Dear Eddie,

How are you and your associates at the Fairfield Co. Museum? We are still thinking about our wonderful visit to your Museum and Genealogical Research Center in July. I continue to work on my Jones, Goodwyn and Heatly ancestors from Fairfield Co. and the Amelia Township of Orangeburg District.

I have a couple of questions. What was Darling Jones' affiliation with the participants in the American Revolution?

Was he in support of the Revolutionists?

Was he a Tory?

Or, was he tap dancing between the two sides?

I looked, twice, at the SC Archives for information on him and found nothing for the years of the American Revolution. Would you have some information about him at your location?

And, the other question. I am researching James Goodwyn, son of Francis Goodwyn. James was born in/about 1767. That would make him too young to participate in the American Revolution. Though, I found Revolutionary War papers on a James Goodwyn at the SC Archives. Was there another James Goodwyn in your area during the years of the Revolution? (My) James Goodwyn is buried at the Goodwyn Briggs Cemetery (near the gravesites of the two much-loved hunting dogs).

I have Revolutionary War papers on Francis Goodwyn, father of James Goodwyn. Francis Goodwyn married Mary Heatly of Amelia Township which is now, in Calhoun Co. Mary Heatly was the daughter of William Heatly. There was a William Heatly, Sr., (Mary's husband) and a William, Jr., their son. Son served in the Revolution. Father was too old, but served on a Grand Jury, and donated supplies. I will request the records for William, Sr., from the SC Archives, probably this week.

If you have any questions, please call me.

Hello Peggy,

Did not find SC Rev. War records for Darling, however, DAR has him as a private in TN.
Not sure if this is him, but obituaries found mention he was a AR soldier.
I sent you information on Darling Jones and James Goodwyn via our printer.
I also have attached the tombstone pictures.

Hope this all helps.....

Eddie

BLINK BONNIE

JONES — ROBERTSON — KIRKLAND

BLINK BONNIE, in the Longtown section of Fairfield, commands one of the most majestic views in the county. From its spacious veranda portions of several counties, towns, and settlements may be clearly seen without the aid of binoculars. In the summer the varying shades of green melt away into purple tints where the heavenly blue of the sky meets the horizon. Several glistening creeks, the Wateree River, and Lake Wateree cut their own patterns through the forest. The panorama from this point is a challenge to any artist who might try to capture it on canvas.

In 1822 a Camden banker, Darling Jones, built this house for a summer residence. The design and construction of the commodious home show that the builder had all the good taste and hospitable traits of the era.

The main body of the structure is rectangular, with a wing to the left. Across the front is a wide, spacious piazza, supported by graceful, well-proportioned square columns. An outstanding feature of the house is the two enormous central hallways on the first and second floors. They extend all the way through the middle of the mansion. These served a dual purpose: first, they added greatly to the summer comfort of the three large, square rooms flanking the halls, and, secondly, they afforded ample space for entertaining on a grand scale. The decorations such as mantels, wainscotings, and cornices are simple but handsome. The walls and ceilings are plastered, and the formal rooms have elegant chandelier rosettes in the ceilings.

The left wing is off from the formal dining room and serves as a kitchen and family room. All the walls are paneled, and the cabinets are built of time-cured, mellow, red-heart pine.

In the back yard, to the left of the dwelling, is the unique old brick kitchen. This little building in itself is a gem. It consists of two rooms with large open fireplaces, ovens and warmers. One of the fireplaces still has its swinging cranes and spits. The floor is laid of brick. Due to the brick floor and the thick masonry walls, even on hot days the little house has a refreshing coolness, for it is well-ventilated with windows on the front and rear.

The little brick kitchen at BLINK BONNIE is still in use. Many discriminating South Carolina housewives, who pride themselves on serving rare delicacies, are well familiar with its trademark. Mrs. Kirkland, the present mistress of BLINK BONNIE, is a woman of many talents. She is not only a connoisseur of fine foods but also an artist in the preparation of them. Among her friends her artichoke relish and pickles became a legend. Now, during the artichoke season, the old kitchen on her plantation is a busy place, giving employment to several of the good cooks of Longtown, who under her careful supervision prepare the most delicious of all South Carolina relishes, Blink Bonnie Artichoke Pickles, Relish, and Iced Tomatoes. Some of the artichokes are raised on the place but the demand for her finished products has become so great that the farm people all over the county are planting artichokes to help meet the demand for this spicy side dish made famous by her recipe.

After the death of Darling Jones the place passed to his son, Abram Jones, who continued to use it in the same manner as his father. The Jones' entertained on a lavish scale, and this fine old home was the social center of the community where the Virginia reels, quadrilles, and cotillions were danced. It was probably an inspiration for the fabulous Peay mansion, MELROSE, which was built in the 1850's.

When the Confederate War ended, there was a great change at BLINK BONNIE. The war had cost the Jones family their fortune. The plantation was sold at public auction and was bought by W. O. Robertson, who with his family occupied the place for many years. When the Robertson family moved away, BLINK BONNIE was used as a stage house or "station." Then it was rented to a long succession of tenants. Finally, after falling into bad repair, it became vacant for some time, a sad reminder of bygone splendor.

