Note: Members of this family moved to Illinois and Indiana area.

1. SAMUEL HILL, b. ca. 1630, England, was Treasurer for Oliver Cromwell's government. When King Charles II resumed the throne, Samuel Hill wrote in his diary "I find the climate in England very unwholesome, so I am going to seek a change of climate." Having wearied of fighting he joined the Society of Friends (Quakers) and came to Virginia, and then to Perquimans County, North Carolina, where he is recorded as having served six months imprisonment for refusing to bear arms (1680-05mo-04da). Also listed as being so imprisoned were William Bundy, John Pierce, Jonathan Phelps and James Hogg (Ref: History of Perquimans County, N.C." by Winslow, and "Sam Hill, The Prince of Castle Nowhere," by John Tuhy). His son:

1-1 WILLIAM HILL. b. ca. 1655, England, m. Mary Spivey. Was also persecuted for his religious belief, and came, possibly with his father, to Virginia and then migrated to the eastern shore of North Carolina, along the Pimlico Sound in Perquimans County. His son:

1-1-1 WILLIAM HILL JR., b. ca. 1680, Perquimans County, N.C. (another William Hill Jr. b. 1736-12 mo-02 is often confused with this William Hill Jr. The two could not be the same person in view of the verified dates of this William's son, AARON HILL'S activities, below) migrated to Randolph Co., N.C., where he settled along the Uwharrie (sic) River near what is now the site of the Old Hill's Store Post Office. His descendents still operated the store and post office in 1885 (Ref: "Hill's Store Post Office 1823-1907"). His son:

1-1-1-1 AARON HILL, b. ca. 1700, d. 1761-10mo-30, Pasquotank Co., N.C., m. 2-8-6-1 William Allen Hill, b. 22nd August

1863.

2-8-6-2 Samuel Branson Hill, b. 13th May

1857, Uharee (Deep River) Guilford County, N.C., (Ref: Harvard Law School Alumni Book, Class of 1879, p. 236). He attended Haverford College, Pennsylvania, earning an A.B. degree in 1878, an A.B. from Harvard in 1879, and LLD from Penn College, Iowa in 1912, and was admitted to the legal profession in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He married on 6th September 1888 at St. Paul, Minnesota to Francis Hill, daughter of James Jerome Hill & wife Mary Theresa (Mehegan) Hill of Minneapolis...James J. Hill was b. in 1838 of immigrant English Quaker parents in the small Quaker community of Brotherstown, later Rockwood, which was founded by Quakers in the early 1830's in Eramose Township, Ontario, which dates from 1784, and lies fifty miles west of Toronto. His father died on Christmas day in 1852, James J. Hill was raised from that date in upper Canada, where he had little chance for formal education, but through his self-education had attained more than a college degree. He converted to the Roman Catholic Church prior to his marriage to Mary Theresa Mehegan. He settled in Minneapolis, where he acquired the St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, and organized the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railroad. He was a millionaire early in life. He had two sons, and a daughter Mary Frances. James J. Hill died on 29th May 1916, North Oaks, Minnesota...Samuel Branson & Mary Frances (Hill) Hill settled in Seattle, Washington, where his business ventures prospered, and he became a millionaire. He built a mansion in Seattle with a theater room identical to one built for Kaiser Wilhelm, and a roof garden for entertaining. Mary Frances Hill disliked the west, and in an effort to placate her, in 1907 Samuel Hill obtained seven thousand acres of land facing on the Columbia River in Washington, about one hundred miles east of Portland, Oregon, which he believed to be a perfect spot for a Quaker farm community. The land he said :was where the sun of the eastern part of the state met and blended with the rain of the west." He brought Quakers for the east to see the land but they were uninterested. In 1914 Samuel Hill started construction of a mansion on the land. As an experimenter in horticulture he planned to raise all types of fruit. He named the estate Maryhill in honor of his wife and daughter. Samuel Hill traveled extensively, and had learned road building in France and Italy. He foresaw the increase in automobile traffic and the need for better roads. He was the first President of the Good Roads Association, and established the first Department of Road Building for the University of Washington. Through Samuel Hill's efforts Washington roads became a model for other states. He built a loop from Goldendale, Washington to Maryhill to show Oregon legislatures what could be done in road construction. World War I, and a divorce halted construction of the mansion. Samuel Hill was active in war relief work when he met and became close friends with Queen Marie of Romania, Alma Spreckles, widow of sugar magnate Adolph Spreckles; and Loie

Fuller, the creative dancer who left the prudish United States and became a hit at the Follies Bergere in Paris. He also traveled incognito through Russia, assisting in planning supply route to the Russian front. He later imagined he was being pursued by foreign agents because of his wartime missions. In 1926 Samuel Hill dedicated the Maryhill mansion, still a shell, as a Museum. For this dedication he brought Queen Marie half way around the world. Her ornate gold leafed furniture and throne are still the major attractions of the "Queen Marie Room" of the Museum. It is among the gifts of Alma Spreckles, who was a constant advisor and patron to the museum in its early years. The ramps on either end of the museum were driveways, and the circular domes were to have been the roofs of garages. Samuel Hill had the house designed by eastern architects Hornblower and Marshall so that he could drive through it, this was because of the high winds that occur in the area. At the time of Samuel Hill's death in 1931, the museum was still incomplete. Alma Spreckles continued her efforts on behalf of the museum, donating many priceless works of art. The museum was finally opened to the public in 1940. It is noted for its collection of Rodin sculptures, certainly the finest in the United States; and for its collection of Indian baskets and artifacts; Russian icons; antique chess sets, a wide range of paintings; and "Theatre de la mode," a collection of miniature mannequins dressed in creations of the 1940's by such leading designers as Balenciaga, Worth and Jean Patou. The thirty inch high mannequins were originally shown on theater sets created by French artists. East of the Museum, Samuel Hill built in 1918, as a memorial to the dead of World War 1, a replica of Stonehenge, the ancient attraction on the Salisbury Plain of England. The Maryhill Museum is now open to the public during the summer months. The admission charge is modest. One should check the hours of operation before making the long drive to visit it, to avoid disappointment. The children of Samuel Branson Hill & Mary Frances (Hill) Hill:
