. Hall was head of the department of mathematics at Limestone College from 1900 to 1902.

Admitted to Bar.

Having pursued the study of law while engaged in teaching, Mr. Hall was admitted to the practice of law in the state courts in May, 1898. He was admitted to practice in federal courts in 1902 and 1903. Being possessed of a keenly analytical mind, he quickly earned a high standing in the legal profession, and was appointed to serve as special judge in South Carolina courts in 1924 and 1925.

Mr. Hall served as a magistrate two years, from 1900 to 1902, and was elected to the house of representatives in 1908. Two years later he was chosen state senator, a position he filled from 1910 to 1914. He served as a presidential elector from South Carolina in 1916 and 1920.

Mr. Hall served as chairman of the Cherokee county Democratic executive committee and as president of county conventions several different times.

He had been attorney for Cherokee county for several years, was formerly city attorney, was a past president of the Cherokee County Bar Association and vice president of the Seventh Circuit Bar Association.

Civic Connections.

Mr. Hall was a member of Limestone Lodge No. 74, Knights of Pythias, the Crustbreakers Club and the Rotary Club. He was a member of the board of directors and attorney for the Piedmont Federal Savings and Loan Association. He served as president of the Chamber of Commerce when Gaffney had an organization of that nature a number of years ago.

While at Wofford College Mr. Hall joined the Chi Psi fraternity, of which he remained an active member through life.

Some of the books and articles written by Mr. Hall were: "Judicial as Distinguished from Political; Interpretation of the Constitution of the United States of America;" "The Red Fox;" "Magdalene;" "The Death of Little Nancy Hendley;" "Some Physical of the Universe;" and other human interest stories.

Learned Man.

Mr. Hall had highly developed his mental faculties by continuous study, especially as to astronomy and mathematics, in both of which subjects he was especially interested. He was a constant reader, and he was able to digest and understand the most difficult and complicated problems.

During his youth and early manhood Mr. Hall was athletically inclined. He enjoyed playing baseball and boxing, and he always maintained a keen interest in sports.

Funeral This Afternoon.