This deplorable plight ended in 1950 when the plantation was purchased by the M. A. Kirklands. Kirkland, a native of Camden and a descendant of the Kirklands who were among the first settlers in this section before the Revolutionary War, had long admired the old place. He and his talented wife began a restoration of the house immediately after they bought the property. Today BLINK BONNIE again stands proud and majestic in all the magnificence and grandeur that made her famous in the past. The present owners still have plans to further glamorize and embellish the house and grounds.

DIXON HOUSE

HARRISON – MOORES – HARRISON – DIXON

This old landmark is sadly in need of restoration but it still stands, defying time, in spite of its sad plight. The front doorway is still beautiful and outstanding in design, giving the old place a lasting semblance of dignity and refinement.

The place belonged to Reuben Harrison, a Revolutionary soldier. In the period before the war he was associated with Thomas Woodward, the "Regulator," in keeping law and order. He was twice married; Lucy Burge was the first wife and Nancy Kirkland the second. He died in 1835 and left each of his eight children two thousand acres of land. In addition to this he built homes for his three daughters, leaving the home place to his widow for her life.

One daughter, Frances, married a Brevard. Her home was behind the Darling Jones House and was built similar to it. It was razed a few years ago but the fine old mantels and woodwork were saved and are now still in use in a house near Camden. Nancy, the second daughter, married a Rochelle, and their big three-story house stood on a hill near what is now "Fairview," The Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. It finally fell into disuse and was taken down a few years ago. The third daughter, Mary, married Charles Moore, and their house is the only one left standing of the many Harrison homes.

About 1830 all of the daughters and their families sold their property and moved West. John Harrison bought most of his family's estate as his brothers and sisters moved away. He was a very rich man, owning thousands of acres of land and listed as one of the largest slave owners in the upcountry. He

James Nealy, Alexander Kincaid, William Hatcher, John May, Widow Woodward, David McGraw, Thorp Parrott, William Hardage, Jacob Gibson, John Bell, and John Wallace. Included in the perishable goods were fourteen bushels of indigo seeds.<sup>5</sup>

Hannah Robertson, widow of John Robertson, made her will on March 14, 1805, and it was proven on November 26, 1810. She had been previously married to Daniel Muse, and by him had a son Joseph Daniel Muse. By her husband John Robertson, she had a son John Robertson. In her will, she forgave a note for $194 due her by Joseph Woodward, and gave him a feather bed and other furniture. She had sold Joseph Woodward her dowry third in the estate of John Robertson for $300 on October 2, 1804. This sale was for 174 acres of land on Mill Creek. She gave her son Joseph Daniel Muse six slaves in lieu of the legacy due him from his father Daniel Muse's estate and the estate of his deceased sister Rebecca Muse. To her son John Robertson, she gave some slaves and a note from Thomas Robertson (his half brother) to be applied to his schooling. John Mickle, Darling Jones and Benoni Robertson were named her executors.<sup>6</sup>

In accordance with a precept from John Thorp, DSG, dated November 4, 1766, 200 acres of land was laid out for John Robertson north of Broad River, on Murley's Branch. The plat was certified by John Winn D.S. on January 14, 1767. John Robertson had 300 acres of land surveyed for him on Little River by Minor Winn D.S., on May 26, 1784.<sup>7</sup> surveyed for him on Rocky Creek, waters of Cedar Creek, Camden District, and the plat certified on January 11, 1785. Eighteen acres were surveyed for William Robertson on Jackson Creek and the plat certified by Henry Moore D.S., on September 8, 1801; bound by the lands of William Robertson, Henry Moore and David Hamilton. A.B. Ferguson D.S., surveyed 492 acres of land for William Robertson on branches of Wateree River, on May 27, 1811; bound by the lands of Zachariah Nettles, Thomas McCall, Anderson Rochelle and Gardner Ford. On February 7, 1811, 182 acres of land was laid out for him on a branch of Wateree River: bound northwest on Wixey Ward, northeast on Darling Jones, southeast on Alexander Crumpton, east on William Reynolds, and southwest on Robert Mc Cants.. A third tract containing 211 acres of land was surveyed for him on October 4, 1811: bound northwest and southwest by Zachariah Nettles; northeast by Thomas McCall, Jonathan Belton and William Robertson; southeast by Reuben Harrison; and south by William Harrison. This represents a total of 885 acres of land surveyed for William

Robertson on the branches of Wateree River in 1811.

George Shedd, Fairfield County, gave Captain William Robertson his power-of-attorney on July 9, 1790. On the same day, James Thompson Shedd, also of Fairfield County, gave Captain William Robertson his power-of-attorney to receive his inheritance from his father James Shedd who had died in Loudon County Virginia..

On March 5, 1797, Benoni Holley, Fairfield County sold William Robertsn, Esq.,
