

Mrs. Nelle McMaster Sprott
Winnsboro, SC

Find enclosed one of a number of possible ways of approaching the Rion account. I obviously have done only a quick throw together sort of job that could stand considerable improvement.

I think a reasonable preface is needed to set the stage for an account that often is a bit dull—Rion uses the same sort of sentence over and over—unless one just happens to be from Winnsboro and knows the people involved. This suggested preface needs more to be complete; this would include a discussion of the various types of businesses (about 88 counted, I recollect) and certain other types of information that would provide a town context. It might even pay to look in the 1860 census to determine how the people he names compare to the persons listed. I plan to make a list for you.

Drop a short note (no hurry) with your general thoughts about how you feel a preface should read.

More to come as I get things proofed, formatted, thought about, etc.

Fred

NELLE: I have done away with many of Rion's commas

I am less than certain that I have the footnotes in just the right places—please check VERY carefully.

Also, please read very carefully for any possible errors. I have already carefully proofed, but ask that you do the same.

A DESCRIPTION OF
WINNSBORO, S. C.,
ON THE EVE OF THE CIVIL WAR

THE MEMOIR ACCOUNT OF PRESTON RION

TRANSCRIBED AND EDITED BY

NELLE McMASTER SPROTT

(Including an Appendix discussing James Henry Rion)

I am increasingly less sure about whether you should include this.
It seems to me
to be another topic not particularly
description of the

When I can first recollect Winnsboro, the corporate limits of the town extended from where Mr. George W. Crawford lives—to the corner above where George B. McMaster now lives. (This place was then occupied by Gen. John Buchanan)

That [southern] part of the town from McCants' Corner [at Congress and Moultrie streets] to Douglass' [at Congress and Buchanan streets] was called Clarkeville. Capt. James N. Shedd built the house now occupied by Mr. A. S. Douglass;[#1] the Prices lived in the house where the Obears live;[#2] and on the Walker lot was the saw mill, grist and flour mill of Osmund M. Woodward.[#3] The Rion house was built by James Phillips, the brother of R. W. Phillips, and was occupied by Mansel Hall.[#4] Where the Boylston house [now] is was an old field,[#5] and the Cureton house was Dr. Caleb Clarke's home.[#6] Mrs. Dwight's house was a store which came out to the edge of the pavement,[#7] and Robert Clarke of Maryland was the proprietor. The Connor house was occupied by Thomas Ligon,[#8] and his carpenter shop was at the rear end of the lot.[#9] The Frank Clarke house was occupied by Robert S. Ketchin,[#10] the father of T. H. Ketchin; and James B. McCants lived where J. G. McCants now lives.[#11] Campbell's flour mill [#12] was just north of where Creight's warehouse now is, and Levi Huntington dressed granite where the big oak stands by the Passenger Depot.[#13] Matthias Clark lived where the Hanahans now live across the Railroad.[#14] The Ketchin house was Mrs. C. Ladd's female school,[#15] and there was no house where G. W. Crawford's house now stands. The Mitchell's from Charleston lived where W. A. Beaty lives.[#16] Dr. R. A. Buchanan [was found] next,[#17] and G. A. White's house[#18] [once] was the home of Winnsboro [Masonic] Lodge No. 11.¹ John Phillips lived where Tom

Phillips now is.^[#19] J. O. Boag's [home] was the office of the News and Herald,^[#20] which [then] was published by Francis Britton and edited by Franklin Gaillard. Osborne Jones had a store on the Corner, now occupied by S. C. Dunn.^[#21] Osmund Woodward lived where Judge Osmund Woodward Buchanan now lives.^[#22] L. W. Duval lived in the Macfie house.^[#23] Mrs. Sarah F. DuBose lived in Dr. J. C. Buchanan's house,^[#24] and Dr. T. T. Robertson lived where the Tennants live.^[#25]

The granite building that belongs to Lauderdale and Bryson^N now has a brick face, and the first story was occupied by [R. S.] Ketchin and [G. (?) S.] McMaster as a Drug Store and Dry Goods store.^[#26] R. S. DesPortes and Middleton Armstrong were clerks, and the second story was the home of DeKalb Lodge I. O. O. F. [Independent Order of Odd Fellows]. Old man Frank Elder's furniture store and repair shop^[#27] was about where the News and Herald office now is [located]. Next was Samuel Jackson's Tailor shop^[#28] and Kremer's Shoe shop,^[#29] then Aunt Matilda Rosborough had a small wooden building, where John Russell now lives,^[#30] and [she] dispensed persimmon beer and gingers to such men as lawyers Dave McDowell, John B. McCall, R. B. Boylston and Judge James M. Rutland. D. R. Elkin occupied the Store of A. B. [?] Cathcart,^[#31] and George W. Woodward lived in a brick house where Williford's Stable now stands.^[#32] The Bank building^[#33] was build^(d) by David Aiken, the grandfather of Dr. David Aiken, and the second story was occupied by Joseph D. Aiken.² A. D. Hilliard kept a grocery store where R. W. Phillips now has a store,^[#34] and Agnew and McCully had a hardware store^[#35] between Phillips' and the [David] Lauderdale's [home] where [his son] George now Find enclosed a number of tables.

Slaves, land, and cotton are among indicators commonly employed to indicate the degree of wealth in parts of the state. The more wealth, the larger number of merchants and trade occupations might be supported—at least in theory.

In 1860, Fairfield, with 5.59% of the cotton bales produced in SC reported, ranked 4th in the state beneath:

Edgefield—7.70%;
Barnwell—6.65%;
Abbeville—6.22%

Of farms/plantations with 1000 acres ^{or} of more, Fairfield ranked second at 9.54% of such farms/plantation acrages in the state

beneath: ^{acrages}
Beaufort—11.62%

Of farms/plantations with 500 but under 1000 acres ^{or} of more, Fairfield ranked fifth at 7.06% of such farms/plantation ^{acrages} in the state

beneath ^{acrages}
Edgefield—10.67%;
Beaufort—8.83%;
Laurens—8.61%;
Barnwell—8.39%

Of farms/plantations with 100 but under 500 acres ^{or} of more, Fairfield ranked twelfth at 3.74% of such farms/plantation acrages in the state

Dear Dr. Jones:

You taught at least one idiot; I offer the enclosed as conclusive proof.

USAGE OF MATERIAL:

followed by District names

THE DISTRICT NAME CARRIES ACROSS TWO SECTIONS ON EACH PAGE

the first numerical column presents the number of persons (generally white) within a District owning a certain number ("x") of slaves the next column to the right offers the percentage of all slave owners within a District represented by those persons owning "x" number of slaves—as presented in any one section.

which is followed a ranking showing which district within the state has the most slave owners owning "x" number of slaves. As example: Spartanburg exhibits the 4th larger number of persons within SC owning only 1 slave.

the next column gives as a percentage figure the number of persons owning "x" number of slaves within a district when compared to other districts within the state. As example: Spartanburg exhibits 5.29% of all the slave owners within SC owning only 1 slave.

the last column in any single section gives the percentage of all slaves within a District that are held by those persons owning "x" number of slaves—as presented in any one section.
